

THE CITY

(From Saturday's Daily.)

Sustains Severe Accident.
Frank Pratt of South Salem sustained a painful injury while blasting rock yesterday. The accident occurred while the young man was in the act of examining the charge he had recently put in, the charge going off and badly abrading the flesh about the hands and face. He at once procured medical aid of Dr. Morse, who attended his injuries, giving the young man the wanted relief. He is now resting easy.

Another Case of Desertion.
In a complaint filed in department No. 2 of the circuit court for Marion county yesterday, G. W. Fisher alleges that his wife, Christina Fisher, willfully deserted him, and asks for a decree of the court forever dissolving the bonds of matrimony existing between them. The parties to the suit were named at Trinidad, Colo., on April 20, 1885, and the desertion took place in 1897, according to the husband's story. L. H. McMahon has been retained as attorney by the plaintiff.

The Auto Is Popular.
The automobile of the Oregon Suburban Auto Company, running between Salem and Independence, is doing a good business. The automobile goes full to the limit of passengers each way nearly every trip. This is very encouraging to the owners, and its continuance means the putting on of more automobiles. One running between Salem and McMinnville, for instance, would no doubt do a good business. The time of leaving Salem of the automobile on Sundays will be 8 a. m. and 3:30 p. m., and returning will leave Independence at 9:30 a. m. and 5 p. m.

Pleasant Reception.
The rooms of the Salem Y. M. C. A. in their building were beautifully decked out with flowers and vines last evening, and there was a sound of sweet music by Wenger's orchestra. It was the occasion of a reception prepared by the ladies' auxiliary in honor of John Fechter, Jr., the retiring secretary, and Mrs. Fechter. The rooms were well filled by a joyous company of ladies and gentlemen, including many members of the Y. M. C. A. Ice cream and cakes were served to all the guests, and the time was spent in pleasant conversation and getting acquainted. It was a very successful affair. Mr. and Mrs. Fechter will leave in a day or two for a visit to California, after which they will be in Salem a short time previous to removal to a new field. The place has not been selected as yet, but Mr. Fechter is considering several offers.

(From Sunday's Daily.)

Sick of Appendicitis.
Harris Thompson of Willard is said to be very sick of appendicitis.

Cemetery Association Incorporates.
The Belle Passi Cemetery Association of Woodburn filed articles of incorporation with the Marion county clerk yesterday. The directors of the corporation are George F. Bonney, Samuel H. Brown and E. P. Morcom.

Two Couples Made Happy.
The marriage record was once more taken from the shelves by County Clerk Roland yesterday and two matrimonial permits were issued before the precious book was returned to its place. The licenses to which the clerk affixed the seal of the county were as follows: Louis L. Ernst and Mary Bertha Thoma; C. H. Ernst, witness. William J. Wargnier and Emily La Flemme; Charles La Flemme, witness.

Largest in State.
Captain Oransky returned from Portland yesterday where he attended the encampment of the G. A. R. The Oregon department held a three days' session at Oregon City. At the same time the Washington department was in session at Vancouver. On Friday the two departments met in Portland and were escorted by a company of National Guards to the armory, where the union was held. There were about 1,000 veterans in the parade. The W. R. C. were present. In the afternoon they visited the fair in a body. This was the largest reunion ever held in the state since the organization of the two orders.

Is Free of Encumbrance.

The congregation of the Central Congregational church feel that they are to be congratulated over the fact that they now have a neat, spacious and comfortable meeting place that is absolutely free of encumbrance and they paid for it themselves. The house of worship now occupied by them, situated at the corner of Seventeenth and Chemeketa streets, was purchased from the First Congregational church, and formerly constituted the prayer meeting and Sunday school rooms as an addition to the church. This is the first building to have been erected by the congregation in its early days and it is treasured very highly by the pioneer members, who desire to preserve it as long as possible. Rev. P. S. Knight, who is among the first pastors to have preached in the original church house, and the oldest living Congregational minister of this city, is still pastor of the church at its new location. The building has been moved upon the grounds and is ready for occupancy. It cost $25,345, all of which was raised outside of the church.

(From Tuesday's Daily.)

Clark Estate Settled.
Alexander Clark was yesterday discharged by the Marion county court as administrator of the estate of Jane Leonard, deceased, the estate having been fully administered upon.

