FRIDAY, JUNE 14, 1899

Assisting the Sufferers.

Responding to the call of Mayor Williams, the following resolutions were passed by the citizens of Salem, in mass meeting assembled:

Whereas, the city of Seattle has recently suffered from a disastrous fire, totally destroying the business portion and necessitating the rendering of temporary aid to a large number of its citizens, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we extend to our neighbors assurances of our sincere sympathy in their great misfortune, and urge upon our own citizens such a liberal response in the way of contributions for aid as is commensurate with the necessities of the occasion.

The mayor was requested to act on behalf of the subscribers in forwarding all funds raised to the authorities at Seattle.

To Illustrate Salem.

The West Shore for August will contain exhaustive illustrations of Salem. The board of trade has placed its order for 15,000 copies aside from the regular edition and these will be placed in the hands of as many persons who are inquiring about the land where rolls the Oregon. This will no doubt be money well placed, as this magazine has always given Salem good honest work which brought in good results. By the way, the advertising committee of the board of trade has, up to the present time, neglected to contract with this paper for even so much as one line of advertising or the issuing and sending out of a single copy. Meanwhile the Oregonian, West Shore and other foreign papers are paid hundreds upon hundreds of dollars, Salem!

Swallowed Some Lye.

Yesterday evening the little four-year-old son of A. T. Gilliam and wife, who reside at 394 Winter street, while playing in the yard, swallowed the contents of an old concentrated lye box or vial. The child had crawled under the house where he found the poison, and child-like put it to his lips and swallowed it. He was soon taken ill and at seven o'clock, when the JOURNAL reporter called at the house, the boy was unconscious and very restless. Upon the arrival of Dr. Hall anti-dotes were administered and he gave it as his opinion that with careful nursing the patient might recover. Mr. Gilliam is lately here from Illinois, and is employed at the agricultural works.

The Motor Line.

As shown in the JOURNAL last evening a company has been incorporated in Salem, the object of which is to build and operate a motor line between Salem and Silverton. The sum for which the incorporation is licensed is $75,000 and the number of miles of railway proposed to be constructed is about sixteen. This would be over an easy grade and could be constructed at a very light cost, comparatively. The projected line would penetrate a section of the Willamette valley rich in undeveloped resources, though already wealthy in those developed. There would be a vast amount of freighting aside from the large shipments of grain and fruits that must be transported over this route.

Circuit Tickets Free.

To any one buying goods to the amount of $15 from us in the next four days, we will furnish a free ticket to the circus, with car fare to and from the grounds and to those buying goods to the amount of $1 on the day of the circus, will be given a car ticket free of charge, good for fare both ways on the Salem street railway.

Tickets can be obtained from us on the day of the circus.

Cox & Rogers, Grocers, 249 Commercial St., Salem, Or.

Heavy Travel.

The northbound passenger list was extremely heavy this morning. The train was compelled to run in two sections. It is noticed of late that the travel northward has been steadily increasing for several months. It is this fact that gives credence to the frequent rumor that an extra train each way will soon be put on.

University Students Leaving.

A large number of university students are departing for their homes to-day, which makes large crowds at all trains. The young folks think it is hard to part, as some of them may never meet again.

O. P. BEARDSLEY IS ACQUITTED.

The Jury After a Few Hours Return a Verdict of Not Guilty.

Arguments in the Beardsley case closed before the court adjourned for supper last evening and as soon as Judge Boise had pronounced his instructions they retired to consider. Late in the evening the jury applied for information regarding the degrees of manslaughter and murder and their punishment, after receiving which they retired. They reached a verdict early in the night, but could not deliver it until court reassembled this morning at 8:30.

After the instructions of the judge had been heard there no longer remained a doubt as to what verdict the jury might return. The instruction, favored the defense at every turn. Even in the release of the jury the defense was favored. It was never before known, perhaps, in the history of Oregon, where a jury before which was being tried a man accused of wilful murder, was permitted to separate at noon and night, each man being allowed to go his own way. But the trial is over and the murderer of Perryman is once more a free man—free to go where he chooses and when. The instructions of license him and every other man to boldly shoot down whomsoever he may live in fear of. This is the expression of a great many cool-headed citizens. It may be expected Polk county is excited. They think justice has been defeated. They say they cannot look to the courts for justice.

Public opinion is greatly divided on the outcome of this trial. A number are to be found who pronounce the instructions as just and in the line of the evidence. They cannot see how the outcome could have been otherwise. This opinion, however, is held by the minority.

One gentleman, who had heard the trial from beginning to ending, told a JOURNAL reporter this morning when the verdict was read that "the trial was a farce all the way through and should not be countenanced in a civilized country."

The jury was composed of the following named gentlemen: Wm. Fry, Joseph Ashby, James Coleman, Frank Buskas, I. M. Wagner, John Looney, T. H. McIntyre, Samuel Stauffer, J. J. Barnett, James Batchelor, E. X. Molsan, Adam Ohmart.

