

DRAIN NORMAL IS IN TROUBLE

FINANCIAL INTERESTS SLOW TO COME TO RESCUE OF SCHOOL.

MAY SUSPEND THE INSTITUTION

Other Normal Schools Thrown Upon Resources, But May Secure Backing.

Secretary of State Raises New Question in Regard to Status of Institutions Outside Capital City—Will Not Recognize Them as State Concerns.

Whether the Drain Normal or any other normal school of the state exists until the question of the passage of the appropriation bill has been definitely determined or the legislature provides funds for its support, depends upon whether the necessary funds for maintenance can be raised from an outside source. This practically is the decision which has been reached by the members of the state board of education, as was expressed in the presence of the board of regents of the Drain Normal at Drain on Thursday afternoon, at a meeting held especially to discuss ways and means for the continuance of that institution, notwithstanding the lack of funds on account of the referendum petition.

Superintendent J. H. Ackerman, of the board of education, says the conclusion was finally reached after the situation had been thoroughly discussed, that the board of regents of the Drain Normal go ahead and engage a faculty for the ensuing year, providing the board, banks or other private interests would agree to furnish the means with which to maintain the institution and compensate the employees; or, providing the secretary of state could be shown wherein he was authorized to issue certificates to these institutions, as in the case of the other state institutions.

Financial Interests Unconcerned.

President Denster, of the Drain Normal, who was present at the meeting, signified his willingness to serve for another term in his present position if he were guaranteed merely living wages, but he could not speak for the other members of the faculty, who were absent. The members of the board of regents, who represent the principal business and financial interests of the city of Drain, however, would not pledge themselves to stand good for any debt which might be incurred by the institution, and the board of education feels that, this being the case, the banks or other interests will hardly feel called upon to come to the rescue of the school. The other normal schools, which are situated like that of Drain, have more solid backing and foundation, especially the Mouth Normal, and it may not be so difficult for them to secure the necessary security upon which to operate at least for another season.

More Complications Arise.

Another important issue, heretofore untouched upon, is raised through the contention of Secretary Dunbar that he will not issue certificates to the normal schools and the state university, under any circumstances; neither will he issue warrants in payment of the salaries of the officials and employees of these institutions, notwithstanding the Kay act should be upheld by the courts. This position is assumed by the secretary of state upon the ground that he has no authority by which he can recognize any of the institutions as "state institutions" in the full meaning of the law, for the reason that they are unconstitutionally located away from the seat of government.

This view of the situation has but recently been taken by Secretary Dunbar, and it has awakened no little interest in the developments which are constantly arising out of the difficulty over the question of the operation of the Kay act, which is now pending a test in the courts to determine whether the secretary of state is compelled to issue warrants monthly upon demand of the superintendents of the different state institutions, instead of certificates and quarterly. The four normal schools and the state university are mentioned in the Kay act as among those institutions the employees of which are entitled to receive monthly payment. Yet the secretary of state contends that they have no legal right to be called state institutions, because they are not situated at this city, as provided by the constitution of the state.

Employees Alter Plans.

This condition of affairs has served to alter the original plans of the state employees who are represented in the manumission suit against the secretary of state as regards the assessment of the prospective costs of the action. It was originally thought that all of the institutions named in the Kay act would come in for their respective benefits, as a result of the suit, and the officials and employees of those outside of this city were assessed at the same rate as those of the local institutions. Since the secretary of state has seen fit to regard matters in the light which he has, the assessment has been cancelled against the employees of the outside schools, and those of the local institutions will have to bear a proportionately larger assessment. The officials and employees of the Drain Normal school had already sent in their share of the costs of the pending suit, but, since they are to receive no benefits from the result, even if the plaintiffs are successful, Bookkeeper Allen, of the insane asylum, who is handling the funds, returned the Drain school employees' money to them yesterday.

This state of affairs places the outside institutions in the very peculiar position that, even if the Kay act is sustained as to the local state institutions, they cannot bring separate suit to compel the secretary of state to recognize them, since it would raise the constitutional question of their existence, and this they will take particular pains to avoid. It was thought that the university and normal schools—at least, it was suggested—would bring separate action to compel recognition from the secretary of state, but, upon second thought, this move has been abandoned, for fear the enemies of the normal schools would contest the suit upon constitutional grounds, and result in their complete abandonment and removal to this city.

