TALK IS CHEAP,

and the press teems with advertisements of sarsaparillas, and other liver, blood and lung remedies, but there is one medicine, and only one, the claims for which, as a cure for all lingering diseases arising from Torpid Liver or Billiousness, or from impure blood, are backed up by a positive guarantee! If it does not do just as represented in every case, the money paid for it is promptly refunded.

This peculiar medicine sells beyond all others throughout the civilized world. And why should it not? "Talk is cheap," but when it's backed up by a positive guarantee, by a house of long established reputation, for honesty, integrity and sound financial standing, then words mean business! And that's just what the World's Dispensary Medical Association, of Buffalo, N. Y., mean in guaranteeing their Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery checks the frightful inroads of Scrofula and, if taken in time, arrests the march of Consumption of the Lungs (which is Lung-scrofula), purifies and enriches the blood, thereby curing all Skin and Scaly Diseases, Ulcers, Sores, Swellings, and kindred ailments.

FORCING GOLD DOWN.

Senator Dolph, always a man of strong, good sense, is satisfied with a monetary system which makes gold the standard and uses silver as far as it can be used without forcing gold down and out; but he doesn't want a policy adopted that will make silver the standard. This is the keynote of his speech.—Oregonian.

The above contains some of the new sophistries of the gold-bugs. The one argument that the gold-standard men have always employed most effectively has been that gold had a fixed value, and was an almost unchangeable unit of value while silver was a mere speculative commodity. Their constant appeal has been along this line, of the alleged fixity of gold as a single standard, which was determining the price of silver dollars as it was "that of wheat. Now a gold-bug organ informs the people that silver is to regulate the price of gold!

This is but another form of the special pleadings that are employed to maintain the single-standard monopoly system of finances, which is entirely inadaquate to the business necessities of the country. Whether the Oregonian is correctly interpreting Senator Dolph's speech or not, we do not know, but it is certainly doing that gentleman great harm by rendering him ridiculous, as it certainly does, in representing him in the above light.

Australian Ballot System.

Recently the Australian ballot system was given a trial at the municipal election at St. Paul. The experiment was completely successful. It required a keen observer, indeed, says the Pioneer Press, to discover that a city of over 20,000 inhabitants was in the throes of a municipal election, and that, too, more exciting than its predecessors for many years. No crowds, no excitement and no drunkeness were the marked features of the day, whose character was told alone by the occasional booths, to whose sides were tacked maps and election placards.

It is alike creditable to the representatives of all parties that they tried to follow the spirit as well as the text of the new law, instead of attempting to hamper in its action.

The voter after giving his name received his ballot, which he marked according to the dictates of his own judgment in the privacy of one the booths. Having folded it he handed it to the judge of the election, who, having called the voter's name, deposited the ballot in the box. This was all the machinery necessary for the elector. As a result of careful registration but few votes were challenged in the entire city, and only a comparatively small number of ballots were returned defaced or injured to the judges of the election in exchange for others. Perhaps as noticeable a fact as any is that a very small per cent. of voters asked for assistance in making their ballot.

The judges of election uniformly gave the warmest praise to the new system. Many of its opponents have based their opposition upon a belief that its operation was slow. It was found that in the most crowded districts all the booths were never occupied at one time, and the rush which under the old system was the invariable accompaniment of certain hours, was entirely obviated. The returns also were known at an earlier hour than usual, as the conditions of balloting made it extremely easy for the judges to tabulate the results.

Happy Men.

Youths Companion: The old Persians, who had many authors of singular penetration, gave the world the following probverb:

"There are two men in the world who are perfectly happy; two men whose minds may be at rest. The first is the wholly ignorant man, who is happy because he thinks that he knows everything.

"The second is the really learned man, who is happy because he knows that there will always be something for him to learn."

This proverb suggests certain maxims which were the favorites of a Massachusetts clergyman, now dead, and which are as follows:

When a man knows a fool knows not that he knows not, he is a fool; shun him.

