THE CAPITAL EVENING JOURNAL.

THE CAPITAL JOURNAL. The Midnight Sun. A writer thus graphically describes a midnight sun scene, the sun sinking in the billowy deep and rising again from the turbulent waves: Imagine yourself in a ship at anchor looking west or straight in front of you. There is a broad expanse of sea a little to your right hand, behind you will be the rugged coast, and to your left the long narrow fjord between the islands and the mainland that the steamer had Has Been Enlarged just traversed. You watch the sun as it slowly, slowly sets; the islands and the coast look like a dark rich purple and the shadows cast by the ship's masts grow longer and longer. After a bit when the sun has sunk, apparently twelve feet from the Absolutely Pure. horizon, it stops and seems to remain This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness.