Asks for Pardon.
V. G. Cozad, an attorney of Prairie City, was in the city yesterday, having presented a petition to the governor for the pardon of John A. Chrisman, who is serving a twelve-year sentence in the penitentiary for manslaughter.

Clerk Issues Another License.
Thomas M. Mickel and Hallie A. Clemens secured a marriage license from County Clerk Roland yesterday, the affidavit being furnished by Mollie Clemens. This brings the total number of permits for the month to thirty-seven.

Dredge at Work.
A large steam dredge arrived in this city yesterday from down the river, and will begin work today at the mouth of Mill creek dredging out the gravel in order that the river steamers may have sufficient water to land at the Salem flouring mill's dock when they desire to ship flour or feed by boat.

Adopt Orphan Boy.
By the usual proceedings, held in the Marion county court yesterday, Benjamin G. Doyens, a minor, was adopted by Mr. and Mrs. John Doyens as their legal child. The minor is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Doyens, both of whom are dead, and since the death of the parents he has been cared for by John Doyens and wife. The child is 13 years of age.

To Fair in Ganoe.
Ralph Oakley and Paul Van Scoy of Eugene arrived in this city yesterday afternoon on their way to the Lewis and Clark fair. They came down the river in their canoe, which is the result of the handwork of Oakley. The boys have a complete camping outfit along with them and intend to have a fine old time of it, both on the trip and at the fair, and while in Portland.

Will Pay Ward's Debts.
By order of the county court H. A. Thomas, as guardian of the person and estate of Adelia H. Greene, a person of unsound mind, was yesterday authorized to sell a portion of the real estate belonging to the ward, the proceeds to be used in paying her debts. The property to be sold is a strip of land forty-five feet wide off of the north side of lot 1 in block 26 of this city.

To Hear Final Accounts.
The final account of Jacob G. Miller, administrator of the estate of Elizabeth Burkholder, deceased, will be heard on July 31 at 1 p. m. The time for hearing the final account of Adeline Perry, an executrix of the estate of the late William Perry, and that of Carey F. Martin, as administrator of the estate of Emma McCracken, deceased, was fixed by Judge Scott on July 31, at 10 a. m.

Authorized to Sell Property.
County Judge Scott, sitting in probate, yesterday made an order authorizing William Garnjobst, as administrator, to sell certain real property belonging to the estate of John Hoff, deceased. The property consists of lots 10, 11 and 12 in Sunnyside fruit farm No. 2, and the north half of lot 7, block 40, in this city, and is to be sold at private sale. The proceeds of the sale are to be used in paying certain claims held against the estate.

Memorial Services.
The Modern Woodmen of America held their memorial exercises at their hall Sunday afternoon and then went to the cemetery, accompanied by the reform school band, which had been employed for the occasion. A short and impressive address was given by Rev. W. W. Edmonson, a member of the church. After the flowers were placed on the graves the members and friends took the car back for town. The band delivered some choice selections on the street.

For Sale.
That desirable tract of real estate containing 155 acres, with residence and buildings thereon, situated near Shaw, Marion county, Oregon, and owned by the estate of the late Mrs. Lydia Jane Brooks; also the following tract of real estate, 96108 feet with cottage, etc., thereon, in Central Park, Salem, Marion county, Oregon, owned by said estate. For particulars apply to Martha Jane Countiss, 355 Alder street, Portland, Oregon. Wm. Foley, Chamber of Commerce, Attorney for said estate. Dated June 26, 1905.

Armour Agent Here.
B. F. Little, agent for the Armour Refrigerator Car Service Company, arrived in this city last night and will be here for a couple of days. Mr. Little's headquarters are at Boise, Idaho, and Salt Lake City, Utah, in this section of the state taking orders for cars that will be required to carry fruit through to eastern markets this season. This is Mr. Little's first trip into this section of Oregon, and he is delighted with it. He has been at Portland during the past week, and has had an opportunity of looking over the Willamette valley, and finds it to be all that has been said of it. From here Mr. Little will go to Albany, Roseburg and Eugene.

Court Rejects Claim.
The matter of the claim of Benjamin Haymond against the estate of John Ashmond, deceased, was up for hearing in the probate court of Marion county yesterday. After listening to the testimony produced Judge Scott made an order rejecting the claim. The bill was for $400 alleged to be due the claimant from the estate for board and lodging furnished the deceased during his lifetime. The claim had been rejected by W. T. Riches, the administrator of the estate, and was then taken before the court with the same result.

