The Political Situation in Germany

No one can longer doubt that Germany has undergone a peaceful revolution from an iron-handed rule of imperial despotism to the milder government of a prince who seeks to rule by love of the masses. The events of the week have accentuated even more than the resignation of the chancellor the new era that is opening in German history. Until his actual departure the public was loth to believe that the emperor was in earnest in parting with Bismarck. Henceforth attention will be divided between Friedrichsruhe, representing the grandeur of the edifice of German unity, and Berlin, the center of the new and untried regime. It is impossible that the emperor could have been an unaffected spectator of the unending tributes of of Bismarck's letter of resignation.

The public still declines to believe that the retirement of Bismarck Is final, it being urged that he is by five years the Junior of Gladstone, and may still count upon a decade of activity. Tue Cartelists offered to resign two seats in the Reichstag in fayor of Bismarck and Count Herbert Bismarck, but it is certain that the ex-chancellor and his son will not accept them at present The emperor having declared that he will recognize only two parties, those for and against him, will be likely to disregard conventional party divisions and seek the assistance of the liberal-c'erical coalition, Thus Bismarck, in the event of re-entering the Reichstag, might seem to be in the unusual position of the nominal if not actual leader of the opposition.

The opening of the Reichstag and the royal speeches are awaited with the keenest interest. Dr. Windthorst claims three indispensible concessions in return for his support of the government: The return of all religious orders, religious teaching in the schools and the removal of the discretionary revocable character from all concessions made to are well aware of the strength of their position and intend to derive every possible advantage therefrom. For the moment colonial affairs overshadow home politics. Vonderheydt, the financial backer of the East Africa Company, recently declared that Bismarck's departure was the sign of a new and energetic colonial policy. Reichardt, the explorer, in a lecture, showed that it is of the utmost importance to secure possession of Tabora, which place is further inland than Mpwapwa. This and strengthening the treaty footing in the German sphere of interest appear from inquiry in the without a native prince of the blood most reliable quarters to be the sole to whom it could offer the royal objects of the Emin-Wissmann expedition. Emin has advised the conclusion of a treaty with Bwana Heri in order that his assistance may be secured in the advance of the Germans.

The exact scope of the expedition is not yet known. It is certain, however, that the emperor will decline to consent to the adoption of any colonial policy antagonistic to mother when he told her of it. that of England. The Wurtembergers bitterly complain that the Berlin War Office is gradually eliminating all the Wurtemberg officers from the Wurtemberg army division, and they are either forced to exchange into regiments from other parts of the empire or else are driven to resign alto-
