MONDAY, JUNE 17, 1889.

Protect the Bridge. A JOURNAL reporter was told by prominent citizens that a certain few persons were accustomed to drive their horses in a trot across the new bridge which crosses the Willamette river here. The noise so the noise can be heard very plainly in the city. There is a fine of $20 for any person riding or driving faster than a walk on this bridge and the law should be enforced.

State Teachers' Association. The State teachers' association will be held at Salem, June 1-2-3, 1889. The association will convene in the legislative hall, capitol building, at 7:30 p. m., on Monday, July 1. All teachers and friends of education are cordially invited.

Ellsworth Day was brought to Salem from the country yesterday and lodged in jail for safe keeping until he could be tried for sanity. This morning he was committed to the asylum for insane, after an examination before Drs. Jessup and Risdon.

Of the graduates of the Willamette university sixty-five have, at some time or other, engaged in teaching, twenty-two are lawyers, twelve ministers, two druggists, twelve farmers, eight physicians, the others being engaged in the various lines of business.

The Salem decoration club, whose object is the beautifying and permanent improvement of the public parks of Salem, will meet this evening in regular session at Mrs. Moody's.

A large crowd was present yesterday at the Turner campmeeting. The day was very warm which made it very pleasant. Meetings will continue for about two weeks.

BROUGHT BACK TO JUSTICE.

San Jose Bill Arrested at Astoria and Brought Here for Trial. The notorious "San Jose Bill," whose real name is Wm. Atkinson, was returned to Salem this morning and now languishes behind the prison bars.

San Jose Bill is a character. It will be remembered two indictments for gambling were found against him last fall and he gave bonds in the sum of $300 for his appearance for trial at the October term of court. Jack Halliwell and Jim Dalrymple were his bondsmen. But the genial Bill thought he would skip the country and his bondsmen as well.

Another man who is wanted here has been arrested by Sheriff A. A. Cowing of Harney county and a man will be sent after him in a few days. This criminal's name is Raymond Gibble, who is charged with the stealing of a horse from John Marks of Clackamas at Aurora on April 1st of this year.

The aggregation of circus talent in the tented village continues to draw large crowds each afternoon and evening. The program began with an imposing spectacular entree in the two rings, on the elevated stage and on the hippodrome track, introducing all the pretty professional features.

The riding of thirty-five horses by Signor Blum, the elephant race between Toby, Topsy and Gypsy, and the Roman chariot races, which closed the evening's entertainment, were enthusiastically received. The program, so well executed and so highly applauded, was so long and various that the report prefers to let the public see if for themselves rather than give a detailed criticism of the events.

Daily transfers furnished the CAPITAL JOURNAL by the Union title abstract company: Ashby West and wife to John Curt, land in Jefferson, $75 00. Wm. H. Rawlings to Robert Wenger, 30 acres in T. S. R. 1. W. H. Smith to Elizabeth Steiner, part of block 2 in Robert's addition, 1500 00. Alice Lafore to Peter Lafore et al, 160 acres in T. S. R. 2. W. What They Are. Of the graduates of the Willamette university sixty-five have, at some time or other, engaged in teaching, twenty-two are lawyers, twelve ministers, two druggists, twelve farmers, eight physicians, the others being engaged in the various lines of business.

Street Cars and Crows. Tomorrow, beginning at an early hour in the morning, street cars will be run to the circus grounds near the depot every five minutes. This is done for the accommodation of the many who would like to be present and witness the building of the mammoth tented city.

Those Guernsey Cows. The Guernsey cows, which are to be used in the passenger traffic on the streets of Salem, arrived in the city this morning and will be placed in the service immediately.

THE STORY WAS WELL TOLD.

Did Perryman Throw the Rock at Beardsley?—The Journal Says No. As the JOURNAL has been closely connected with the Beardsley case since the day of the killing of Perryman by Beardsley it is but proper that any new developments of a startling nature in this case should be given to the public.

In so much as the JOURNAL reporters were on the scene of the murder before the coroner or any officers of the law and in so much as the premises were looked well over while all was fresh, and the different witnesses were subjected to interviews before they could have had time to get together and concoct a line of defense, these facts recently discovered—which cannot be controverted—will throw new light on the case and will place the JOURNAL in a true stand before its many readers.

Public indignation is expressed at the result of the trial, and well it may be. Here is the revelation. Perryman didn't throw a rock at Beardsley, as claimed. Nor is the rock which was exhibited to the jury as having been thrown by Perryman at Beardsley the same one that Mrs. Beardsley showed to the JOURNAL reporters on the morning of the murder.

These are strong assertions, but they are made in full recognition of the bearing they will have on the public opinion as to the verdict. The rock exhibited on the morning of the murder to the writer and a witness was a smooth, round, slate colored rock, with no sharp corners, and about once and a half as large as one's fist. The rock shown to the jury was a lighter colored, sharp-cornered, angular stone, seemingly having been broken at some time from a larger one. The former one had been worn smooth and round by the action of water, perhaps.

The trial is ended now and the law has taken its course, and Beardsley is once more a free man. But in this way the JOURNAL seeks to produce some undeniable truths and contradict the lies by which the cause of justice has been defeated.

GRAND LODGE OF GOOD TEMPLARS.

The Good Templars of Oregon to Meet Here in State Council. To-morrow the state grand lodge of the I. O. G. T. for Oregon will meet in annual session at the hall of that order in this city. This evening not being agreeable, the reception will be Thursday evening. It will be a pleasant occasion, as a most entertaining program for rendition and luncheon for discussion are in preparation.

It is expected there will be no less than sixty delegates present from all over the state and in behalf of the city of Salem, the JOURNAL bids them welcome.