PLEASE NOTE THE DATE.

Brawny Hopmen Will Contest the Husky Captains Upon the Baseball Field.

Don't make any dates for Saturday, June 17. There is going to be something doing upon that day that will put all past events of an amusement nature in the shade. Upon that day the hopmen of this city, as per challenge, will meet the employees of the "capitol building" in mortal combat upon the "sunnyfield," to contest for honors and supremacy in baseballdom. The state house aggregation, known as the "Capitol," have a most enviable reputation for their prowess upon the diamond, having played a tie game with the Rambler champions after the latter had administered a severe drubbing to the Dallas college second team, and performed other equally meritorious feats of which space forbids mention. They are especially noted for their exclusive brand of "hot air," which they peddle and they are talking about the "all-kinds-of-things" which they are going to do to the hopmen.

On the other hand the hopmen have an equally good reputation for "knowing the game," as at least one or two of the members have attended almost every game that has been played in this city for the past season. They also predict an easy victory over the "Capitol" and when the "hot air" of the latter becomes contaminated with the "malty fumes" of the former there is sure to be a big "brew" of it. Both teams are practicing assiduously and perspiring freely on account of the prospective game and it promises to be somewhat out of the ordinary in many respects. The line-up of the two teams, as they stand today, follows: Hopmen—Irwin, c.; Krebs or Pettyjohn, p.; Zeller, lb.; Crossan, 2b.; McClellan, 3b.; Corroyer, s.s.; Pincus, l.f.; Durbin, c.f.; Lachmund, r.f. Captains—Snyder, c.; Benson, p.; Perkins, lb.; Gatens, 2b.; Kozar, 3b.; McHugh, s.s.; Parrish, l.f.; West, c.f.; Allison, r.f.

Subs for hopmen—Werner (manager), Schucking, Jessup, "Duke" McConnell, Sutherland, Van Winkle, Wrightman and Vandarsal (chief roaster and manager). Physician, George Dorcas.

Good Roads Convention

The National Good Roads Association will hold its convention this year at the Lewis and Clark Exposition June 21-24. It is expected that about a thousand delegates will attend. The official call was dispatched some time ago by Secretary R. W. Richardson, with the result that responses are coming in rapidly. Already the cities of several states, mayor of cities and many commercial organizations have appointed their delegates.

Every preparation is being made for the reception of the body. Among the prominent speakers who will be heard are: President H. W. Moore; Hon. Martin Dodge, director, office of road inquiries, department of agriculture; M. V. Richards, industrial commissioner, Southern Railway; and James W. Abbott, special agent, road division, department of agriculture, will address the assemblage on "Transcontinental Highways." Mr. Abbott is at present superintending the routing of the transcontinental automobile race. Hon. Albert A. Pope, of Boston, will speak on "National Trunk Lines and Highways," and Mrs. Caroline R. Olney, the California advocate of good roads, will deliver an address on "El Camino Real," the famous "King's Highway" which was built by the Franciscan padre, Junipero Serra, and his followers during the latter part of the eighteenth century. June 24 has been designated Good Roads Day and a splendid program is being arranged. An object lesson road will be constructed on the exposition grounds as a special exhibit, showing in detail the process of road building, from the foundation grade to the finished road. It will demonstrate the application and use of the various kinds of road material and the operation of the latest improved road-making machinery.

The National Good Roads Association was organized in the fall of 1900, at Chicago, as a result of the convention held in that city. H. W. Moore was elected president and R. W. Richardson, secretary. These men have held their offices continuously. Headquarters were established at Chicago and a campaign was begun immediately to arouse interest throughout the country in good-common roads. The first important move was the inauguration of a good roads train, which was made possible through the influence of President Stuyvesant Fish of the New York Central railway. The co-operation of the road division of the department of agriculture was secured. Ten cars constituted the train. These were equipped with every pattern of high-grade road-making machinery furnished by various manufacturers and manned by a full corps of road-making engineers and experts. For three months this train toured the country between New Orleans and Chicago, stopping at every city and town along the route and demonstrating the effectiveness of constructing good roads. An object lesson road was built at each stopping place. Followed this a convention of good roads men was organized for five months in the South Atlantic states. The corps of road enthusiasts on this train held good roads schools and institutes, lecturing on various phases of the subject and illustrating the most economical use of proper materials, drainage, grading and alignment.

