THE COWBOY'S SERMON .- "Lots of folks that would really like to do right think that servin' the Lord means shoutin' theirselves hoarse praisin' His name. Now I tell you how I look at that. I'm workin' for Jim, here. Now if I'd set around the house here tellin' what a good feller Jim is, and singin' songs to him and gettin' up in the nights to serenade him when he would rather sleep, I'd be doin' jest like lots of christians do; but I wouldn't suit Jim, and I'd get fired mighty quick. But when I buckle on my chaps and rustle among the bills and see that Jim's herd is all right and ain't sufferin' for water and feed and being run off the range and branded by cow thieves, then I'm servin' Jim as he wants to be served. And if I was ridin' for the Lord I'd believe it was his wish that I'd ride out in the ravines of darkness and the hills of sin and keep his herd from being branded by the devil and run off to where the feed was short and drinkin' holes in the cricks all dry, and no cedars and pinions for shelter when the blizzards came, I don't see how I'd be helping the Lord out if I jes laid round the ranch eatin' up the grub I could git, and gittin' down on my prayer bones and taffyin' the Lord up and askin' for more. The Bible says somethin' somewhere—I got the place marked with an ace of diamonds- about how people serve the Lord by feedin' and waterin' and looking after the herd, and I think it would do lots of people good to read it over. When a crittur has had his moral natur starved ever sense he was a ealf, and been let run a human mayerick till the devil took pity on him, jest cause nobody else didn't look after bim, and put his brand on him so deep that even in the spring, when the hair's longest and its no trouble to tell whose herd he belongs to, it shows mighty plain that the cowpunchers of the Lord Upon Squire Poujade's motion a they've been huntin' souls."-Selected.
