A SAD OCCURRENCE.—The death of Thomas Willis, the young lad who was killed by a horse Sunday evening, about 6 o'clock, was a singular one. In the evening Mr. Willis told his son, a boy 11 years of age, to catch a horse, which had always been gentle, and put it in the stable. The boy started to do so and he went a few rods from the door and attempted to catch the animal. The horse started to run but he succeeded in stopping it. As he did so it whirled around and kicked him in the stomach, knocking him down. He got up and started to meet his mother, but fell to the ground. He was carried into the house by his brother. His father asked him if he wanted a doctor and he said he did not. He suffered considerably until morning, when his father said, "Tommy, do you want a doctor?" He again answered that he did not, that he felt better, and got up. After while he said he felt good and his father started to get some wood for the fire when he heard him groan. Mr. Willis went to him and saw he was dying and sent for a neighbor. The poor boy grasped his mother by the hand and said, "This is mother, (looking at her) and this is father." He then turned his face toward the neighbor that had arrived, and called him by name. His mother asked him if he was prepared to die, and he answered, that if he died now, he would go to heaven, and he passed off shortly without much pain. He expressed his desire to die when he was suffering, the first night. "Little Tommy," as he was familiarly called, was a bright boy and will be missed by many friends and playmates. He was buried yesterday afternoon in the Odd Fellows cemetery.

MATERIAL ARRIVING.—The Astoria Transcript says: At 10:45 this morning a barge was seen coming around Tongue point, and the report that the engine and boiler of the Astoria & Seattle Coast railroad were coming, soon spread like wild fire over the city, and a large crowd of men, women and children were seen going toward the O. R. & N. dock. At 11:20 the barge was fastened to the dock, nearly 1000 people being present. Shortly before the barge arrived at the wharf the locomotive gave notice of its approach by the usual salutatory whistle. Steam was up in the engine with Tom Watson at the throttle. There were seven flat cars loaded with railroad iron and the locomotive. There were 25 tons of railroad iron to each car, making 175 tons. There were 602 rails, 30 feet long, sufficient to lay a mile and three-quarters of track. The locomotive was built in Pittsburg, Pa., and weighs 33 tons. It was brought from there by Engineer Watson. The engine is named the "Frank J. Taylor." The barge will be taken to the landing just as soon as the weather permits and the work of track laying will commence at once. There are 25 car loads of iron at Portland and 20 more to arrive this week. This will be sufficient to lay the track to Gearhart woods. It is the intention of the company to lay the track as fast as the weather will permit. The surveying and grading of the road will still continue, and the road pushed rapidly to completion.

INJURED BY A BUZZ SAW.—Yesterday evening about 6 o'clock, H. Stolle, who has been employed by Geo. Goodhue to work on the steam saw, had the misfortune to have two of his fingers on his right hand badly cut. Mr. Stolle was feeding the saw and had a small stick on it and it accidentally turned as he pushed it against the saw, causing his hand to come in contact with the saw cutting the fingers in a horrible manner but not injuring the bone. He will not lose his fingers as has been reported on poor authority.

NOTED LECTURE.—Miss Henrietta G. Moore, organizer of the National W. C. T. U., a eloquent speaker, will lecture at the M. E. church on Friday evening, Oct. 4. Admission free. A collection to defray her expenses will be made. All who wish to hear this "apotheosis of temperance," will come and bring their friends. She will also address the ladies on Thursday afternoon at the W. C. T. U. hall.

YOUTHFUL GAMBLERS.—It is reported that a number of young boys around the city have a regular gambling den in an old building in the rear of a business house of this city and spend considerable time throwing dice for money. How true this matter is the JOURNAL is not prepared to say, but if such is the case, boys had better stop short.

NOW IS THE TIME.—Now is the time to paint your residence. A good coat of paint will protect it from the winter weather. Of course you are aware that Gilbert & Patterson handle everything in this line, also a well selected stock of groceries and provisions.

FOR RENT.—A good dwelling house on Commercial street, within two blocks of the business center and in a desirable location. To the right party here is a bargain. For particulars see J. L. Mitchell at the CAPITAL JOURNAL office.

BIG SALE.—There is to be a public sale of forty thoroughbred short-horn cattle at Eugene, Oregon, on Saturday, October 12. See bills. dlv

GOVERNMENT APPROPRIATIONS.

Appropriations for River and Harbor Improvements—Oregon in the Lead of Appropriations.

The engineering bureau of the war department has completed a thorough examination into the improvement of the rivers and harbors of the country, and the amounts allowed to the various sections and states. Since the government has undertaken the improvements of the rivers and harbors on the Pacific coast, the total amount granted them for improvements has been $8,671,989. Oregon has received the most of this money, with California next and Washington territory last, with comparatively a small sum. The total amount appropriated for Oregon's improvements is $4,156,312. The appropriation of 1888, $1,173,700, is the largest for any one year. The following are the total amounts granted for the improvements of the rivers and harbors of Oregon:

Columbia river, $837,000.
Upper Columbia river, including Snake river, $116,000.
Mouth of the Columbia river, $500,000.
Coos bay and harbor, $213,750.
Columbia river, $75,000.
Lower Willamette and Columbia river below Portland, $629,000.
Umpqua river, $24,501.
Upper Columbia river, $105,000.
Upper Willamette river, above Portland, $153,500.
Willamette river, $186,355.
Yaquina bay, $385,000.

