

sometimes, be due also to the passage of electricity from particle to particle of a cloud, which is an imperfect conductor.

Occasionally, on a summer evening, lightning is observed near the horizon, even when no clouds may be visible. This is the reflection of lightning from clouds below the horizon, or too distant for the thunder to be audible. This form of lightning is sometimes called heat lightning.

The actual duration of the illumination produced by a lightning flash has been shown by practical demonstration to be less than the ten-thousandth part of a second. To the eye it seems much longer, because the flash leaves its impression on the retina for some time.

Thunder is produced by the clashing of particles of air displaced by the electrical discharge, and hence always at the same instant that lightning is produced. The apparent interval between the flash and the report is due to the difference in velocity between light and sound. Light travels at the rate of 185,000 miles per second, hence we see the flash of lightning at almost the same instant that the discharge takes place. But such is not the case with sound. Sound in air travels at the rate of 1,130 feet per second. It therefore requires some time for the sound of thunder to reach the ear after the discharge report have actually taken place. The irregular rumbling sound, as well as the duration of thunder, is due to the varying distances from which the sounds come while the flash passes along its course. The rumbling sound is also due to the effect of the lightning striking the interval of time between the lightning flash and the beginning of the thunder, we can, with an ordinary timepiece, roughly estimate the distance of the thunder-cloud. For instance, as sound travels at the rate 1,130 feet, or about one-fifth of a mile per second, if we look at the time-piece the instant we perceive a flash, and find that the report follows say ten seconds later, we know that the cloud is about two miles distant.

QUEEN ALIQUIPPA.

An Indian Woman Who Was Once Visited by George Washington.

Probably few of the hundreds of Pittsburgh people who hear the name of "Aliquippa" pronounced, and read it in the newspapers almost daily, are aware of the historical origin of the word, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch.

When the French commander of the famous expedition to this entire region nearly a century and a half ago, long before Pittsburgh existed, and even before Fort Pitt was located at the "Forks of the Ohio."

Aliquippa was an Indian Queen, and a woman of wide influence among her people. The father of his country was once her guest, and his journal gives a somewhat amusing account of the visit which he paid to her. It happened in this way: Washington, on his return from his trip to Le Boeuf in December, 1753, was accompanied by the noted backwoodsman, Christopher Gist, who had also acted as his guide during the journey to the French commander's headquarters. Gist had settled during the previous summer at a place now known as Mount Braddock, in Fayette County. The afterward-distinguished Virginian and his companion encountered many difficulties and endured many hardships during their journey. On the night of December 29, just at dusk, they started on their way to Allegheny river on an improvised raft, above an Indian village known as Shannop's town. The result was a narrow escape from drowning for both. They, however, succeeded in getting to an island, where they passed the night, suffering bitterly from the cold in their wet garments. The next day they managed to get from the island to the main land, aided by ice which had formed during the night, and made their way to the cabin of a man named Frazier, an Indian trader, who lived at the mouth of Turtle creek. Washington says in his journal:

"As we intended to take horses here, and it required some time to find them, I went up three miles to the mouth of the Youghiogheny to visit Queen Aliquippa, who had expressed great concern that we passed her in going to the fort. I made her a present of a match-cock and a bottle of rum, which latter was thought much the better present of the two. Tuesday, January 1, we left Mr. Frazier's and arrived at Mr. Gist's, at Monongahela, January 2, where I bought a horse and saddle."

Some years prior to her location on Turtle creek Queen Aliquippa lived at a point near Dallas, in Bedford County. "Aliquippa's town" is mentioned in a patent to a piece of land located there, and may have been an Indian village of considerable importance. A scene of more of Indian graves marked the site of the town at the time the region was settled by the whites. They were mound-shaped and covered by heaps of stone. Some of them were dug open, and bones, beads, pipes and Indian weapons found therein.

HINTS ON DRESSING.

