

LOCAL AND GENERAL NEWS

Itemized Account of Doings in City and Country.

Supreme Court. SALEM, March 12, 1888. S. M. W. Hudson, app. vs. Rank Edgar, resp.; appeal from Crook county. Judgment of the lower court reversed and a new trial ordered. Opinion by Strahan, J.

Before a Referee. The case of John Munch vs. Kratz, Washburne & Co., is being heard by referee, H. P. Boise, Jr., in this city to-day. The point in dispute is the partition of the Rickard Flouring Mills property, at Dixie, Polk county, which was thrown into the hands of a receiver by the plaintiff Munch some months ago.

Confirmation Services. Archbishop Gross was in the city over Sunday, and at high mass yesterday administered the sacrament of confirmation to a large number of the younger members of the congregation. The Archbishop preached a very powerful sermon, and gave an admirable lecture of instruction and congratulation to the children who had just received the sacrament.

Linn County Court. Hon. R. P. Boise left on the morning train to-day for Albany, to hold the regular March term of court for Linn county. His health is now quite good and he anticipates no difficulty in preventing his holding the session.

Sanitation to be Established Here. Dr. J. C. Gilbert, whose name has during the past six months become familiar all over the valley as a lecturer on physiological and psychological subjects, has rented three rooms in the new bank block, and will locate here for the practice of his profession about the 1st of next month.

Prohibition Delegates. The following delegates to the prohibition county convention, which meets in Salem on the 16th, were elected at the primaries held last Saturday: East Salem—Dr. W. B. Magers, Dr. J. W. Wyatt, Prof. T. C. Jory, Samuel Raup, Seth R. Hammer, B. Chapman and E. W. Starr; South Salem—H. S. Jory, John P. Roberts, E. H. Piper, W. P. Murphy, John W. Jory.

Tax Collections. The delinquent tax notices sent out by Sheriff Minto last week are hustling the taxpayers up to great shape and the coin is just rolling in to the sheriff's box. All unpaid county taxes are now delinquent and it is only by the grace of the sheriff that costs of collection and five per cent. allowed by law is not added.

Farm Burned. Some time during Friday night the barn of a farmer named Heigels, living several miles from Mohama, in Linn county, was burned to the ground. The barn was new and contained a quantity of hay. The origin of the fire is supposed to be incendiary. Heigels was away from home at the time. The loss in all will aggregate $400 or $500.

Prohibition Speakers. It is now definitely settled that John P. Starr, of Kansas, will be in Oregon next month and will stump the state for the prohibitionists. He will speak here on or about April 8th. Walter S. Mills, "the little giant from Ohio," will speak here on the 27th of this month.

LOCAL NOTES.

Sam Munch and V. Kratz, of Dixie, are in the city.

Sam P. Weston, city editor of the Portland Mercury, is in the city.

The family of Hon. R. P. Earhart left to-day for their new home in Portland.

A little daughter of Mr. J. W. Crawford is reported very seriously ill with measles.

Late Savage returned this morning from San Francisco, having given up his eastern trip.

Our local matter is short to-day, much being crowded out by important telegraph news.

King O'Malley, the wild Irishman, who lectured last November on prohibition, has located in Portland.

Hon. George S. Washburne, the well-known attorney of Eugene, is in the city, attending to legal business.

J. D. Jordan, of this city, was taken quite ill several days ago at his place on the Molalla; but at latest report was recovering.

Scott Bozarth has severed his connection with the Capital Adventure Co., and leaves tomorrow for Astoria where he will go into business.

Mrs. Surryjohn has been very ill with inflammatory rheumatism, at the residence of her father, Dr. J. W. Wyatt, in this city is improving.

State Superintendent McElroy returned on Saturday night's train from Morrow county, where he had been looking after educational interests.

Jerome W. Caldwell, of Rock Island, Illinois, a half-brother of R. C. Hawley and a nephew of J. Q. A. Wilson, is here visiting the latter and will probably remain several weeks.

Hon. Perry Raymond, city councillor from the first ward, is in the city and will remain several days preparatory to his final removal to Portland. Mr. Raymond is one of our most energetic citizens and Salem's loss will be Portland's gain.

Hal Patton, son of T. McF. Patton, while riding a bicycle yesterday morning, got an umbrella, which he was carrying in his hand, tangled up in the wheel and took a "header."

The new incandescent electric light system was given a trial last night, but owing to some flaw in the circuit did not work as well as was expected. The difficulty will be obviated to-day and the lights will shine with their guaranteed brilliancy to-night.

The county court before its adjournment last Saturday considered the petition for and remonstrance against the proposed county bridge at the foot of Commercial street. Action in the matter deferred until the April term of court.

