A SLANDERER REBUKED.

Inasmuch as Cleveland owes his elevation to the first magistracy to a preacher's garrulity, he must not take it amiss if an evil turn is once in a while done him by the cloth. Rev. C. N. Pendleton, of Worcester, Mass., has resorted to slander of the president's married life, and as his lying and evil speaking asperse the character of a lady whose worth is held in high esteem by all, unusual pains have been taken by lovers of fair play to refute the slander. It will be remembered that when Mrs. Cleveland's attention was called to the mouthings of this reverend slanderer by a lady in Worcester, she promptly replied with a stinging rebuke, which brought an abject apology from her assailant. "I pity the man and his calling," wrote the lady of the white house, "who has been made a tool and gave circulation to such wicked and heartless lies. I can wish women of our country no greater blessing than that their homes and their lives may be as happy, and that their husbands may be as considerate and affectionate as mine." Mr. Richard W. Gilder (the editor of the Century) and his wife confirm this testimony by saying: "So contented, happy and beautiful a home life as that of the white house it has seldom been one's good fortune to witness. Under the form of a slander upon the president, these libels are in reality an infamous attack on the peace and happiness of a woman universally respected and beloved."

It seems that Mr. Pendleton is known in Cleveland, Ohio, where he was pastor of a Baptist church for three years. He preached to small congregations and attracted no notice until he was invited in March of last year to address the Lincoln club, a republican organization composed mainly of lawyers. His speech was a vicious assault on the memory of Thomas Jefferson, whom he pronounced the most over-estimated man of his age, "The spiritual father of that party whose history is a crime." He called Jefferson a crafty, vindictive schemer, pig-headed, and an exceedingly bad man, one who "stooped to every species of meanness which was inherited by his party." His sentimentality, the speaker said, he derived from Rousseau; his alleged simplicity was political play-acting. He was suspicious, unscrupulous, the incarnation of democratic ideas. Whatever there is of anarchy and disorder, political crime and corruption in this country, we owe to Thomas Jefferson.

The club was indignant at such a tirade and lost no time in repudiating its sentiments, one of the members excoriating Pendleton at the next meeting in a speech, which was heartily applauded. Soon afterward the preacher's resignation was accepted by his church on account of the address and for other reasons. He then left for the east to look up another flock. He is described as a man of diminutive stature, and about 35 years old, and he wears the reputation of having a tongue considerably longer than his judgment.

COL. ROB. INGERSOLL'S remark when he arrived at Chicago, on the opening of the convention, was: "I never saw so many candidates, nor so many delegates without a candidate." This is confusing to politicians, of course, but eight hundred experts are now at work infusing order into their dislocated forces, and when the standard bearer is proclaimed all will fall into line with entire harmony. To-morrow the organizing of forces for an active campaign will begin.

Tiger Engine Co., No. 2 are talking of a steamboat excursion to take place soon.

ABOUT GRAIN CROPS.

Letters from Kansas speak of hot weather there, which is usual at this season, and the prospect of good crops owing to recent rains. This is a repetition of the experience of the farmers in that state the last two or three summers. Up to the end of June the corn will thrive, and delight the heart of the husbandman with the promise of an abundant yield; but the hot suns of July and August, unrelieved with any rainfall, destroy the work that was so well begun, and the promise of abundance fails of realization. At this time last year there had been an unusual breadth of corn planted in that state, and the flourishing condition of the crop charmed the eye of the beholder. Then a dry spell set in, the heat intensified, and chinch bugs began their destructive work. Toward the latter end of July a sirocco wind breathed over the broad prairies, the mercury ranging from 110 to 115 degrees. Two days of this furnace blast scorched the tassel, and in the corn fields thus affected there was no fructification. A ride through the state after this visitation would show cornstalks during a day's journey by rail, shrivcled up with the scorching they had endured and showing no sign of an ear. This experience having been visited on the Kansas and Nebraska farmers three years in succession, many of them expressed their intention to plant ninety day corn in future, because it ripens earlier in the summer, and thus escapes the peril of burning up during the dog days. The yield is one fourth less per acre, but diminished harvests are better than none at all.

Visitors to the Chicago convention are distressed with the heat, while in this favored land we are enjoying deliciously cool mornings and evenings, when a light blaze on the hearth is enjoyable. Abundant rains have saturated the earth, and the grain fields, the orchards and pasture lands are luxuriant. We wish an abundant yield of grain and hay to the farmers eastward of us, but if they wish to make this return to their labors a sure thing, their wisest plan would be to remove to a region where the climatic conditions are favorable.

OUTSIDE of the California delegates who are bawling themselves hoarse for Blaine, because they approve his anti-Chinese record, his great and increasing strength seems to lie in the belief that he can gain the Irish Catholic vote. This would give him New York state, and go far to securing him the election. Collusion would be charged against him in the campaign, and how far that would affect his candidacy it would be hard to say, but it would certainly be used against him for all it is worth. Then it is doubtful whether he could win any considerable share of the Irish vote. But with the Irish vote in New York he would carry that state, and this would give him the election. The nomination of the plumed knight might not be such consummate folly as many republicans have been inclined to think.

THE New York Herald which has always been a low tariff organ, has gone over to the protection camp, and last Sunday furnished its readers with a change of diet. Its bestie contained several columns of tariff literature in advocacy of high import duties, published by the American Protective league, a new political organization designed to counteract the influence and workings of the Free Trade club. This is a significant sign of the times.

AN unseemly contention between rival delegations from Virginia, headed by Mahone and J. S. Wise, was carried to the national convention, and the rival politicians began an indulgence in billingsgate, when they were promptly suppressed and referred to the committee on credentials. The quarrel was decided by seating fourteen of Mahone's party and ten of Wise's men.