Views of a Man Who Believes That "the Apparel of a man is a part of his business talk." I heard a successful city man of business talk of his fifteen-year-old son about masculine dress one evening lately, writes the Chicago Journal's even-walk stroller, and there were several things said worth remembering. "I am older than you, my son," he began, "and carry in my mind a great deal of experience. I wish I could convey to you for your own good, and what I have learned about how to dress successfully is one of them. It took me a long time to learn that it is hard for a top to gain the respect or confidence of his fellow-men who are not fops; but I have learned it in time to save myself and lay down a few of the rules of dress for a man who would win in the world. In the first place, business men like young men who dress modestly. They don't like 'showy' youths. In the next place, the average political leader and voter has no use for the dressy citizen who ventures into politics. Very plain and simple clothes are at a great premium in politics. Silk hats, silk stockings and silk underwear have to be worn very carefully, if at all, by a political candidate. The silk hat will go through all right on one condition—provided it is never brushed at all, or if brushed, brushed the wrong way. So important is this matter of dress and its effect on the masses that I would lay down for you a few simple rules of dress which if followed will bring me out in the assertion that in every line of life worth entering they will prove a great aid to popularity and success. First, never wear without one good black suit—for Sunday, weddings, receptions and funerals. This suit when no longer new can be worn for a day suit in school or business. Second, always own one good, dark blue suit for business, pleasure or general occasions not noted under the first head. It may also be worn by night, when it will look like a black business suit. This is all in the line of suits necessary for a man except a full-dress or Prince Albert for some extraordinary party, which I trust will not come very often in your case. You can in this way always look neat and never gaudy, being careful never to be guilty of owning a velvet coat, a pair of patent leather or yellow shoes, a dude cane, flashy neckties or loud jewelry. To be a man among men should be your aim and never an ostentatious nondescript among the lilies."

BROOKS STATION.

Snow about six inches deep. Mr. Silas Jones took a flying visit to Portland, Saturday.

The boys at Brooks appear to be well provided with mittens this year.

Brooks is on the war path. But we will try to hold the fort. Don't say I told you.

Wonder if the fellow who broke his double-tree, was watching his horses or was looking at his girl.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Ramp have gone to Fairfield, to attend the wedding of her sister, Miss Belle Imiah to Mr. Richard Durette, all of Fairfield.

About five couples from Brooks attended the entertainment at the Grange Hall, Howell Prairie, Saturday, Jan. 4th. The drama was performed well, entitled "Enlisted for the War." Mr. E. B. Fletcher, as Hosen Jenks, with his phrens, was too plummy for anything. Mr. Ed. Kirby, as Crimp (colored) was immense. John Paragoiz, as General Grant, sustained his dignity. Miss Myrtle Durbin, as Gally Gifford, the helress, was equal to the occasion. Mr. Ephraim Weisner, the poor soldier in love with the helress, was well rendered. Everybody sustained their parts well, and everybody was satisfied.

Mr. Paul Jones, of Arlington, has been visiting his brothers Bent and Will Jones. He returned to Portland to-day.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Ramp returned from Fairfield to-day.

The village blacksmith, Mr. Wetherbee, took possession of the blacksmith shop here January 2d, Mr. William Harris moving to Salem. He has rented for one year. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Miss Myrtle Durbin of Howell prairie was in town to-day.

Mr. and Mrs. Pearsley of Wisconsin returned home to-day after a sojourn here of about three months. He could not dispose of his farm there or he would have made Oregon his home.

Mr. and Mrs. Durette of Fairfield will spend the winter in Portland near Miss Belle Imiah.

GO AHEAD.

An Oregon Boy For Japan. When Moses Stuart was called from Yale to Andover the Yale objection was: "But we cannot spare Mr. Stuart." The Andover answer was: "Exactly; we do not want a man whom you can spare!" and the objection is: "Boston cannot spare Mr. Perin." And this is just why our old friend, Rev. George L. Perin has been intrusted with the mission work of the Universalist church in Japan.

Mr. Perin is an Oregon boy, and received much of his education at the Willamette University in Salem. His high intellect and talent for oratory made him the pride of his teachers and the admiration of his student friends.

He was finally sent East to study for the ministry of the church of his choice. He married a charming young lady before his university days were over, and began his ministry in his early college days. In speaking of his adopted city, Mr. Perin says: "I have learned to love Boston as I never loved any other city, and I do not hesitate to say that I would be glad if consistent with my duty as a Christian minister, to spend my days here. These have been seven golden years to me and my family."

We in Oregon will think of our friend and fellow student and pray for him, as he labors among strangers in a strange land, for the same Master. And may we not hope that God, in his infinite love will baptize and bless his laborer?

as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrah is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you have to take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrah Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrah Cure is no quick medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrah. Send for testimonials free.

Catarrah, Catarrah Deafness—Hay Fever—A New Home Treatment. Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membrane of the nose and eustachian tubes. Microscopic research, however, has proved this to be a fact, and the result of this discovery is that a simple remedy has been found, which cures catarrh, catarrah deafness and hay fever, and is permanently cured in from one to three simple applications made at home by the patient once in two weeks.

N. B.—This treatment is not a snuff or an ointment; both have been discarded by reputable physicians as injurious. A pamphlet explaining this new treatment is sent free on receipt of stamp to pay postage, by A. H. Dixon & Son, 357 and 359 West King Street, Toronto, Canada.—Christian Advocate.

Sufferers from Catarrah troubles should carefully read the above. 1-1-ly-eod
