First Baptist Church.
Rev. Whitaker who has just commenced his work at Salem occupied the pulpit. The Sunday morning service was largely attended, and those present were delighted with a fine choral anthem led by Mr. Epley. The number of young men and women present, and the interest manifested by them in church work is a phenomena of the age. When the intelligent and progressive youth of any land seek the church and its influences as the doorway to success in life, it is a good sign for society in general.

The text was chosen from Job 8, verse 6, topic "Piety and Prosperity." Righteousness and success in life are both possible. This is a proposition which the world has come to recognize, and is the epitome of successful civilization. A man may be rich and righteous, and yet many people argue, as Job's friends did, that when a man's blessings are taken away and his wealth disappears, it is an indication that the individual is wrong. Job's friends sat with him seven days and nights and spake no word, so great and sincere was their sympathy with his sufferings. When they did speak they urged Job to repent and to seek God in order that his welfare and prosperity might return to him. But they were in error, the sincere in their mistake, and therefore more dangerous to Job than if they had been enemies seeking consciously to lead him astray. Sincerity is the bread in which too often the poison of error is concealed and taken.

The man who sincerely maintains and advocates a wrong principle is more dangerous to society than the hypocrite, whose insincerity reveals his purpose. Job's friends seek to build up his prosperity, by restoring his piety. His enemies believed just the opposite. They show how that his property is gone, his posterity wiped out, and then they subtly assailed his piety, to which he clings.

They argued to him, if God is good, he will give his faithful servant good gifts, and if he withheld prosperity from Job, either God was not good, or Job was not a good man. Satan sought to drive him to despair and curse his creator. If he believed these fallacies he must disbelieve God or lose confidence in himself. But all good gifts are not synonymous with material prosperity. The soldiers of Cortez in Mexico who were loaded down heaviest with gold and silver and jewels lost their lives. Many a man goes down under the load he piles up for himself and finds his death in the midst of prosperity. Prosperity is not God's best gift. The way and the truth of eternal life is the supreme gift surpassing all others. Prosperity is temporal, spiritual life is eternal. God clouds the sun for us at times that we may bring forth better and more enduring fruits, as the cloudy days help to develop large yields of grain with the aid of sunshine. A man without true piety is like a plant without life. The sunshine of prosperity does but hasten his decay and destruction.

Death of a Famous Veteran War-Horse.
Iowa State Register: March 24.—There died in Des Moines a famous horse, which was well known throughout the state, especially among the veteran soldiers. It was the old war horse "Ike," owned by Mr. N. J. Miller, superintendent of the mails. His history was an interesting one. He was purchased for the use of the First Colorado Cavalry in 1861, when that company was stationed below Denver. Mr. J. W. Penn, now of this city, being a cavalryman of the company. He was called "Frenchy" at that time, and was one of a large drove of horses that was purchased for use in the cavalry. He was about six years old at that time, and was something of a race horse. He was a beautiful animal, a blue roan, with a fine motion, and an unusually intelligent horse. He served three years in the war and was owned by Jacob Bales, and afterwards he was purchased by N. J. Miller about twenty-four years ago. He was then a famous horse, being known among cavalrymen everywhere for his speed and excellent military qualities. He was a lover of the battle and of the music of the army and was never so happy as when marching to patriotic music. He had been kept by Mr. and Mrs. Miller these many years and used only as a buggy horse. He was tenderly cared for and was deeply attached to his drivers. He had marched at the head of the processions on memorial day, and at reunions for many years, and was always an object of deep interest among the veterans. He would follow a band at any time and delighted to keep step marching up the street. He had been totally deaf for some years but at sight of a band he would listen up and begin to march. For more than a year the old horse had been very weak, but it was hoped that he could be kept up so as to march in the reunion next month. About a week ago the old horse became worse and was not able to get up and yesterday morning he died. The memory of the old war horse will linger long in the minds of many old soldiers. He would have been 28 years old had he lived until May.

REMOVAL NOTICE.—On and after this date the dental office of I. T. Mason will be found in the front rooms over Forster's gun store, in the new Eldridge block. When the bridge is provided for and all is settled intelligently and solidly in that direction, Salem capitalists will take hold and push railroad interests. The motors will be built and a new railroad will be laid out via Salem to be constructed across the valley. The JOURNAL, feels confident in asserting this much, as it has the assurance of men of means who are prepared to take hold intelligently and act.

SCROFULA
Is that impurity of the blood which produces unsightly lumps or swellings on the glands of the neck; causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; develops ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose; often causing blindness or deafness; is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" and fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption, and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can it Be CURED
By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula or impure blood, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, sores breaking out on them in various places. My little boy, three years old, has been a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. I was advised to use Hood's Sarsaparilla, and we have all taken it. The result is that all have been cured of the scrofula, my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy."
