SALEM SOCIAL CLUB BALL.

A Large and Fashionable Gathering Pass the Hours With Fleeting Feet—Joy Unconfined.

The spacious dancing hall in the opera house was a scene of terpsichorean pleasure last evening, the occasion being the first social hop of the year by the Salem Social Club. The dance proper should have come off on Tuesday evening, February 4th, but the musicians were unable to reach here, owing to high water at that time, so it was necessarily delayed until last evening. The pleasure seekers began to arrive soon after 8:20 o'clock. Shortly after nine the musicians arrived under much difficulty. It was not long after their arrival until Parson's orchestra sounded the strains of a march and the handsome couples came marching into the brilliantly lighted dance hall from the waiting rooms. The music soon changed to the soft harmonies of a waltz, and thence on to the waltz proper, "Joy was unconfined," and youth and beauty chased the glowing hours with flying feet." Shortly after midnight a sumptuous repast was served, after which dancing was resumed, and kept up until an early hour this morning.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Boggs, Mr. and Mrs. J. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Riley, Miss Nellie Boise, Misses Cannon, Santa Rosa, Cal., Miss Lena Breyman, Miss Leona Willis, Miss Minnie Breyman, Miss Gertrude Savage, Miss Nellie Gilbert, Miss Ruth Matthews, Miss Katie Dalrymple, Miss Mamie Crump, Miss Nellie Morgan, Portland, Miss Louise Huelat, Miss Jessie Crighton, Miss Maggie Savage, Miss Peck, Miss Esther Hall, Miss Lella Waters, Miss Edna Moody, Miss Helen Edes, C. P. Boise, Jr., H. D. Patton, T. A. Howard, Clair Baker, W. J. D'Arcy, Mr. McCormack, Eugene, Or.

The costumes worn were very neat and attractive and the following is a short description of the attire worn by the ladies.

Mrs. C. W. Taylor, black silk; Mrs. J. Smith cream colored cashmere, neatly trimmed. Mrs. Chas. Riley, cream colored cashmere, decolette, beautiful wreath of natural flowers; Miss Cannon, black lace dress, cut decolette; Miss Peck, beautiful linen lawn, with yellow surah sash; Miss Nellie Boise, black silk lace, neatly trimmed, decolette; Miss Lena Breyman, beautiful black lace; Miss Minnie Breyman, black lace over red silk; Mrs. W. S. Boggs, old rose ottoman silk with velvet trimming; Miss Gertrude Savage, handsome pink nun's veiling; Miss Nellie Gilbert, cream cashmere with pink surah silk sash; Miss Katie Dalrymple, delicate cream cashmere; Miss Nellie Morgan, black lace skirt and pink silk waist; Miss Louise Huelat, pink nun's veiling with neat trimming; Miss Ruth Matthews, delicate light blue cashmere; Miss Jessie Crighton, black silk with trimming; Miss Maggie Savage, pink satin with neat ribbon trimming; Miss Leona Willis, rich brown surah silk; Miss Ester Hall, Miss Mamie Crump and Miss Lella Waters, strict costumes.

Quite a number of distinguished spectators were present who looked upon the merry dancers, among those present were: Dr. W. H. Byrd, Dr. J. M. Keene, J. B. Phillips, G. W. Morris, H. W. Meyers, E. P. McCormack, H. McNary and Edmund C. Giltner.

The programme contained some twenty-one extra selections and not a few times were they reproduced, so well did they suit the gay dancers. A more delightful time has ever been enjoyed by the club.

At an early hour this morning merry good nights were exchanged and so ended the pleasant gathering.

THE UMPQUA EXPRESS.—The familiar whistle of the regular passenger train, even though a local, is once more heard in Salem, to the great joy of the restless, ever-moving American citizen. There is now scheduled a regular train each day until further orders from Aurora to Roseburg, passing here at 11:10 forenoon and returning at 12:52 afternoon, or on the same time as the former Eugene local. This afternoon the north-bound train under the schedule brought quite a number of local passengers from Albany and intermediate points. The above arrangement is respectfully christened the "Pudding river and Umpqua express."

J. B. F. Giesy, is confined to his room with that unpleasant affliction the "mumps."

CIRCUIT COURT.

The Mills of Justice Grinding—Work of the Grand Jury—Excitement Developing.

THIRD DAY'S PROCEEDINGS. Circuit court opened this morning at 9 o'clock with all its officers in their places and the usual call of calendar was made with the following result:

Southern Pacific R. R. Co. vs. Poorman; answer filed. S. A. Jones vs. D. H. Johnson; amended answer filed. Motion to strike out part of answer overruled; defendant required to make answer more specific, and case continued.

M. E. Shackelford vs. R. S. Shackelford; divorce; default and referred to Seth R. Hammer to take and report testimony.

The grand jury reported a not true bill in the matter of James Smith, accused of receiving stolen property (Chas. Bell's watch) from an escaped convict on New Year's day, and Smith was discharged.

The introduction of testimony in the case of S. B. Catterlin against A. W. Benson, on appeal from county court, was concluded at 10 o'clock, was argued to the jury by Timon Ford for the plaintiff, and Judge J. J. Murphy and George G. Bingham for the defendant, the case being submitted with the instructions of the court just before going to press.

State vs. Holtzel and Dickenson; indictment for larceny in a dwelling; plead guilty to petit larceny; fine of $25 and costs imposed, which was duly paid and the accused discharged.

Rutherford vs. Witzel; report of referee filed and sale confirmed.

State vs. McMillan; dismissed on motion of district attorney.

Motion allowed for present sheriff to make deed to F. Levy of property sold by Sheriff Minto in the case of Levy vs. Blair and others.