The verdict as returned by the jury in open court at 8:40 this morning is as follows:

"We, the jury empaneled in the case of the State of Oregon vs. O. P. Beardsley, find the defendant not guilty."

I. M. WAGNER, Foreman.

There was not a great crowd present when the verdict was read, it being so early in the morning. Many of those present were from Polk county. A deadly silence stole over the halls of justice, high above which the Goddess stood with balance in hand and eyes blindfolded, as the brief verdict was read, announcing the complete acquittal of O. P. Beardsley.

Congratulations were extended the more than fortunate man by those who were enlisted in his cause, while a rough and stormy wave of discontent swept over the room and left its mark on the disaffected expressions of the friends of the prosecution.

Mr. Beardsley, accompanied by his wife and daughter, walked out of the courtroom to the street, congratulating and shaking the hands of the jurymen. The two latter proceeded on to their home in Eola, the latter remaining here to attend to some business affairs. He will follow them shortly, and announces his intention of continuing to reside in the once more quiet little village on the river banks.

Circuit Court Proceedings.

State of Oregon vs. W. E. Hawkins. Indicted for murder in the first degree. Arraigned and granted until to-morrow at 9 o'clock to plead.

State of Oregon vs. Frank C. Gorman. Pleads guilty to a simple assault, and ordered to appear Saturday morning at 9 o'clock for sentence.

State of Oregon vs. O. P. Beardsley. Jury rendered a verdict of not guilty.

State of Oregon vs. Robert Kroys, appeal from Justice court. On trial.

Nasal Gleet.

Yesterday evening county stock inspector Herren killed the two horses that he has held under quarantine, afflicted with nasal gleet. One was the property of Philip Gilliam and the other of W. Riechart. It is thought by this means that this dreaded disease will be stamped out entirely. The quarantine has been strict and no new cases have been reported. Should any develop it is the horse owner's duty to so inform the inspector who will take such action in the matter as is prescribed by the law.

The loss of life by the Conemaugh flood will fall short of $4,000, Oregonian. Less than $1 per life, Mr. Oregonian.

Run Under the Guns.

It is not often convicts at the Oregon state penitentiary think little enough of life to face death by running under the guns of the guards. But a few days ago Lebo, a morpheine fiend from Portland (a former Marion county boy), crazy for the drug, crossed fearlessly over the "dead line" and when ordered to "halt or be killed" bared his breast and begged the guard to shoot. He was crazy. The second day after this the notorious Spud Murphy did exactly the same thing. He pulled back his vest and asked the guard to fire. In each case the patrolman did not fire, not wishing to kill men who were under temporary fits of insanity from being deprived of the drug to which they were accustomed.

—The "morning clip" gets in such a sputter as to neither "keep its shirt on," nor take time to re-write items of exclusive news clipped from the JOURNAL of the evening before. An honest newspaper gives credit to an exchange for that which it appropriates. The more or less esteemed contemporary is unacquainted with honesty.

—A few days ago, Otto Clement, a German, sent from this county to the asylum at Salem, effected his escape from that institution and made straight headway on his return to Baker City, arriving here on foot last Friday. The officers here at once took him in charge, and notified the officers at the asylum. Last Sunday L. R. Cushman, supervisor of the institution, arrived here and yesterday morning returned to Salem with Clement.—Baker City Democrat.

THAT TIRED FEELING.

Amidst nearly every one in the spring. The system having become accustomed to the bracing air of winter, is weakened by the warm days of the changing season, and readily yields to attacks of disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla is just the medicine needed. It tones and builds up every part of the body and also expels all impurities from the blood. Try it this season.

All Old Men.

The jury that this morning acquitted Beardsley is remarkable for the average age per man. The youngest was thirty-five years, which made the average 54. Most of the jurymen were well up in years.

The Reason Why.

(Correspondence of the Capital Journal.)

Some reasons why our prisons are filled with young and middle-aged men:

Some parents teach their children to violate just such laws as they decide are not right.

First they claim that they have a perfect right to violate the Sunday law by working or hunting game in violation of law, such as killing Chinese pheasants.

Next, they permit them to say most anything in abuse of their neighbors if they are their enemies, and permit them to visit places of amusement and make disturbance.

After they have violated one law it becomes very easy for them to break the next law.

The next step they take is to accuse all decisions of the courts as wrong and they have the right to take the law in their own hands, and enforce it according to their own judgment. They are always willing to assist a mob or anything that will encourage rowdism.

Parents should always be very careful how they permit their children to violate any law.

ENERGY.

Dr. Tanner, the faster, has been heard from again—this time in the role of a benefactor. He proposes to down the vice of intemperance and is willing to meet any "six of the giants of beer, wine and whiskey" in a fasting contest, the former to have all the intoxicating liquors they wish, and the latter to receive nothing but water, the fast to continue until the doctor or the last of the six gives up the contest.

Secretary Blaine is quoted as saying that while public officials usually have an unfounded fear of newspaper men, he has not in his varied experience had his confidence once betrayed.

"The weight of the transgressor is light," is the way Johnny's mother put it when he came back from the butcher's with an alleged two pounds of meat.
