Not Quite so Bad.

JOHNSTOWN, June 12.—To-day is the thirteenth since the disaster in the Conemaugh valley occurred, and the extent of the fatality can be approximated when it is known that bodies are still being found wherever men are at work. To-day one of the Morgue directors was met and asked the question: "How many bodies were recovered to-day?" "Oh, not very many," he replied. "There were fifty-eight all together." The loss of life has been so great that fifty bodies found in one day, even if that were the thirteenth, was considered a light showing. The remains that are now being removed from the drift are far advanced in decomposition, and the physicians in charge are advocating their cremation as fast as found, as it is almost impossible to hold them safely. The work of clearing away the debris is progressing very encouragingly. The men were not required to proceed today, but nine-tenths of them volunteered to continue, and, as a result, a large inroad was made in the drift in the central portion of the city. Main street, which was the principal thoroughfare, and one vast blockade is now about cleared. Work on the wreckage above the stone bridge is going on rather slowly. The force is small and the difficulties great.

Seventy-Two Killed.

DUBLIN, June 12.—An excursion train from Armagh was wrecked near that place to-day. The train contained 1200 persons, composing a Methodist Sunday school, including scholars, teachers and relatives. Seventy-two bodies have been taken from the wreck, and others are buried under the debris. Over 100 were injured.

Additional Local News.

Can't Find Their Wheat.

Those who had their last year's wheat in Frank Collin's warehouse at Monmouth are becoming thoroughly exercised over its present whereabouts. Among them are John and Jesse Stump, 2000 bushels; Ira Butler, 1000 bushels; S. S. Whitman, 1000 bushels; besides enough others to make 6000 bushels of wheat. These gentlemen hold receipts for 6000 bushels of this cereal stored there last fall. There is now no wheat in the warehouse, neither have they been able to get a settlement out of the warehouse man. He is said to have evaded them. He was to have met them at Independence Tuesday, but the wheat owners failed to find him. They were to meet him at Dallas yesterday, but he was said to have gone to Portland. They are confident all will come out right but are at present on the anxious seat. The cause of the uneasiness is that the warehouse man had a great many bushels of wheat to spoil on his hands. This he shipped, but it would not be received. It is possible the 6000 bushels missing was among this.

The emblems are beautiful and convey grand thoughts to the initiated. The mosque is now open at several cities and pilgrims who enter will be received by the order and the mysteries of the Orient revealed to them. Eleven lodges have been organized in Washington territory and four in Oregon, one at The Dalles, Albina, Portland and McMinnville. This order is destined to be one of the largest in the United States.
