But these mere errors in his figures, gross as they are, do not compare with the monstrous levity with which he proposes to take a step which would cover us with indelible discredit, which would be an abdication of our position in the Pacific, the surrender of our commercial prestiege in the Far East, a base treachery and betrayal of what he says, and the annual disburse-ments on their account is about one-

> LONDON Oct, 27 .- The morning papers, comparatively calm heretofore, are now outspokenly bellicose. The unofficial explanation of Rojestvensky is stigmatized in some papers as apparently that of a lunatic. The Telegraph says: "There is no doubt of the gov-ernment's seriousness. No Minister would order a fleet athwart the path of vessels of a foreign power without recognizing the responsibility of such a grave step." Foreign correspondents are equally bellicose, St. Petersburg dispatches express the conviction that Russia is dethe understanding of the usual and ordinary man, it becomes more evident termined not to punish the offending officers. Madrid dispatches comment from German vessels. The Post's Copenhagen correspondent gives the report of the captain of the British vessel who says that after passing the Baltie squadron he saw a two funneled steamer two miles away which evidently sank before he could reach her. It is suggested the steamer was sunk by the squadron.

Hitherto indications were the time limit had been set but the fact that the Gibralter squadron is under orders for October 28, is construed in some quar ters to mean that Great Britain will not wait longer than that date. It is also evident that the Baltic squadron may find difficulty in passing the gateway to the East unless the crisis is over by the time they reach the entrance to the

It is understood that every-Local op- vote thing has been decided upon the satisfaction of Count Lamsdorff, the Rus-No for sian Minister, except the question of Cong. punishment of the offending officers of the Baltic squadron. It is further understood that Great Britain is not demanding final and written undertakings before announcing that she is satisfied, but the undertaking in general terms on the part of Russia will be accepted as sufficient.

All public utterances of the Ministers and influential men reflect the gravity of the crisis but also the confidence that Russia can give the required satisfaction.

No Word From Rojestvensky. St. Petersburg, Oct. 27 .- One official of the admiralty stated to Associated Press this morning that no word had been received from Admiral Rojestvensky. The official continued:

The delay in getting the Russian version of the North Sea affair is proving exceedingly embarrassing.