ED. JOURNAL:—In the Saturday's issue of your most excellent journal, appeared an able and well written article on the duties and privileges of us Prohibs. The article in question suggests the propriety of the organization (of which I am a humble member) keeping its phalanx solid for temperance by uniting to vote for only such men as will give us proper legislation. If we stand firm and demand this, neither party will dare ignore our influence and both parties will nominate our kind of men. Then we can vote the old party ticket if we choose, or select such as in our judgments seem best. Can we accomplish as much by any other action? I think not. If we make a separate nomination, we will be in the minority when we come to the polls, and the party will obtain an edict that it should not assume. The Prohibitionist I believe to be right in theory and practice, and yet I am convinced that by continuing a separate organization—especially by putting a separate ticket in the field—we will jeopardize our cause more than I can tell, and place the emancipation of our people farther off than we think. We would consider the man very foolish indeed who standing on the river's brink, saw his friend drowning in mid stream, would rush to and nearly if not quite drown himself and let that friend perish, from the fact that the two boats lying there with oarsmen at his service were not manned as he would man them. My brethren, are we more consistent if we put a third party in the field?

ALMOST DONE UP BROWN.

The Big Bull Outwitted, Outfought and Almost Licked by the Wily, Plucky Englishman.

The thirty-ninth round was exceptionally tedious, and the utmost fairness was shown by both men, and it was at times most amusing to see them close, and by consent separating in the most polite manner. Mitchell playfully tapping Sullivan. Much talking was done, and the intervals of conversation were usually followed with a smack! smack! and a rush, Mitchell each time getting away laughing.

Sullivan did not relish some of Mitchell's hits, but was gracious enough to acknowledge them with such remarks as "That's a good one, Charlie," and so on, Sullivan's right eye getting in mourning, and his lips swelling, while the bump on Mitchell's forehead had become redder and bigger. No blood came from the latter, Sullivan's nose and lips trickled carmine. He would not have his moustache removed.

When two hours and a half had passed, in the thirty-seventh round, a reference to Smith and Kilrain caused tittering, but John, looking serious, would not reply.

The ground was now in a terrible state. Mitchell was frequently down on his hands, but got up quickly, and now seemed fresher and more confident than ever. There was, however, always a dangerous blow in John, but he did not rush to the fighting, Charlie being more inclined to plant one until Sullivan hit viciously and went for him. Charlie was always on the alert, and managed to get away. There was no use in John's racing after him; he was too agile. Frequently Mitchell, for a change, would take a walk around the ring, Sullivan standing still.

Some four times they mutually retired to their corners to get the clay off their shoes and refresh themselves. Then one would challenge the other. Mitchell seemed a little hurt in the first half, but later showed great generalship and scored best, but he appeared to be afraid of Sullivan's right.

A draw had been suggested, but it was declined, and between 4 and 5 o'clock all got impatient, as a finish seemed at least two hours off. Mitchell at last said: "Well, let us shake hands, or fight on, as John likes." Thereupon Baldock, who had been very troublesome, rushed in and joined their hands. Sullivan was nothing loth and both were fixed gently.

When the fight was over all present crowded around the principals, desirous of shaking their hands. Although the Sullivan party looked gloom, they soon relaxed. They said that John never was so "done up," and that it was inexplicable to them. Mitchell was like a cricket. Sullivan's body, right eye and mouth were more punished than Mitchell's, whose right eye and temple received most damage. Sullivan and Kilrain shook hands after the fight.

Mitchell has shown himself to be a most clever fighter as well as a boxer.

Excessive quietness prevailed at the ring side, and there was the utmost good order, and generally speaking, good humor all around. This was undoubtedly a model mill in various ways. The first half of the fight was good. In the second half the hitting was fierce, but the wails were absurdly long. This, however, suited Mitchell. The rain rendered the battle ground a mere marsh and this did not suit Sullivan. Sullivan's reputation as a terror is regarded by sporting men here as completely exploded. Mitchell took a lot of punishment early in the fight.

The grounds of J. A. Gross, at the depot hotel, Albany, says the Herald, are being converted into the most artistic bit of landscape gardening on the line of the O. & C. R. R., and will help to make the depot the most attractive one in Oregon. The long walks constructed up and down the track have been ornamented by neatly painted low railings, and the intervening grounds are artistically planted with choice flowers and evergreens.

The building is to be supplied with electric lights, which will add to its attractiveness. These improvements will serve as a good advertisement for Albany to the many people going and coming on the O. & C. road!

W. C. T. U. Annual Meeting. Annual meeting of W. C. T. U. Tuesday the 13th at 2.30 o'clock. A full attendance desired. Mrs. C. W. Scriber president.

PITR AND POINT.

Oregon Peach Bitters

About eighteen years ago I received a hurt in my back from a pile of lumber falling on me, and ever since had been troubled with weak kidneys more or less, and the last year very much. Through the recommendation of Henry Keen, I bought a bottle of H. K. Clark's Oregon Peach Bitters and before I had taken half the bottle I found a great relief from it. I believe it to be a splendid remedy for the kidneys, and heartily recommend it for the same. J. H. PORTER, Annsville, January 12, 1888.