Will Admitted to Probate.
The last will and testament of the late Amelia Tucker was yesterday admitted to probate in the Marion county court. The estate of the deceased at consists of personal property valued at about $5500, and by the terms of the will is to be divided as follows: To Rebecca Anna Simmons, a daughter of deceased, $2100 for attention and care of the mother for twenty-one years, the balance of the property to be equally divided between William M. Tucker of Santa Rosa, Cal., George B. Tucker of San Francisco, Luther A. Aueker of Lebanon, Or., and Rebecca Anna Simmons of Monitor, Or., all children of deceased. The latter is named in the will as executrix and is to serve without bonds. J. B. White, E. E. Limberg and J. T. Ross were appointed by Judge Scott to appraise the estate.

A THIRD LETTER

LIFE AT ONE OF THE GREAT MINES OF WESTERN AUSTRALIA DESCRIBED.

Down Where the Sun and Moon Looks Large and the Stars Seem So Near That You Might Climb to Them with A Ladder—An Interesting Country.

(The Salem people of fifteen years ago will remember Alice Wheeler, daughter of A. F. Wheeler, assistant state treasurer. She has many friends here yet who will be pleased to hear of her through a series of letters written from across the water, which the Statesman will take the liberty of publishing, though they were not written for publication. She was married two years ago to William Pomroy, a mining engineer, and their bridal journey was to Australia, where he was engaged as superintendent of mines at Day Dawn.)

Day Dawn, Western Australia, Nov. 9, 1903.—I'm almost afraid that you'll be disappointed in me for liking this country and this place so well, for we have been here but a short time, and you may say that we don't know yet whether we like the country or not. The trip from Colombo to Fremantle, the port of Western Australia, was without incident, and we are but scarcely settled, and perhaps not settled at all, but we are in love with Day Dawn, and our home is good enough for anybody.

The mining goes on continually, and from the office where I am writing I can hear the steady grint of the stamps. The sound is exactly like that of the ocean breaking upon the shore. There is good, honest work being done down here. There is production and advancement all around me, and I like the noise and bustle. How much better this is than living a life of idleness anywhere, especially in a big city. I have been down in the mine, 3000 feet below the surface of the ground, and have seen the operations as they daily take place, and am really becoming (in my mind) quite an expert in mining. The daily routine of life is much the same here as in other countries. We have breakfast at 8, dinner at 12:30, supper at 6, and tea at 8:30.

As I said in one of my previous letters, I go out riding every day, or almost every day. Yesterday and today I had the pleasure of Will's company, and we drove from 5 to 6:30 p. m. Both evenings the sunset was gorgeous. Last night the sky was a marvel. To the south a heavy storm with forked sheet lightning. We could see the rain coming down in great torrents, then in the west was that great old sun.

Perfectly enormous. And setting behind the grandest clouds. To the north the sky was clear and in the east the moon rose almost simultaneously with the sunset. The coloring those clouds and the sky took on was a study. We stopped the buggy and looked at it. To our right 200 yards away was a Turk's cabin built on a small hill. At the base of the hill and on the level ground a train of camels had halted, some standing, some half reclining, and on a shrub in front of the house stood three Mohammedans dressed in pure white, facing the sun and bowing low, at the same time kissing the earth and saying their prayers. They would kneel a while, then stand up, then kneel again and kiss the earth. It was a strange sight. Will and I thought we, too, could kiss the earth on such a night as that. Tonight the sky is clear—not a cloud—but the coloring rich and transcendently beautiful. How I wish you all might see this country. You would enjoy living here. There are some mountains, lava beds, many trees—millions of them, but all small. Wild flowers and peculiar grasses are abundant, growing in patches. The general color of the ground is terra cotta, and the roads are splendid. It is such fun to drive through the bushes. Every turn of the road brings to view a new picture. I am continually on the lookout for kangaroos and wild turkeys. They have evaded me so far.

The natives are coming in for the summer, and they are peculiar animals. They congregate in towns during the heat to get water. They are the lowest type of humanity, perfectly hairless, lazy creatures, with no aim in life or ambition of any sort. They simply exist. They eat bugs and snakes; are filthy beyond description, and sleep most of the time. I forgot to tell you that all houses in this country are constructed of corrugated iron, with double walls and roof, as a protection against heat; are of one story in height and painted white from roof to ground.

