

A Law Abider.

"I don't want to break the law," he said, as he stood in the presence of Capt. Starkweather at police headquarters the other day.

"You are very kind," replied the captain.

"What is your case?"

"My wife has skipped."

"Indeed."

"Yes, skipped out two days ago. As I said, I don't want to break the law. What is the customary rule in such cases?"

"Let her skip."

"I am not expected to pursue her and shoot somebody?"

"No."

"Thanks. She has skipped. Let her skip. If she returns, I overlook and forgive. If she does not, I marry the hired girl. Perfectly satisfactorily, sir, all around, I thank you sir for your kindness."

A Traitorous Rooster.

Here was a private soldier who would have made a good judge. He would have known how to "construe the law," as the phrase is, so as to get justice done.

Two men were cooking a fat fowl at their camp fire, when a corporal sniffed the unaccustomed odor.

"Hullo, boys! where did you get that chicken?"

"Oh, we confiscated him for talking treason."

"Talking treason! What do you mean? Chickens can't talk."

"No, but they can crow; and as sure as you live, we caught this rooster, this very afternoon, crowing with all his might for Jeff Davis."

The corporal passed on.

His Duty as Much as Her's.

According to our ideas it is just as much the husband's business "to make home the brightest and most alluring heaven of rest and peace upon all the earth" as it is the wife's.

The idea that a mother who has been "worked and worried to death" all day by the cares and annoyances of a household, perhaps with a sick child to nurse, and in feeble health at that, should have to go beyond her powers of endurance to "make home attractive" to some great lumber of a husband with the muscles of an ox, the health of a whale and the digestion of an ostrich, is absolutely absurd and inhuman. Let them go to work and make home attractive for her—N. Y. Ledger.

A Patent Courting Apparatus.

We have been shown a design for an upholstered front gate which seems destined to become very popular. The foot-board is cushioned and there is a warm soapstone on each side, the inside step being adjustable, so that a short girl can bring her lips to the line of any given moustache without trouble.

If the gate is occupied at half-past ten p. m., an iron hand extends from one gatepost, takes the young man by the left ear, turns him around, and he is at once started toward home by a steel foot. The girl can if she likes set this at a later hour than half-past ten.

Treachorous Memory.

Andrew Connolly, the old man who cut his daughter-in-law's throat in East Portland about two weeks ago, is acting very strangely in the county jail, and some other prisoner is constantly detailed to watch him. He is 70 years old and very weak-minded. Jailor Dougherty believes that the old man is insane.

To a Telegram reporter Connolly stated this morning that two months ago he sold some land for $2000 in gold coin, which he buried for safe keeping, but now he cannot recollect the place where he hid his little fortune.

A distinguished lawyer of Brooklyn says: "Not long ago I was talking with Mr. Blaine about Col. Robert G. Ingersoll, whom we both very greatly admire for his wonderful talents. I made the remark that it was my belief that Colonel Ingersoll would ultimately renounce his agnosticism. Mr. Blaine said: 'I think so to, and I shouldn't be surprised to see him some day in the pulpit.'"

Tom Reed of Maine has been telling how he was admitted to the bar. He was examined in California by Judge Wallace. Reed says: "The first question Judge Wallace asked me was, 'Is the legal Tender Act constitutional?' I did not hesitate a moment. I said simply, 'It is constitutional.' 'You can pass,' said Judge Wallace. 'We always pass a man who can settle great constitutional questions off hand.'"

"My friend," said the solemn looking man who was distributing paper on the street corner, "do you ever go to church?" "Every Sunday," replied the young man addressed. "I am an usher." "There is hope even for you, my young friend," said the solemn-looking man, with deep feeling, as he handed him a tract.

LITTLE WOMEN. are as a rule, possessed of happy dispositions but when these sweet dispositions become sour and irritable, in consequence of the long train of distressing features peculiar to female complaints, they are then not companionable to say the least. It is the duty, not only of little women, but of all women so afflicted, to bring about the subjection, and immediate removal, of these painful maladies. This is easily accomplished by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, the great specific for "female weakness." It is a positive cure for the most flowing, painful menstruation, unnatural suppressions, prolapsus or falling of the womb, weak back, "female weakness," anteversion, retroversion, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation and ulceration of the womb, inflammation, pain and tenderness in ovaries, and kindred ailments. LOST IN THE STORM. One of our local editors clipped from a leading magazine extracts from a vivid description of a western blizzard which we have taken the liberty to publish, and at the same time suggest to H. H. Warner & Co., the proprietors of the celebrated Warner's Safe Cure, the feasibility of introducing therefrom an extract for the introduction of one of their telling advertisements. The following is the description:

"At the close of a dark day in January a solitary horseman wends his way across the open prairie in one of our western territories. He passes at long intervals the lone cabin of the hardy frontiersman. Two or three old settlers, of whom he has inquired the way, have warned him that a storm is approaching, and one of them, with true western hospitality, urges him to find shelter in his cabin for the night. But he declines the proffered kindness and urges his tired horse forward. * * * The sky grows suddenly dark. * * * He decides to seek shelter. * * * The storm increases in its fury. * * * The rider dismounts to warm his fast chattering limbs. * * * Can scarcely breathe. Blindness comes on. Drowsiness steals over him. The end is near. * * * He is lost in the blizzard."

There is no doubt that the terror which seizes the bewildered traveler is similar to that which occasionally comes upon one who is suffering from an advanced Kidney Disease, and is informed that he has a slight kidney affection. Later he begins to feel tired. Slight headache. Fickle appetite. Failure of the eye-sight. Cramp in the calf of the legs. Wakefulness. Distressing nervousness. Chronic and neuralgic pains. Occasionally pain in the back. Scanty, dark colored fluids, with scalding sensation. Gradual failure of strength. Any of the above symptoms signify Kidney Affection, but he is told that he is all right. His physician treats him for symptoms and calls it a disease, when in reality it is but a symptom of Kidney trouble. He may be treated for Rheumatism or Migraine, neuralgia, heart affection, or any other disease which he is most susceptible to. Finally the patient has puffing under the eyes, slight bloating of the ankles and legs. His physician may inform him that it is but the accumulation of blood in his ankles for want of proper exercise. The blood continues and reaches his body. Then he is informed he has dropsical troubles, and is tapped once or twice. He notices it is difficult to breathe owing to irregular action of the heart, and finally is informed that he has a slight attack of Bright's Disease. Soon his friends are notified that his is an advanced case of Bright's Disease, and that he can live but a short time. His honorable and dignified physician asks for counsel. It is too late. Still he sticks to the old family physician, and the physician knows and has known from the beginning that the patient has been stricken with death for months, for he knows full well that the profession acknowledge they have no remedies for the cure of Kidney Disease. At last the patient suffocates—is smothered—and dies from dropsical trouble. Or perhaps the disease may not take the form of a dropsical tendency, and the patient dies from apoplexy, paralysis, pneumonia or heart trouble. Or it may take the form of blood poisoning. In each form the end is the same. And yet he and his friends were warned by the proprietors of the celebrated remedy known as Warner's Safe Cure, of the lurking dangers of a slight Kidney affection. The newspapers have published the dangers. Columns of facts have been printed of men dying from advanced Kidney Disease or Bright's Disease. His friends and physician look around with horror and regret for seeming neglect, but he is lost. He did not heed the warning that a storm was approaching. He declined the proffered hospitality, and reckless went forward into danger. He struggled manfully for a time, but his strength failed, he grew gradually weaker and he was lost to the world. Not in a blizzard, but from the terrible malady which is almost daily occurring in every community, and which is doctored as a symptom instead of what it is—a mortal disease unless properly treated.
