STORIES AND WHISKEY ALIKE.
"Like chestnuts and Kentucky whiskey, good stories are better when a little old," said E. K. Leonard of New York, who was at the Seelbach last night. "And I know of none which better illustrates the peculiarities of a true-blooded Irishman than this:
"A friend of mine was the proprietor of a small stable which he kept in New York state. One summer he hired an Irishman who had just arrived from the green-tinted isle. After having him about the place he set him to work whitewashing a fence.
"Late in the afternoon he passed Pat, working away as if all the furies were closely pursuing him.
"'What's the matter, Pat, you seem in a hurry,' he said.
"'Sure and I am,' replied the Irishman, as he exhibited a bucket almost empty. 'I've got to finish this job before me paint runs out.'
'Irishmen may be made the butts of many very poor jokes and a few good ones, but they really say some laughable things at times," said J. O. Winn, of New Albany, N. Y., who was at the Galt House last night. "I was in Buffalo last week and was watching the progress of a new building which was rapidly reaching skyward. An Irishman was in charge of an elevator-like arrangement which carried a bucket to the fourth story and then let it slide down a wire cable.

"By some unaccountable means Pat got caught in the bucket and was whirled rapidly to the fourth floor. The bucket was loosened and slid back, letting Pat come in contact with the pavement with no particular concern for his feelings. A friend on the second floor, who had watched the sudden flight and return, rushed to a window and shouted:
"'Pat, me b'y, are ye hurri!'
"'Don't talk to me, ye spalpeen,' said Pat. 'I passed ye twit and ye never so much as nodded.'"—Courier-Journal.

N. C. GOODWIN'S MISTAKE.
It was in the days when Nat Goodwin was not so wealthy and famous as he is now, says the Boston Herald. He strolled to the letter box in a theatre where he was playing and drew out a single letter, addressed to him. The writing was unfamiliar, the postmark told him nothing and he opened it hurriedly. One glance was enough—it was a tailor's bill. Goodwin looked it over carefully, then replaced it in the envelope and wrote:
"'Opened by mistake. N. C. Goodwin.'"
Employer—Ah, George, good morning. I hope everything is well at home today.
Clerk—Yes, sir, thank you.
Employer—Mother, grandmother, father, sister and brothers—all well?
Clerk—Yes, indeed! Never better in their lives.
Employer—I'm very glad to hear it. There's one of the greatest ball games of the season today, and I was afraid if it might have had a fatal effect on some member of the household—New York Press.
"Did you see that 'personal' that Magruder was writing?"
"I couldn't see it."
" Well, what does he mean by saying, 'Return at once and all will be forgiven and forgotten.' Has his wife left him?"
" No, his cook."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
Mr. Easterner—This place must be pretty well civilized by now.
Apache Abe—Wa-al, stranger, I should smile! Why, we only had six killed last week!
Mr. Easterner—What! Six killed? And you call that being civilized?
Apache Abe—Sure, stranger. They was killed by a civilized way—by Squire Perkins' new automobile.—Judge.
The venerable college president had been invited to address the Bachelor Girls' club, numbering a hundred or more. "I see now," he said, looking around at the fair young faces and sparkling eyes before him, "that Mr. Rockefeller is right when he says the country is still full of opportunities for our young men."—Chicago Tribune.
Miss Stimpurse—Wasn't Mr. Hard-uppe terribly embarrassed when he proposed to you?
Miss Gotrox—Financially, perhaps; not otherwise.—Philadelphia Record.

Little Fruit Moving.
Light demand and light supply still rule in the fruit markets. Some Southern Oregon and California grapes come in by express and are held for good figures, but the grape season is considered virtually over and few buyers appear.
Good apples are scarce and high also and there are few receipts of the inferior qualities. The fruit market has not recovered from the drop it sustained immediately on the close of the Fair, and dealers are wondering why. Scarcity and high prices render the situation still more unsatisfactory.
Market Notes.
Fancy grades of potatoes are scarce, but inferior qualities are plentiful. Scarcity of freight cars is giving considerable trouble to dealers in fancy stocks.
Poultry dealers look for a quiet market until Thanksgiving. Stocks were cleaned up with considerable difficulty Saturday.
Fresh salmon are plentiful, but no decline has taken place in the price.
Block hogs and the better qualities of mutton are in demand at good prices.
Comb honey has advanced from 1c to 2c and is quoted at 13c.