President Moore, following this, instituted two good roads special cars which travel over the lines of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas and the Burlington. Another good roads special car reached the Lewis and Clark Exposition in time for the good roads convention, traveling over the lines of the Union Pacific and its associations. The subject of improved public roads is commanding more active and practical consideration at this time than any other question on internal improvement in the United States and territories of the American Union. Agricultural, commercial, industrial, transportation, religious, educational, social and public interests are demanding a uniform system of permanent highways, commensurate with the needs of the country.

The annual convention of the Oregon State Rural Mail Carriers' Association closed on Sunday evening after a successful three days' meeting held in this city. Every session held during the three days was full of interest to the mail carriers, about thirty in number, who had gathered in Salem to discuss the various matters important to their particular employment. The principal address was delivered on Saturday evening by Hon. P. H. D'Arcy, which was well received and heartily appreciated by the visitors as well as the local carriers. On Sunday afternoon the delegates held a banquet which proved a most enjoyable event and formed an important part of the social features of the convention. Many matters of special interest to the rural mail service were taken up during the meeting and thoroughly discussed, and much good resulted from the exchange of views and ideas on the different subjects.

BOTH WILLING TO TALK PEACE

RUSSIA AND JAPAN AGREE TO PRESIDENT'S PROPOSITION.

RUSSIA'S CHOICE IS PARIS.

Emperor Ready to Open Negotiations in French Capital if Mikado Is Willing.

Will Consent to Manchuria or Washington if Japan Insists—Czar Cubles Washington Its Gratitude for Roosevelt's Offer of Good Will.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 10.—Paris is Russia's choice for the opening of peace negotiations. If Japan insists upon Manchuria or Washington, Russia will doubtless agree, but Paris is preferred and the emperor is already prepared to issue instructions to M. Sedloff, the Russian ambassador to France, to act as plenipotentiary to receive the Japanese conditions. The Russian government has communicated to Washington its consent to the publication of Russia's reply to Roosevelt's appeal, at the same time thanking the president warmly for the friendly and lofty spirit in which it was conceived.

Washington, June 10.—The Japanese acceptance of the president's offer of good will has reached the state department here before the minister of agriculture, Russia's reply followed later, but not in time to be deciphered tonight. It is expected to be made public tomorrow. Japan's reply reached the state department several hours ahead of Russia's reply. Had the cablegram from Ambassador Meyer reached here before the department closed, there is a strong probability that both would have been made public today. No word regarding their character can be obtained beyond the fact that both are acceptances and both express the gratitude of the respective governments for the president's offer of good will.

An interesting fact regarding the negotiations of last week is the powerful influence brought to bear upon Russia by France to accept the offer of the president and to appoint plenipotentiaries to discuss peace with the representatives of Japan. M. Jasseran, the French ambassador, was informed by the president of every move and kept Paris thoroughly in touch with the president's activity. Loyal support from Paris has been given to the president's offer from the first.

Formal truce is expected to be proclaimed immediately upon the place of the meeting of the plenipotentiaries has been settled upon. The Associated Press hears on all sides nothing but the highest commendation of Roosevelt's action, and, if it results in any adjustment of terms, it is believed that this act is bound to have a tendency to restore relations between the United States and Russia on something like the old friendly basis.

PARTICULARS CRIMINALS.

Were you not partly to blame? Confess!
How could I know what you really meant?
Your lips said no; but your eyes said yes.

You sat beside me; a wind-blown tress
Touched me with ravishing blandishments;
Were you not partly to blame? Confess!

Why did I kiss you? A tenderness
In your glance, I fancied, gave consent.
Your lips said no; but your eyes said yes.

How could I help it, you sorceress?
Your eyes—why are they so eloquent?
Were you not partly to blame? Confess!

Of course, you didn't quite acquiesce.
But—well, I stick to my argument:
Your lips said no; but your eyes said yes.

Who heeds, dear heart, what the lips profess?
What the eyes say something different?
Were you not partly to blame? Confess!

Your lips said no; but your eyes said yes.

THE SHEEP PAID WELL.

