The Successful State Fair Closed. The Grounds Now Deserted and Silence Reigns Supreme.

A visit to the fair grounds to-day showed quite a contrast with this time a week ago. Very few persons were to be seen on the grounds, and the scene was really one that would cause a person to stop and meditate on "what had been."

There is no doubt but what the who do not secure their paper regularly will notify this office, giving address, and the Oregon State Fair was a perfect success. For six long days the hand of Providence seemed to stay threatening weather, and for six days, was there a vast throng of

The JOURNAL has been deeply interested from the start in this proposed line and it will soon see its favorite schemes in operation.

The new proposed electric line will soon be ready to send forth some joyful tidings to the enterprising citizens of Salem. There may be a few persons in Salem who will be surprised to hear that Salem is now just on the verge of one of the most prosperous growths she has ever experienced. Recovering Nicely.

Irving Clagett, who was so badly injured by an old awning falling on him, a short time ago, has now so far recovered that he will be able to be removed to his home in Independence, this week. Mr. Claggett's escape from death was a miraculous one. His early recovery is really a surprise to many.

A Timely Rain.

Saturday morning clouds gathered in the sky and for a time it looked as if Saturday's races at the fair would be interrupted with a rain, but the hand of Providence seemed to stay the rain until the fair was to stay the rain until the fair was over and then a delughtful rain fell over, and then a delightful rain feli and has had a soothing effect in up things in geveral.
