All the World Wondered.

The eastern people read with amazement the wonderful stories of Oregon's mammoth fruit and vegetable growths but their greatest expectations meet full realization when these same people come to the land where rolls the Oregon and see for themselves things three more wonderful than any of which they might have ever dreamed. In speaking of cherries the JOURNAL asks eastern people to note the following fact and weep To-day at the circus when the time had arrived for loading the big cannon, the artilleryman discovered that no balls had been secured. He at once sent out and got some Royal Anne cherries, which, after trimming down, were forced in the cannon's mouth, and the performance was successfully concluded.

The Lumbering Interests.

The projection of the Oregon Pacific railroad into the forest regions of the North Santiam has awakened great interest in that region and opened up a country that has almost unlimited resources for lumbering purposes. Already mills are in progress in that section and lively work is being accomplished, but only a commencement has been made. The belief has been common among the residents of that vicinity that local mills only could be supplied with logs from the timber lands along the river and in the adjacent mountains, but competent and experienced men have looked over the ground and have concluded that with little improvement the North Santiam can be made an excellent and perfectly safe stream for running logs into the Willamette, to supply all mills below, as well as the local mills adjacent to the timber, says the Albany Herald.

Good Year for Trout.

Parties in Salem yesterday from up on the Santiam say that there are more trout there this year than ever before and that fishing this season when it opens up well will be better than has been known for years. At Mehama the saw mill men have heeded the warning and are preparing to burn their sawdust instead of dumping it in the stream. Sawdust is death to trout. The JOURNAL'S informant took the trouble to examine a half dozen trout found dead and the gills and stomach of each fish was filled with sawdust.

A Write-up of Salem.

Mr. T. F. Reilly, representing the St. Paul Journal of Commerce, is in Salem looking over the city and country, with a view to giving an extensive write-up of the resources of the country and advantages offered to homeseekers. The Journal of Commerce is a widely circulated trade paper of much commercial importance and what this gentleman way say of Salem will be of untold worth. Descriptive letters of the Sound country have already been prepared by him.

Whisky and Minors.

The grand jury yesterday evening returned true bills against two parties who are charged with either having sold or given liquor to minors. They are Jacob Bingman of Gervais and Ed. Seguin of Woodburn. The former is accused of selling liquor to the latter, a minor, and the latter with giving it to other minors. These parties were arrested and gave bonds in the sum of $200 each for their appearance for trial within a day or so.

The Closing of Schools.

This is the last week of the public schools of Salem for the season of 1888-9. General examinations are being conducted this week and the school year will have an auspicious close. The teachers have in preparation an entertaining program to be rendered by the scholars at the opera house on Friday evening. This will be public and to all a cordial invitation will be extended, that the progress of the scholars during the year may be noted.

Hart! Hart!! Hart!!!

Prof Harry Lorraine, or better known as Prof. Harry Hart, the prince of magic and music, will appear at the opera house Thursday evening, June 20. The press everywhere in the United States endorses him. Give the old soldier a good house.

The Act of a Coward.

Not saying a word about the JOURNAL or offering an opinion itself on the Beardsley case, a more or less esteemed morning paper—through fear of results or on account of subsidence purchased by the defense at a handsome figure—hides behind the Oregonian and fathers these words:

"Some sensation was created this evening by a positive statement in an evening paper that Perryman did not throw the rock at Beardsley, as alleged in the recent trial in which Beardsley was cleared. The local editor of the paper was a witness in the case, and the wonder is he did not swear to these facts, instead of now coming out with them. The article claims that on the morning of the killing Mrs. Beardsley showed the reporter a rock which she claimed was the rock thrown by Perryman, and that it was not like, in kind or size, the rock produced in court."

The wonder is easily explained, when it is stated that the discovery was not made until the trial was over that there was a difference in the two rocks exhibited. The stone alleged by the defense to have been thrown by Perryman at Beardsley was not shown to the JOURNAL reporters while on the witness stand, nor were they asked if they could identify the stone. There should no longer be room for "wonder."

Gamblers and Circus Fakirs.

Every circus that travels is followed closely by numberless bands of gamblers, burglars, confidence men, pickpockets and light fingered gentry of different kinds. The circus to-day is no exception to the general rule and for this reason the JOURNAL admonishes householders to guard their premises closely or else not get excited because of a burglary. It might also be well to offer a word of advice about getting in a crowd around the circus and come out after losing your watch or pocketbook. The pickpockets are a shrewd set and the best of their talent is no doubt present. Then, too, there are the swindling gambling games which are being conducted near the circus—these slick fellows who roll greenbacks up in packages and sell you $10 for $1. They are deft with their fingers and the man that bites at their games generally gets bitten.

The Circus and Parade.

Sells Bros. and Barretts' great consolidation of circus, menagerie and hippodrome is here to-day in all its glory. The parade this morning, after a pleasurable anticipation of several weeks, was viewed by the hundreds who had congregated upon the streets. The parade was a fine one and apparently the forerunner of an exquisite performance. When the Sells Bros. conducted a little wagon show and played in small country towns they were good and now since they are backed by millions of dollars the entertainment must be simply grand. The tent is filled this afternoon.

The Stayton Bridge.

The county court of Linn county advertise for bids for the Stayton bridge, bids returnable July 3d. The advertisement says sealed plans, specifications, strains, diagrams and bids will be received for building a bridge across the North fork of the Santiam river about 200 feet below the Stayton ferry; said bridge to be 610 feet long and 16 feet wide in the clear. Piers to be of sufficient hight to bring the bottom of the floor beams at least 22 feet above low water mark.

Died In The Flood.

At last the not unexpected news has reached here. Yesterday Mr. F. J. Strayer of this city received a letter from his old home at Johnstown, Pa., the scene of the terrible flood disaster, in which the information was conveyed to him that his aged aunt, the widow of Ex-Mayor Strayer of Johnstown, and her three daughters and one son were swept down to death in the awful flood, Emanuel Strayer, another relative, is among the saved.

Gone to the Mines.

J. W. Shumaker of the Santiam mining and mineral company has gone to the company's claim up on the Santiam and will at once engage in the active operations of developing the mines. He thinks the future of their mines is bright and has no doubt but that mineral will be found up there in such quantities as to make rich men of the mine owners.

Wonderful Cherries.

Mr. J. M. Payne has a small cherry sprig on which cherries have grown so close together the branch is likened unto a bunch of bananas. The stick is but six inches long and on every side cherries hang as thick as it would be possible for them to do. There are 125 cherries in that small space and from appearance there is room for not another cherry. They are of the Black Republican variety and are most delicious.

The Grand Lodge.

Quite a number of delegates to the Grand Lodge of Good Templars have been arriving in the city today, to attend the State grand lodge. The work this morning was that of receiving the delegates and attending to the work of looking up the credentials. The session will continue until Thursday evening, closing at that time with a grand banquet at the lodge rooms. Capital lodge of Salem are preparing this banquet, which will no doubt be an affair of no little pleasure. There are already quite a number of delegates in the city.

A Negro Fight.

An amusing fight took place at the depot this morning, between two negroes who work with the circus. They fought with their fists, Marcus of Queensbury rules, until they were about used up, then they went at it with their heads, like goats, until one of them gave it up. A large crowd witnessed the fight, and all claimed it was very amusing.

Full of People.

Circus day in Salem this year is one to be long remembered. Early in the morning the town began to fill up with people and by the time of the parade at eleven the streets were one living mass of people.