Last week J. M. Porter finished shearing his sheep; there were all told thirty-eight head of Cotswolds. The fleeces of twelve registered ewes weighed in the aggregate 211 pounds, or seventeen and seven-twelfths pounds to the ewe. A registered ram's fleece weighed twenty-three pounds. The poorest showing made was by a toothless ewe and her fleece weighed eleven pounds. The thirty-eight head produced in the aggregate 538 pounds of wool. This was sold to S. L. Kline at 28 cents per pound and brought Mr. Porter $156.24. The registered ewes' fleeces were worth on an average of $4.90 each, while the fleece of the registered ram brought $6.44. The average for the thirty-eight head was fourteen and eight-nineteenths pounds per head.—Corvallis Gazette.

LONG SUFFERING BARBERS.

"All day long, from 8 o'clock in the morning until 1 o'clock in the evening, I do nothing but handle human heads," said a well known New York barber, "and the more I handle of 'em the less respect I have. The majority of them, it seems to me, are simply storehouses for freaks, fancies, follies, passions, prejudices, predilections and for any other thing but brains.

"Barbers are not allowed to talk nowadays, and that rule should be applied to customers, too. It's just as hard on the barber to hear the customer talk as the other way; maybe harder, because the barber's money knows what he is talking about. Now that his tongue is tied the barber has become the most long suffering man in the country."

Two Positions.

Dallas' city marshal is now required to perform the duties of street commissioner also.

A 2-months-old calf that dressed 189 pounds was among the meat exhibited at a Corvallis market recently. The owner of the veal received 5 cents a pound for it, or $9.45.

New Sawmill.

George T. Gerlinger, vice president of the Dallas and Falls City railroad, arrived home from Portland, where he placed orders for the machinery for a new sawmill to be located in the timber west of Falls City. The mill will be erected on the site of the Watkins mill, recently burned, and will have a daily capacity of 60,000 feet. The machinery is all of the latest improved make, and the mill will be strictly first-class in every respect. Work on the mill buildings will begin at once.—Dallas Observer.

At Roseburg.

The Southern Pacific Company is now engaged in making $40,000 worth of improvements in Roseburg. With private improvements that are being made this city's building expenditures should pass the $100,000 mark this year.—Review.

Alfalfa Will Prove It.

Some experiments with alfalfa at the Corvallis experiment station have given the most satisfactory results. Dr. Wileycomb made the statements recently that four acres of alfalfa produced feed for seventeen head of cattle and twenty-five head of hogs during five months last summer. Mr. Madson of this city has raised some this year measuring four feet in length, which proves the plant a success in this part of the country. The farmers do not yet realize the possibilities of this great country.—Silverton Appeal.

Electricity at Dallas.

The Dallas electric light plant passed into the hands of its new owners, S. B. Thompson and sons, of Portland, the first of the month. Mr. Van Orsdel retiring from the business. Mr. Thompson was in Dallas early in the week looking over the plant with a view of adding new machinery and increasing its capacity. The plant is owned by S. B. Thompson and his two sons, C. P. and D. A. Thompson, and will be operated under the name of the Dallas Electric Light Company. It is the intention of the company to enlarge the plant at once. An order has been placed for a large new engine and boiler, which will be installed as soon as the necessary brick and cement work can be done.—Observer.

Cos County News.

Parties from the Corvallis say that that section of the county will enjoy the liveliest times in its history this summer. More logging camps are in operation than ever before, and more are to start in the near future, which means employment at good wages for a large number of men.

Ten tons of Beaver Hill coal, in dressed chunks, weighing between 200 and 400 pounds each, were shipped on last Alliance to the Portland exposition. The exhibit will be in the shape of a pyramid, and will be one of the attractive displays of Cos county produce. The coal was taken from the top lifts, but is nevertheless of excellent quality. It was the intention to furnish the exhibit from the lower lifts, which produce a still better quality of coal, but as the pumping out of the mine has not advanced to the extent of permitting to do so, coal from the upper lifts was substituted.—Marshfield News.

Condition at Grande Ronde.

Seven pupils from the Grande Ronde reservation were taken this week to the Indian school at Chemawa. The pupils were collected under the compulsory education law passed by the last legislature. The good effect of the law has been demonstrated at the Grande Ronde reservation, as there is not a single child there who is not now in school, unless excused on account of sickness. Dr. Andrew Kershaw, the superintendent in charge of the reservation, reports that when the law went into effect the enrollment of his boarding school immediately increased from forty-seven to sixty-two pupils without any effort on his part, the Indians willingly acknowledging the law. Dr. Kershaw has been with the Grande Ronde Indians now for seventeen years and has carefully looked after their interests. The reserve is dotted with many good farms and industrious Indian workers, which redounds to the doctor's credit, for he has improved their condition in many ways since he has been at the helm.—Reporter.

