

THE HOTEL DINING-ROOM.

Observations Made by a Man Who Knows How to Use His Eyes.

We are now in the dining-room of a Pretty Good Hotel, says a writer in the Detroit Free Press.

We can see seven-nine-ten-twelve-fifteen, about ninety men, picking their teeth while they wait for dessert.

Who are these men?

They are the men who keep this hotel running. They are drummers.

Did you hear that distinguished-looking lady remark to her escort that this town seems to be pretty common?

While you are watching the waiter girls as they bust out of the kitchen one by one you might also glance from time to time at this distinguished-looking lady and see her

Does she carry food to her mouth with her fork?

Yes, and with her knife, too; knife and fork alternately. See! Meat on fork, potato on knife; cucumber on fork, cold slaw on knife—doesn't she do it well!

And who is this lady?

She is a leading lady in a very small theatrical company playing in the town one night.

So that nice waiter girl over there leaning against the wall?

Does she see us?

No, not yet.

There! Now she sees us and comes to take our order.

We will have some soup 'n' fish.

When she has brought the soup and fish the nice waiter girl will give us some butter and some crackers and some salt and pepper in a dainty graceful manner; then she will lightly move our knife and fork and fix things all nice, and then she will stand quietly by our chair, clear her throat and say in a gentle, subdued tone, but very rapidly:

"Roas' mutim' roas' beef browned roas' chicken roas' lamb loin served stuffed with ham tongue quen fritters col' meats."

The italics are hers. They indicate the dishes they really have. The others are called out really for effect—to make drummers say six things all nice, and then she will stand quietly by our chair, clear her throat and say in a gentle, subdued tone, but very rapidly:

"Because they are just married."

Though they're quite still they love each other dearly.

That freckled young man has just had a finger-bowl put before him and he doesn't know what to do with it. Perhaps he thinks: Can this be soup come again?

The nice waiter girl has just kicked open the kitchen door and there she comes bounding down on us with a heavy tray. We will stop looking around and see what she has forgotten to bring us.

PARLOR-CAR SPIES.

Work of the Regular Watchers of Pullman Conductors and Porters.

Special agents go every week or two on each train that runs with the Pullman Palace Car Company's cars. They are the company's check on the conductors and porters. The special agents are sent from the company's headquarters and are known only there. They correspond to the spotters of street-car companies, though they are better paid and have a more pleasant time of it, as they have nothing to do but to travel around, watch what is going on, and report it.

A special form is printed by the company for the use of these agents. A copy of it came into the hands of a New York Sun reporter. It is Form 100 of the company's blanks, and a number of things are to be filled in. These items include the line, the car, the conductor's name, the porter's name, from where to where, the ticket of the time of arrival and the route, the number of the special agent's ticket, the office he bought it at, the cost, and the number of his check. These are required as a check on him and his expenses.

After this prelude he is to tell the condition of the ventilation of the car, whether the hand railings are wiped, the platforms swept, and the stepping box put out at important stations. The agent must observe whether the porter uses the stepping box and wears his jacket in making berths and in putting them up again, and whether the conductor assists the porter when the passengers are in a hurry to go to bed. The technical expression of the report is: "If Conductor assists Porter in making up and down berths when passengers are in hurry to retire." Conductor and Porter in the report are spelled with capital letters, as becomes men of importance. The agent is to watch if soiled linen is exposed, uncleanly, and if the conductor or porter drinks, plays cards, smokes, or takes naps when they ought to be awake. If the conductor or porter pays visits to other cars or leaves their own car for a moment, the special agent is to report them. They are also to be reported if they are unduly familiar. The porter is to be reported if he does not occupy a position commanding a view of the berths while he blacks shoes, and the conductor is to be reported if he allows train employees to smoke in the body of the car. Trainmen must stay in the ends of the car.

One side of the folded report is to tell these things. On the other side is a blank for a detailed statement of every berth in the car, both upper and lower. The berths occupied by the conductor and porter are to be marked specially. The occupant of each berth is to be given and the distance he travels. At the foot is a blank space for the manner and efficiency of the conductor and the porter. When the blank is filled out it is turned in at the company's office. It is not likely that the special agent can get much sleep if the train makes many stops. He would have to be watching the passengers to see who got on and off.

Heads in Different Places.

Normal human skulls, according to the measurements of Prof. Flower, range in size from 3,075 cubic centimeters down to 900 cubic centimeters, the largest average capacity being found in a race of long-headed people on the west coast of Africa. The Laplanders and Esquimaux, although small in stature, have very large skulls, the average measurement of the latter being 1,646. The English skull, of lower grade, measures 1,543; the Japanese, 1,493; the Chinese, 1,434; the modern Italian, 1,410; the ancient Egyptian, 1,404; the Hindu, 1,383.

Old Hickory on Sweet Temper.

"I can not forbear pointing out to you, my dear child," said General Jackson once to a young lady for whose welfare he felt a deep interest, "the great advantage that will result from a temperate conduct and avoidance of intemperance to people on all occasions. Never forget that you are a gentleman's daughter, and all your words and actions should make you known as a gentleman's daughter."

One Thousand Letters of Inquiry

RELATIVE TO OREGON

SINCE JUNE 17, '89

No charges, no commission, unless we sell your property.

For the Public Good.

It is an indisputable fact that the hand-somest valuable trunks that are now run on the American continent are those on the Burlington route, leaving from Union Depot in Denver, St. Paul, immediately on arrival of all through trains from the west coast. The fine coaches are magnificent, the reclining chair cars superb, the Pullman sleepers extremely luxurious, and for the meals that are served in these palatial dining cars—yum yum! The next time you go east to Kansas City, Chicago or St. Louis, if you mention to the ticket agent that you want to take the Burlington route, you will get a lower fare than if you do not.

If you go via the Northern or Canadian Pacific, the elegant yet comfortable trains of the Burlington route, between St. Paul and Chicago, or St. Louis, will carry you along the coast, and you will have a view of a distance of 300 miles, amidst scenery that cannot be surpassed, if you go via the Burlington route. It is a fact that you will have a view of the world's most beautiful scenery, and you will have a view of the world's most beautiful scenery.
