

STATE FAIR GROUNDS ARE REVOLUTIONIZED

Improvements and Changes Made Everywhere

COMFORTS AND CONVENIENCE

Now Fences, New Walks, New Buildings For Man and Beast.

Have you been to the State Fair grounds lately?

If you haven't you have missed seeing the most complete and serviceable set of improvements ever made in or around the city at one effort.

The pleasing change will meet you at the gate as you step from the train or street car and will greet you at every step throughout the entire grounds and the numerous buildings thereon.

You will find the oak trees in the camp grounds nicely trimmed to symmetrical tops and as soon as the moss can be removed by leaf-spraying, the trunks of these trees will be whitewashed about 15 feet high which, with the green foliage of summer, will make a setting at once attractive to the passer-by and cheerful and inviting to the guest who is a visitor.

To obviate the necessity of tying horses to the trees, two rows of sheds have been built from old lumber removed from other buildings, furnishing room for 210 head of horses—one row on the north side and one on the south—and these will be whitewashed and kept neat looking.

Approaching the ticket gate the eye catches a substantial white painted paling fence 6 feet 6 inches high surrounding the entire grounds, and a deep ditch which extends for a mile through the grounds to carry off all surface water which has heretofore made things disagreeable.

Grounds Beautified. Upon entering you find that the buildings have been all repaired and nicely painted, white body and green roof, and the intention is to make all the concessionaires who have buildings fronting the pavilion either fix up and paint them or tear them out.

Revolution in Pavilion. Within the pavilion a great revolution has been wrought. With the materials procured from the Lewis and Clark fair, the floor has been partitioned off into spaces for county and other exhibits, with large posts, trestle trusses, nice pyramids, new tables and shelving, handsome moldings, cornice and lettering, all being of a permanent character, which will do away with the usual hammering, tearing, racking and tireless delay incident to the changes and setting up of exhibits each year.

S.S.S. OUR RECORD

OREGON BARLEY

NOT ENOUGH RAISED HERE TO WARRANT STARTING A MALTING PLANT.

The Manager of the Salem Brewery Association is Compelled to Ship Malting Material From Wisconsin Until Oregon Farmers Grow Some.

F. G. Deckbach, manager of the Salem Brewery, was in Portland yesterday and Lester Davis, now the interview manipulator on the Telegram, got hold of him and pumped a story that may be of considerable interest to farmers in this part of the valley.

"There is no getting around the question," said F. G. Deckbach, manager of the Salem Brewery association, who is a guest at the Imperial. "The farmers of Oregon must get down to diversified farming or it will be only a question of time until they feel their land worn out and it will take years of work and expenditure to bring it back to its original productive form."

The Salem Brewery association has in contemplation the erection of a malting plant in connection with its brewing plant at Salem, but Mr. Deckbach says there is a question of the advisability of such a move unless the Willamette valley farmers pay more attention to the preservation of their land, as under present conditions the brewery is obliged to purchase the greater portion of its malt in Wisconsin.

"We do not use very much of the valley barley for malting purposes," he said, "but have to import our malting material from Wisconsin. The farmers of that state are educated and experienced in the value of diversified farming, and so they raise two succeeding crops of the same product on their land. The result is their barley is harder, drier and sweeter and commands a good market."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube.

HIGH PRICE FOR MUTTONS. Seven dollars a head is the figure that was offered for a band of sixty sheep, nearly all ewes, on the Tomlinson farm near Wells, the other day.

The interesting part of the story is that the offer was refused. The buyer wanted the bunch for mutton so it is said. The extremely low price of cattle and the very good price for sheep is a subject of every-day wonder among those interested in the subject. -Corvallis Times.