Falls Into Tub of Hot Water.

After lingering for twenty-six hours in intense suffering, James Mackey, Jr., the 6-year-old son of James B. Mackey, proprietor of the stone quarry at Oakland, Or., expired from injuries received by falling into a tub of scalding hot water at the family home Tuesday morning. The deplorable accident occurred in the kitchen while Alice Mackey, the 14-year-old sister of the little boy, had her back turned momentarily after having filled the tub with water preparatory to washing some clothes. Unnoticed by her sister, the little fellow came into the kitchen and a moment later a splash instantly followed by an agonizing scream, told the doctor that the boy had fallen into the water. As quickly as possible she went to the tub and pulled the little fellow out. Medical aid was immediately summoned and everything possible was done to relieve the little sufferer. All efforts were unavailing, however, and death mercifully intervened shortly after 11 o'clock Wednesday morning. The boy's mother and father and other members were absent at Hood River, Was. co county, when the accident occurred. Mr. Mackey was also away from home, being temporarily in another part of the city.—Review.

THREW AWAY HIS CRUTCHES

A SOUTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD ENGINEER JOINS THE LONG LIST OF PATIENTS CURED BY DR. DARRIN.

Eugene Guard.

To the Editor—Dear Sir: I hold it to be a duty as well as a pleasure to make known through the press, that which of all other things is essential, viz., the way to cure pain and sickness. I was confined to my room with sciatic rheumatism, kidney trouble, inflammation of the neck of the bladder and general indisposition. Could not sleep more than one hour at a time. All means I tried proved unavailing. I was prompted to visit Dr. Darrin through the advice of my friends, who had been cured by him, though I must say that I had little faith that electricity would cure me. I came to the doctor on crutches and my other complaints have all disappeared, so I can take command of my engine. Will answer all questions by letter or in person at Dallas, Oregon.

W. HAYS.

P. S.—Mr. Hays was for years a resident of Eugene and is well known in this city and throughout Lane county. For many years he conducted the city delivery business in this city. He is well known to the editor of the Guard and his statement can be relied upon.

Mrs. Easton's Card.

Roseburg, Or.—Dr. Darrin: Please use my name as among the cured by you ten years ago. I had been afflicted with granulated eyelids all my life. My eyelashes were all gone and grew back naturally after the cure of the eyes. I was almost totally blind, and had to be led to your office. I have been cured for ten years.

WHEN I GO HOME.

It comes to me often in silence,
When the firelight sputters low;
When the black uncertain shadows
Seem writhings of the long ago;
Always with throbs of heartache
That thrills each pulsive vein,
Comes the old, unquiet longing
For the peace of home again.

I'm sick of the roar of cities,
And of faces old and strange;
I know where there's warmth of welcome,
And my yearning fancies range
Back to the dear old homestead,
With an aching sense of pain;
But there'll be joy in the coming
When I go home again.

When I go home again! There's music
That may never die away
And it seems the band of angels,
On a mystic harp to play,
Have touched with a yearning sadness
On a beautiful, broken strain,
To which is my fond heart working—
When I go home again.

Outside of my darkening window
Is the great world's crash and din,
And slowly the autumn shadows
Come drifting, drifting in,
Sobbing, the night wins murmur
To the plash of the autumn rain;
But I dream of the glorious greeting
When I go home again.

JOHN HAY A POET.

The stanza below, entitled, "Humility," are from the pen of John Hay, better known as diplomat, editor and historian, than as a poet. The verses were written for the World's Christian Endeavor Convention at Washington a few years ago, but have just found enduring place, being chosen now as one of the hymns in the new "Hymns of Worship and Service."

Lord! from far-severed climes we come
To meet at last in Thee, our Home,
Thou who hast been our guide and guard
Be still our hope, our rich reward.

Defend us, Lord, from every ill,
Strengthen our hearts if needed be.
In all we plan and all we do,
Still keep us to Thy service true.

O let us hear the inspiring word
Which they of old at Horeb heard;
Breathe to our hearts the high command
"Go onward and possess the land."

Thou who art Light, shine on each soul
Thou who art Truth, each mind control
Open our eyes and make us see
The path which leads to heaven and Thee!
