SOMETHING ABOUT KOREA.

The dispatches announce that Denny, American advisor of the king of Korea, has returned to Seoul after a short stay there.

With not a cent to bury you to-morrow should you die, The keeper in the bar-room counting out his money;

His wife is in the parlor with well-dressed and so onny; Your wife has gone out working and washing people's clothes,

Method I hear him in the night, Trying to pacify from fright And guarding from mosquito's bite

And as he bears one on each arm, Longing in vain for peaceful calm, He wishes 'em on a baby farm—

Laying each child upon its back, He gropes to find the speck, And steps bare-footed on a tack—

He thinks of freedom long ago, And rest he'd long no longer know, And wonders, why should fate bestow

And later, sitting at his ease, While fair-haired cherubs climb his knees, Methinks I hear, "Thank God for these"

To cleanse the stomach, liver, and system generally, use Dr. Pierce's Pellets.