This is a great country for grapes. From our back porch wire netting extends from floor to roof, and on this netting the vines trail. We have three vines running up, and they are loaded with fruit, and the grapes will be ripe about the end of November.

padding was not garished with holly. You doubtless say, "What a horrible Christmas!" It was horrible all right; it was jolly and happy. And our dinner? Well, here is the menu:

Clear soup; crackers; two roasted ducks, stuffed; parsnips; vegetable marrow; peas; brown and white bread; stuffed tomato salad; chow chow; salted almonds; plum pudding; fruit cake; chocolate creams; ginger; candied cherries; nuts and raisins; oranges; ale, and applanaris.

"We had after-dinner coffee on the veranda a half hour later. It was a Joe Dandy dinner, and we had the company of congenial friends to help us eat it. I have been down deep into the mine three times now, and it is jolly good fun. The output of gold is now over $400,000 per month.

I think that I have spoken of the good roads here, and I wish to say again that they are uncommonly good, and a drive over them is exhilarating. Every few yards brings a new scene before you; now you drive through scrubby bush; now you come upon a huge outcrop of quartz, granite or slate; now you are upon a desert waste where nothing grows. Here a vast salt lake confronts you—dry in summer, but full of water in the winter. Now you see in the distance a range of mountains, now a forest of tall, graceful trees over you—all the while seeing at hills by the dozens and constantly driving over the remains of those who, industrious little fellows, who are crossing the road intent upon some good undertaking, I mean. Birds there are in plenty where the brush is thick and tall, and their nests are in evidence every where. Then there are numerous varieties of flowers, most of which are everlasting and of wonderful coloring. There are plenty of kangaroos about now, though I have yet to see one. Wild turkeys are much sought for on account of their delicate flesh, but they occur farther north and east and farther from the haunts of man—so am told. Snakes may be found on hills which are carpeted with broken quartz, but such places I leave religiously alone. Then you may accidentally stumble upon a native camp, though there is really no camp. They build a small fire and roast their kangaroos and snakes over it and eat the flesh from their fingers. They are dressed in filthy rags, and some of the women are tall, unwomanly and all of them are but skin and bones, and are repulsively ugly to look at. The men treat the women cruelly, beating them at times until the flesh is lacerated. Then they (the men) quarrel among themselves and are wholly without moral stamina. There are very few full blood natives left, and they, like the American Indians, can read their doom in the setting sun. They are the lowest and most degraded of all aborigines and, although they despise each other, they have great respect for and a wholesome fear of the white man. If a white man should do an injury to a native the black would straight way resent such injury just as a wild animal of ferocious nature would do. There being little surface water here, the natives and their dogs, you can imagine how sweetly they smell. They are a hard lot.

The sky and ground colorings are wonderfully beautiful here; especially is the sky attractive when it is flecked with clouds. The other night the clouds over head took on a blood-red hue fully three-quarters of an hour after sunset, showing at what great height they must have been hanging. The sun is here three times bigger; yes, and four times, than it is with you, and the moon as well. The stars shine out brightly, and seem abnormally large, having an appearance of hanging so low in space that an ordinary ladder would take you to them. From this you can see how clear and pure the atmosphere is here.

As you drive about the country you come upon "prospects" by the score; some in their infancy; some well along; some abandoned; all being or having been worked by men hoping to gain fame and fortune each succeeding hour. Then there will be great patches of up-turned ground left by "dry blowers." These people have a simple screening machine worked by a belt. This machine blows away the clay, sand, etc., leaving only the gold remaining. It is a sort of dry-wash process. They manage to earn small wages this way, though of course there is little gold on the surface, or near the surface as the winter's rains beat it down to bed-rock. Most of the gold in this country occurs in sulphates. There are no nuggets here. It takes a scientist to tell gold-bearing rock (and a chemist as well).

The banking methods here are peculiar. A charge of 10s or 6d is made to the customer on December 31, and another charge of the same amount June 30 of each year. Keeping the money could with—much the same as at home, but the prices are a little higher. Our flour comes mostly from Oregon, as does also the lumber for the inside finishing of houses. And all kinds of furniture for home or office is of United States production. Our heating and cooking stoves come from America, and on all sides one is greeted with familiar objects, which are constant reminders of home.

BIG CONVENTION

FOUR STATES WILL CONTRIBUTE TO SUCCESS OF EDUCATIONAL CONGRESS.

