Sad News.

Geo. E. Good, of this city, was handed a telegram yesterday afternoon, announcing the death of his youngest sister, Miss Josie B. Good, who has been teaching school at Walla Walla. The news was so sudden that at first Mr. Good could hardly believe what he was reading as it was the first intimation that be had even heard of her being sick. Miss Good was in the city a short time ago with a lady friend it will be remembered, and made many friends in Salem who will mourn deeply when they read of her death. She was in the best of health and spirits when here and her death must have been very sudden and unexpected. Mr. Good went to Oregon City this morning to make arrangements for her burial. She will be buried by the side of a dear father and mother who have gone before to that silent death.

The members of the committee were indefatigable in their efforts to make the arrangements for the comfort and convenience of the guests perfect, as a number of pleasant seats were provided for the occasion. It had been announced that the contest would end this season's playing to some degree. All this combined to make the attendance large. The evening was a most enjoyable one, and to awaken expectation of the most pleasurable nature.

The playing was hardly up to the s andard by either club for some reason. Yet it was lively enough to cause much interest to be centered on the play, and the points made were loudly applauded. The Willson Avenue club folks only organized this summer and for the time in which they have been practicing, they did admirably. The Marion Square club is three years old and it takes a good club to out score them. Both clubs are made up of Salem's best society young people, and next season they promise to have some interesting games.

A STORE BURGLARIZED.

Thieves Enter T. Holverson's Store and Help Themselves-Marshal Ross Lands One of Them in Jail.

This morning about three o'clock some sneak thieves forced a back entrance into T. Holverson's fine dry goods store and made away with about $75 or $100 worth of underclothing and various articles.

The thieves arrived in the city yesterday, and it seems as hough they at once laid out their grounds. They entered the hardware store of A. E. Strang and armed themselves with a saw and a large ladel which they used as a pry. They then stepped across to the rear of Holverson's store and with a pocket-knife and the ladel broke out a lower panel of the door some fifteen inches square. Through this they entered and proceeded to help themselves. As near as can be learned they took a number of blue flannel shirts, a lot of underware, some silk handkerchiefs, and all of the ladies' ties that were in the store, beside taking a lot of jewelry, Russell Wyatt, of Albany, an old a hat and various other articles. The noise made by them in prying out the panel caused the dog belonging to Mr. Forstner who lives up-stairs next door, to raise a terrible racket and this together with a clock in Dr. Henderson's office upstairs which started to striking and frightened them away.

When Fred Wiggans, a salesman at the store, went to open the store this morning and prepare for the Nar.
