Thought They Were Artificial.

J. G. Wright and family are entertaining some friends from Colorado and we need not repeat it that they are charmed with our delightful winter weather.

A Smooth Victory.

Doug Minto is in the service of the sheriff of Multnomah county, and Wednesday performed a pretty neat feat by which the ends of justice were served and the plans of a scheming defaulter thwarted.

An idle joke, perpetrated thoughtlessly, oft times carries with it results which time itself cannot eradicate.

He Buys Acre Property.

Amos Grover of Columbus, Ohio, is in the city and yesterday effected the purchase of a thirty-four acre tract immediately south of the passenger depot.

When it is observed that nearly every day some parties from the states farther east come here to invest their money, we are admonished that the eyes of many are turned upon Salem as a field for safe investment.

Large Number of Patients.

Marion county, and in fact the whole state, is furnishing an extraordinary number of insane patients for the asylum, which now contains a larger number of patients than it has at any previous time.

Catch the shadow ere the substance fades, is good advice, and especially is the truth of this demonstrated when you speak of the frequency with which one dear friend or another is hurried away. You'll regret too late that you did not have your friend or relative visit Sperry the Artist and have a perfect likeness taken. Heed the moral—go now before it is forever too late. tf.

Watch the footprints on the sidewalk. Where do they go? Up and down Commercial street until they come to the new bank block. Then they go up stairs. They go to Cherrington's—the artist. If you are looking for something nice for the holidays, go and see him. His work is the finest. Time is fleeting and Christmas is near. Be sure and give him time to finish your work up nicely. tf.

The reward for young Tascott, the murderer of the Chicago millionaire Snell, has been raised to $50,000, the largest reward ever offered for a human being. This amount the widow of the murdered man has offered in hopes that detectives will be induced to put forth their utmost endeavors to capture the fugitive. Tascott will indeed be a shrewd one if he eludes the many pursuers this reward will place on his trail.

SLAIN IN THE CUSTER MASSACRE.

A Mother's Pathetic Search for the Remains of Her Son.

A touching scene occurred at the Sherman house before the Indians left. Mrs. Catherine McLaughlin, of Galesburg, Ill., came to St. Paul a few days ago to wait the return of the Indians.

As Mrs. M. Laughlin approached the hotel she caught sight of him, and though she had never seen him she immediately identified him with the remark "there he is; that is the man." She walked, however, directly to John Grass, with the passionate appeal: "Where is my son?" Grass gazed at her in amazement. Her entry was sudden and her question was incomprehensible to him, both from its language and its import.

She repeated her inquiry just as Inspector Pritchard came up. Her companion explained to him the object of her search. Grass could give her no information. She turned away and walked up to Bull with the same question, with the appeal of her mother's heart. Bull understood no English, and looked at her sadly. She repeated her cry, bursting into tears. But only shrugged his shoulders and walked over to another window and resumed his former attitude.

You are an unfeeling, brutal murderer," exclaimed Mrs. McLaughlin, and left the hotel. She will call on Maj. McLaughlin. The latter remembers her son as a member of the Seventh cavalry, his remembrance being strengthened by the fact that his name was the same as his own. He says, however, that there is no possibility of her identifying her son's remains, as the unfortunate victim of this terrible affair were almost all so mutilated that identification was impossible, and the bodies were thrown into common graves.—Pioneer Press.