The next case will be Bartlett & Catterlin vs. Schieffelin, on appeal from Justice Chase's court, in which probably the only proceedings this evening will be the selection of a jury.

A WORD ABOUT BOYS.

The Need of Good and Thorough Business or Professional Training.

In the existing state of society, with keen competition in every department of business, and scores of well-equipped men ready to snap up every vacant position that is worth any thing, it is a crime for parents to turn their boys loose upon the world without a trade or a profession. The gaining of an honorable livelihood is difficult enough with the best preparation, but to send a boy out from the paternal roof with nothing but his hands to depend upon is to consign him to a life of toil, if not of crime. There are exceptions, but they are few. Greatness of intellect and moral rectitude are so rare as to be scarcely recognized when they appear. Men like Henry Clay, Abraham Lincoln and Henry Wilson, all poor boys who worked their way from the lowest to the highest positions in life, can be counted on one's fingers without going over them twice.

One of the oldest and most capable business men in Pittsburg expressed his views in regard to training boys for the duties of life substantially as follows to a reporter of the Dispatch: "If I had a boy I would no more think of sending him from home to earn his living without the necessary training to enable him to make his way against the strong opposition that he would be sure to encounter at every step than I would think of flying. I would consider it a crime against society to do so. What chance has a boy got to hold his own in the fierce struggle for existence without skill of some kind? None at all. The most he can hope for is a lowly station and a career of drudgery at manual labor of the roughest kind. He may start out with high hopes and noble purposes, but when he comes in contact with actual business affairs he will soon find that they are too complicated and precise for his crude ideas and methods. The result can not be doubtful. He will drift from post to pillar and finally bring up at the bottom of the ladder, where he will remain. He has been tried and found wanting. This is not his fault; he may have done the best he could, but it all comes from his parents neglecting to give him that training of brain and hand which is so necessary to success in this age of keen wits and sharp competition."

"Business methods have changed wonderfully since I was a boy. Then it was conducted, for the most part, in a crude, haphazard sort of manner. Nearly every thing was on a small scale, requiring no particular training or experience. Some people have the notion that it is the same now, but they are sadly mistaken. Men who were successful in business life forty or fifty years ago could hardly fill a clerkship now. Business has been reduced to a science, and its manifold complications are as hard to understand as any other branch of knowledge. A good business man in these days is competent to fill any position, public or private. More than one President has called men from the store or factory to assist in carrying on the Government. I do not care how or where a boy is trained, so that correct business principles are instilled into him. He may learn these at home, in a store, factory or workshop; I do not insist that he shall be highly educated in the learnings of schools, but I do insist that he shall be thoroughly grounded in some occupation, trade or profession. A business half learned is not learned at all. This is the cause of so many jack-of-all-trades which infest every community. They know a little of many things, but not much of any. They have to give way when they come in competition with better trained hands and brains."

"The future glory and prosperity of this country rests with the boys. They will in due time be called upon to take the places of the men who are now at the head of affairs—who are filling the offices of the State and Nation and conducting the various business enterprises for which we are so greatly distinguished. How important it is, then, that these boys be brought up so as to be competent to discharge these great duties. There is no excuse for neglect in this matter. The country is full of public schools where a good education can be obtained without money and without price. Every city, town and village has its factories, shops and stores where the actual business can be learned by the proper application. Therefore, I say there is no excuse for parents allowing their boys to go forth into the world and tie themselves down to a life of drudgery, which they must do if they have neither trained minds nor skilled hands. The dangerous classes of society are composed of men who, when boys, left home without knowing how to do something. Having no skill at anything, they seldom find employment, and then only at the roughest and least remunerative work. The result is that they first become dissipated and then criminal. This picture is not overdrawn, it is borne out by statistics and a matter of almost universal experience and observation. I have known many naturally bright boys who, from this cause, have grown up to be drones in society. They failed in competition with men better equipped than themselves, became discouraged, and settled down in poverty and obscurity."

"These are facts which parents should take home and seriously ponder. If they have boys they should see to it that they are brought up to some honorable occupation and not permitted to spend their time in idleness, in which there is neither dignity nor profit. It will serve as an anchor to keep them from drifting with the wind, and give them a fair start in the race of life. It will not only be of lasting benefit to the boys, but will be a source of comfort to the parents, save some of them from going down to the grave with broken hearts, and be an element of strength to the country which can be depended upon in time of need. Nothing good comes from idleness, which is the parent of evil; but intelligent industry is always honored and honorable. To slightly paraphrase the sacred text: 'Train up your boy in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it.'"

Dangers of Ice-Water. Dr. Hammond protests against the American habit of gulping down a great quantity of ice-water. He says that it induces catarrh of the stomach, which underlies a dozen other troubles, and, very possibly, cancer of the stomach. Ice, used in small quantities, is a valuable remedy, but any one who had better see a-ow some of the ice-water. It hinders and destroys the membrane. Dyspepsia is a sure consequence, and it does not even insure temporary comfort. What, then, can we do? Swallow instead an occasional crumb of ice. Reasonably cold, but not ice-cold, lemonade, is a convenient and wholesome drink. Better yet is the old-fashioned farmer's drink of one-half milk and one-half water. This is refreshing and cooling when far from ice-cold.

Don't Scorn the Humble. We never yet knew a man disposed to scorn the humble man who was not himself a fair object of scorn to the humblest. A man of a liberal mind has a reverence for the little pride that seasons every creature, and would deem it sacrilege to affront or abate the respect which is maintained with one of the adventurous aids, and solely by the observance of the humbler.