PERFECTSTREAM
SATURDAY BANNER DAY IN NUMBER OF VOTES CAST IN SUBSCRIPTION CONTEST.
There is a Chance for a Couple of Good Workers in District No. 1. Miss Bessie Smith is Again Second in District No. 2.
Over 50,000 votes were cast on Saturday, and nearly every one of the contestants were benefitted by the votes that were cast.
For some unknown reason there were several miscounts when the ballots were footed up and several of the candidates did not receive the proper amount of votes. However, this has been fixed up and all have received credit for every vote that was cast in her favor, and the management will be sure that this will not happen again. If at any time you think that you do not receive the proper credit for the votes that you put in, do not be afraid to come to the office and have the votes counted again. We are always glad to accommodate any and all of the contestants, especially where the votes are concerned. Several times we have been asked, "What is done with the votes after the contest has closed?" For the information of those who have overlooked the statement of the fact, we will say that every vote that is sent in to this office is counted and then filed away, so that if the contestants desire it the votes can all be counted again at the end of the contest. This insures that everything is perfectly straight and honest, and that everyone has the same opportunity to win one of the prizes.
THREE SPECIAL OFFERS THIS WEEK.
If you do not take advantage of the special offers this week you will have missed one of the best weeks of the season, and you will lose the best opportunity of the season to get a good reserve for the closing days. Every one of the contestants has the same chance, and those that came into the contest lately have a good start. There are only four more weeks after this one, so you will have to hurry if you wish to win one of the prizes. The house is almost completed and the piano is now on exhibition at the Salem store of Allen & Gilbert-Ramaker Co., who are well known as sellers of the very best of pianos.
A BEE LINE BUGGY ALSO REPRESENTS ONE OF THE PRIZES, AND THE ONE THAT RECEIVES IT IS SURELY TO BE CONGRATULATED. And the trips. Who would not like to take such a trip as one of those the Statesman is going to give? And last, but not the least, is the Scholarship in the business college. Other things may come and go, but when one has taken a course in the CAPITAL BUSINESS COLLEGE she has something that will stay with her forever. A total of eleven prizes to be given away. Are you going to be one of the lucky ones? If not, why not? Do not think because some of the others have a few more votes than you have that you ought to stop. On the contrary, you want to put forth a greater effort than ever before and show them that you can and will win one of the prizes with the help of your friends. Now is the time. Do not delay, but take advantage of the special offer this week and get a large number of votes and thereby win one of the prizes. In the first district there seems to be only one candidate working. HERE IS A CHANCE FOR SOME ONE TO GET ONE OF THE PRIZES EASILY, by starting in and working at the last moment, as there are going to be two prizes for every district. No matter how many votes some other district may have, each of the districts will receive two prizes just the same.
Following is the way the candidates lined up at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Sheep—Market for feeders.
Mixed ewes and wethers, 3 1/2c@4c. Veal—Dressed, 4c@6c, according to quality.
Portland, Oct. 30.—Dressed veal is the only commodity on Front street that is considered over-abundant. Large calves are being received by almost every commission house, and besides these, large quantities of veal are sent direct to retail butchers from the dairies adjacent to Portland. Prices have dropped for the best qualities, while the larger sizes can hardly be gotten rid of at all.
Some carcasses are being placed in cold storage, but this is not a profitable move, as veal does not do well under the chilling process, and soon decays on its withdrawal from cold storage.
"All the dairymen of the adjacent country seem anxious to get rid of their surplus calves at this time," one commission man said this morning, "and they don't seem to care what the product brings in the city. We have repeatedly urged them to hold the supply of milk and cream, but the number of dairy cows has increased materially this Fall and the usual shortage of dairy products does not materialize.
The same causes that weaken the prices of veal calves weaken the price of butter, although quotations have not been actually reduced. A decline in price is the only remedy for the piling up of fancy creamery butter, according to dealers in dairy products.

don—Pacific Coast, easy, 22@23.