Educators from Oregon, Idaho, Washington and Montana, Original Territory of Lewis and Clark Discovery, to Meet at Exposition in August.

(From Saturday's Daily.)
Educators of four states of the northwest, the country originally discovered by the great Lewis and Clark, will combine to make the educational congress that is to be held at the big exposition in Portland in August and September, a brilliant success. The committees having the matter in charge have prepared a splendid program for the six days through which it is to run, and during those days there will be present eminent educators from all over the country to contribute to the great work that is expected to be accomplished.

This congress is assured of a magnificent attendance on the part of the teachers from Oregon, and especially from Marion county, where it will replace the annual teachers' convention that is held by direction of statute in this state. The legislature of last winter, by special act, dispensed with the conference for this year that the educational congress at Portland might be a success. Marion county has held no conference this spring, and this is true of most counties in the state, all holding off with the purpose of assisting at the one in Portland.

The committee of arrangements has secured the presence of such men as Hon. A. S. Draper, commissioner of education for New York; Frank Rigler, state superintendent of schools, Portland; F. Louis Soldan, city superintendent of schools of St. Louis, Mo.; A. H. Yoder of the University of Washington; M. B. Brumbaugh of the University of Pennsylvania; J. H. Ackerman, state superintendent of public instruction of Oregon; H. M. Leipsiger, supervisor of lectures in the public schools of New York City; E. A. Bryan, president of the Washington State college; Hon. Howard J. Rogers, assistant commissioner of education of New York; F. L. Campbell, president of the University of Oregon; Benjamin I. Wheeler of the University of California, and Samuel McCune Lindsay of the University of Pennsylvania.

Sessions are to be held from 9 to 12 in the morning, and it is possible that evening sessions may also be held. Afternoons will be left open to give the teachers an opportunity to visit the exposition. Each day's work will be opened with some musical number rendered by the Exposition band.

The daily program for the congress follows:

August 28.
Concert by the Exposition band. Convocation address—Hon. W. T. Harris, U. S. Department of Education, of Eugene. Address—"Unsettled Questions in the Organization and Administration of Schools," Hon. A. S. Draper, commissioner of education for the state of New York.

August 29.
General department—elementary and secondary education, including the kindergarten. Address—"The Problem of Classification," Mr. Frank Rigler, state superintendent of schools, Portland, Or. Address—"Education in a Democracy," Mr. F. Louis Soldan, city superintendent of schools, St. Louis, Mo.

August 30.
General department—Normal schools and the education and training of teachers. Address—"Social Conditions and Elementary Education," Prof. A. H. Yoder, department of pedagogics, State University of Washington. Address—"The Making of a Teacher for a Republic," Mr. M. B. Brumbaugh, department of pedagogics, University of Pennsylvania.

August 31.
General department—The extension of the school house in the large city and the problem of the rural school. Address—"The Problem of the Rural School," Hon. J. H. Ackerman, state superintendent of public instruction for the state of Oregon. Address—"Adult Education and the Extension of the School House," Prof. H. M. Leipsiger, supervisor of lectures in the public schools of the city of New York.

September 1.
General department—Technical and industrial education. Address—"The Higher Agricultural Education," President E. A. Bryan of Washington State college. Address—"Education in Reference to Our Future Industrial and Commercial Development," Hon. Howard J. Rogers, assistant commissioner of education for the state of New York. Address—"Manual Training," Prof. H. M. Leipsiger.

September 2.
General department—Colleges and universities. Address—"Education and the State," President P. L. Campbell, University of Oregon. Address—"The Relation of the Pacific Coast to Education in the Orient," Prof. Benjamin I. Wheeler, University of California. Address—"Education for Efficiency and the Demands of Modern Business," Prof. Samuel McCune Lindsay, Wharton School of Finance and Commerce, University of Pennsylvania. The committees on arrangements are: From the Lewis and Clark congress—J. R. Wilson, chairman; W. G. Elliot, secretary; W. W. Cotton, W. L. Brewster, E. P. Hill, R. W. Montague and S. S. Wise. From the executive committee of educators—J. H. Ackerman, chairman, state superintendent of Oregon; R. B. Bryan, state superintendent of Washington; Miss Mae E. Scott, state superintendent of Idaho; W. E. Harmon, state superintendent of Montana; W. M. Ferrin, D. A. Grout and J. C. Zinsler.
