

so-called "accomplishments" of the modern girl are undergoing a radical change. The useful is beginning to supersede the superficial. If only every father would have his daughters technically taught some profession or business, in the same way that his sons are, he may safely leave the rest of the matter to the girls themselves.

Provided with the means of independence, they will readily find a way to utilize it, and with women ready to face the work-a-day world, a thousand new ways will be found in which they may profitably busy themselves without encroaching on the domains of man. Thoroughness is what we want. It is one of the rarest qualities in the world, and the woman or girl who has learned to do even the simplest task with absolute and perfect thoroughness is never likely to fail for want of occupation. There is abundance of demand for such as these.

Thoroughness, even in some simple matter, develops conscientiousness, which, indeed, may be called a part of true thoroughness. And what a rare treasure is the conscientious, thorough woman when found! England is full of failures, both men and women, who have failed from lack of this very quality. That women should fail is only to be expected, for they have enjoyed no advantages of training, or special education as men have, and in some simple matter, to get a good governess who commands the talent of teaching the no less important faculty of moral training. The great mass of nursery governesses and companions are absolutely inefficient, these two occupations being only resorted to by those who are quite incompetent to follow any other.

It is almost equally difficult to find a satisfactory dressmaker or seamstress. They are nearly all superficial and un-thorough, to coin a word. But with special training and technical teaching a new era may be hoped for. Women have been wasted, for the most part, until now, and with the development of their working faculties will come a great surprise for those who have for so long a period underrated their powers. Woman has till lately been regarded rather in the light of a coddler in music, or a flourish in calligraphy; something ornamental which has no absolute reason d'être and which could easily be spared.

There is just this germ of truth in the idea that we are certainly supplementary, so to speak; and in looking about for occupation we must bear that fact in mind, and seek for work that is supplementary to that of men. We shall thus have a better chance of success than we are likely to secure by coming directly into competition with them. This idea may seem absurd and "very tumble" to some of the strong-minded ladies of whom we wot, and whose device appears to be, ad Casar, aut nullus; but, after all, there are thousands of women who very much prefer the situation of Cesar's wife to being Cesar himself; and who, from choice, select those occupations that appeal to the more graceful fancy of a woman, that need her lighter touch, her delicate sense of neatness and order, and appeal to her especially just because she is an educated gentlewoman, and not a man.

Twenty years hence it will be found that numbers of new and now undreamed-of occupations will be open to Englishwomen, and they will be able to rejoice in the pleasing circumstance that no man need be the surprise of the world, but rather that all sensible male beings (there will be more of that sort then) will congratulate themselves upon the fact that there is an unmarried surplus to make the outside world pleasanter and brighter, and to make many things go smoothly that now jar and creak and work unsatisfactorily for want of the gentle and discriminating touch of the well-trained feminine hand.—Mrs. Humphrey, in London Society.

THE WILD CARIBOU.

How This Noble Animal Amuses Himself and His Mate.

It is as fond of the ice as a school-boy, and full as ready for a frolic, says Harper's Magazine. After the ice has formed in November, it is soon followed by snows, and then by thaws or rain. The latter converts the snow into slush, resting on the firm ice beneath. Now, any sensible creature would keep away from such a mess. But not so the caribou, for to it this makes the very gala time of the year. The herd go out upon the ice in single file, then scatter, and each one falls to pawing up the slush, with his forefeet. After this, which is done of performance, they fall upon their knees, and seem to lap the ice with their tongues. Why they do this is, as far as the writer has been able to learn, a mystery. It certainly is not from thirst, since they have crossed a dozen open brooks in their morning ramble. Perhaps to use one of those slang expressions so happily indefinite in leaving unbridled liberty of detail to the imagination of the hearer, "they do it for grandeur." The word is most simple, and indeed at times it seems the only explanation of many of the vagaries of this most singular creature. After awhile one will respond operations, seem to think things over generally, then go gravely over to where another has mined down to a piece of ice of extra flavor, and prod and poke it with the utmost vigor. The assaulted party rises to its feet, and meekly resigns to the leader—the latter, who immediately drops upon its knees and continues the operation of its predecessor, while the ousted either passes along the compliment by routing out another, or proceeds to dig a new spot for itself. Then perhaps all will lie down for awhile, and, though one would think the bed about as congenial as the inside of an ice-cream freezer, chew the cud in apparently the acme of bovine comfort. Next, one will, who rises to its feet, round up a bunch of sticks, survey its comrades to select the one which seems most comfortable, and then, actuated by that perversity of disposition we so often see and anatomize in the human embryo, proceed to stir it up with hoof and horn, until it, too, gets upon its legs and joins in the game. Soon all are on their feet, and falling in one behind the other, move for the woods in single file, headed by the leader—always a bull, though not invariably the largest in the herd. They move off at a walk, their heads hanging down precisely like cows driven to pasture. Suddenly one will become possessed of a devil, and breaking from the ranks with a hop, skip and a jump, charge through the line again and again, until it is thrown into complete disorder. Then it will as suddenly fall into place, as demure as a cat, saying, as distinctly as an ass, "I am content." "What you do not mean to charge this ultimately disturbance to me, do you?" The march is then resumed, and all may disappear at the meekest kind of a walk in the surrounding forest; or, without the slightest apparent cause, the herd will break into a run at a pace so keen you almost fancy you can hear them whin as they cleave a passage through the air. This burst of speed may last for a hundred yards; it may be kept up through thick and thin for five miles; the one is about as likely as the other.

Satan, His Sole Legatee. One Hualarion, of Helsingfors, Finland, was during his life beloved to be on friendly footing with the devil. His will leaves all his land and property to that individual, and the authorities of Finland are much troubled what to do.

At a late meeting of the Board of Council of the city of Frankfort, Ky., an ordinance was adopted prohibiting the sale of cigarettes within the limits of corporation. The law went into effect Jan. 1st, and there is not a cigarette to be had in the city.