Gauging the water of the Columbia river, $2,000.
It was not until 1896 that the government commenced work on the rivers and harbors of Oregon, the original appropriation of $15,000, having been for the removal of obstructions to navigation in the Willamette river between Portland and its mouth.

The territory of Washington cannot boast of much river and harbor improvements, neither in their number nor in the amount expended. Indeed the total sum which has been appropriated is only $75,500, and it was not until 1880 that Congress commenced even these small works.

The following are the sums allowed for this class of improvements in Washington territory: Chehalis river, $10,000; Cowlitz river, $11,000; Skagitumish, Skagit, Nooksack and Snoqualmie rivers, $57,500.
NOTHING LIKE OREGON.—A. Mitchell, traveling representative for the Russell Machine company, at Portland, arrived in the city last evening on a visit to his family, from a three months' trip over Eastern Oregon and Idaho. Mr. Mitchell said that in all his travels, he had yet failed to find any place that would half-way compare with Salem. "Why, up there," he said, "I have been driving along, and the dust would fly so that I would be compelled to stop the team to see where I was going too." "Some of that country," said he, "is so rough that they plant their wheat with a shotgun. The last sentence may be a little out of regular order, but it is really astonishing how they manage to raise crops there. Mr. Mitchell returns to Portland to-morrow, where he will assist in looking after the machinery displayed at the Mechanics' Fair by Russell & Co., who have an elegant display of all kinds of machinery on exhibition.

WHAT THEY ARE NOT FOR.—The Astoria Transcript says that "In speaking of sewerage, there is another important matter connected therewith that the property owners are responsible for. To those who are not accustomed to living in civilized communities, we will say, that a sewer is used for drainage and not as a receptacle for tin cans, rubber boots, old shoes, rags and other similar refuse. This is one of the causes that stop up sewers and overflows the streets and yards. If some people would buy a book upon streets and sewers and read up a little, they would be benefited. It is always a good thing to be posted upon such matters." The above might apply to a limited extent here in Salem. Some people never think what a sewer is for.

THREE BOYS MISSING.—Three boys, aged 15, 14 and 12 years, respectively, left their homes near Oswego on Friday evening, September 27, and have not since been heard from. They had three revolvers, three blankets and a lantern with them. The youngest wore a straw hat and was barefooted. They are known to everything about these boys will confer a favor by communicating with Mrs. E. J. Thompson, Oswego, Or.

RIVER NAVIGATION.—The rains have succeeded in raising the water in the river some six or eight inches, and the Modoc left Portland this morning for this point, and will not arrive until to-morrow morning. At least six or eight boats will be on the upper Willamette trade this fall and winter.

FINE WEATHER.—Such weather as we are having now, was never experienced before at this time of year, in the wonderful Willamette Valley. The days are pleasant and the nights, well they are just right for comfort. Oregon beats the world for climate.

NIGHT SCHOOL.—The evening sessions at the Capital Business College will begin next Monday evening, Oct. 7th, and will be held five evenings of each week. Hours 7 to 9 o'clock.

An Important Element
Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Does One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

SOLDIERS CATCH A WHALE.

An Exciting Battle With a Sea Monster off Fort Adams.

A case of whaling extraordinary occurred in Narragansett bay off Ft. Adams recently, says the various New York Sun. The scene was a ludicrous one, and, for a time, it seemed as though the whale, a twenty-foot sulphur bottom, would get the best of a company of thirty soldiers, who were after it, and escape. The whale spouted off the fort about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and shot in close under the fortification. The soldiers sighted it, and several shots were quickly fired at the cetacean, producing no effect whatever.

Then ensued an exciting scene. The officers and men of the entire battery gathered and made a united attack upon the whale, using sabers, guns, pistols, carbines, and, in fact, everything but the field-pieces and the machine guns were brought to bear. The charge was made in boats. In the turmoil that followed the whale seemed stampeded, and darted about aimlessly. A few of the shots made some impression, and then the soldiers, in their excitement, jumped on the whale's back, only to be thrown yards away in the water by the creature's tail. A rope was finally tied around the whale and a piece of gaspice stuck in its blow-hole. But it broke away from its tormentors and was making for the sea, when the fort launch was backed into by Capt. Lee, and it was cut in several pieces by the propeller. The launch then chased the whale down the cove opposite the stables, where it was finally run ashore and killed.

This is the first whale that has been captured from Newport shore since the days when whaling was made a business there. The whale will be embalmed and exhibited to the members of the Newport colony.
