DIED.

OKAWA.—In his room in the little cottage on the University campus, at 6:30 p. m., Jan. 17, 1890, Henry Okawa, aged 23 years.

The deceased was taken down with malarial fever some two weeks since, and with skillful medical treatment, and the best of care, it developed into typhoid fever a few days ago, ending with his life last evening. He was a native of Tokio, Japan and came to this country about five years ago with the intention of studying law. He entered the State University at Eugene, but upon being converted to the Christian religion he came to Salem and entered the Willamette University and began to study for the ministry with the thought of becoming a missionary among his own people. He was a bright young man and a good student, and from his good nature and kind disposition was respected by all his fellow students. The funeral services will be held in the University chapel, Sunday at 2:30 P. M., under the auspices of the Philodorian literary society of which he was a member. The remains will be laid in the Lee Mission cemetery.