When a man knows not; and knows that he knows not, he is simple; teach him.

When a man knows and knows not that he knows, he is also asleep, wake him.

When a man knows and knows that he knows, he is wise; follow him.

In an interview the other day at Berlin, Prince Bismarck, late chancellor of the German empire, said of the emporer: "I am not angry with him. My position is like that of a father ill-treated by a son. I have to suffer. Still I will say that he is a daring young fellow. When I was younger I followed my sovereign about everywhere so I could counteract the influence of my opponents. Now I am too old to travel so far and so continuously. Thus other advisers win the kaiser's confidence and turn him against me."

Royal Baking Powder
ABSOLUTELY PURE

DIXIE'S FIRST MONEY.

How the First Batch of Confederate Treasury Notes Were Made.

From the Atlanta Journal.

It took money to carry on the war. The southern confederacy started to oppose the invading foes with an empty treasury. So a "promise to pay" had to be resorted to.

One of the first things to be done by the treasury of the young nation was to issue a legal tender of some kind.

The making of confederate bonds and notes was a great trial with the young treasury. In the south no engravers could be found, and nothing like good bank paper.

So arrangements were made to print some bonds in New York. The work was gone about very carefully and every means used to avoid detection. But the bonds were seized, however, before they left New York. These bonds were printed by the American Bank Note company, and when the federal authorities found this out through a tell-tale employe the southern confederacy had to rely upon its own resources to get up bonds and notes.

An engraver of cards and posters by the name of Hoyer, a German by nationality, lived in Richmond, and he was employed to issue the first notes, which were eight $100 bills. One of these bills would bring considerable now as a relic.

A paper was smuggled through the lines from New York and given to Hoyer. He had only old and inferior stones for engraving purposes and with them he made the first Confederate treasury notes. The stones had previously been used to engrave play-cards.

Of course they were faulty and full of errors, and under any other circumstances would have been thrown away, but some kind of legal tender had to be secured at once and the rude notes were accepted.

When the secretary read the proofs he ordered them printed, indorsing on the margin of the proof the following:

"When the money changers become familiar with these incoming bills it will be as difficult to pass a counterfeit as if they had been engraved on steel—perhaps more so."

The German engraver used what was an old-fashioned press even in that day, and the bills were printed by hand, a very slow and tedious process.

These, rude, uncouth bills found no buyers, but were accepted in good faith by loyal southern hearts. They were pledges of a brave, fearless people, and by that people were accepted as such.

They were not worth much upon their face, but thousands of men died to give them value, and three times as many died to make them worthless.

Soon the country was flooded with confederate bills. The number circulated depended on how fast the treasury could issue them. Bills of small denominations soon went out of style, and nothing under one hundred dollars left the treasurer's hand, while $500 and $1,000 bills were as numerous as $5 bills are today.

Of course the price of everything went up, and it was a mere bagatelle to pay $200 for a yard of flannel, or $300 for a pound of coffee, or $1,000 for a pair of boots, or $10,000 for a horse.

Worthless as were these "promises to pay," they cost more than any tender ever issued by a nation on earth.

CROP WEATHER BULLETIN.

The Oregon Weather Bureau, co-operating with the U. S. Signal Service, makes a report for week ending Saturday, June 7th, 1890, as follows:

WEATHER.

The forepart of the week was cool and cloudy, with rain, hail and snow in the mountains. The rainfall was poorly distributed, and there was not the benefit derived from it that was expected. The latter part of the week was cloudless, dry and warm, on Friday and Saturday the temperature was above 90° in many sections of the state. More rain is needed. Rain and cool weather will yet produce good crops. Delayed reports from Eastern Oregon show that on May 28th, 29th and 30th, frosts occurred that did damage to vegetables, especially potatoes, tomatoes and peas, corn, rye and barley were also injured.

CROPS.

The month of May had a high average temperature, and the rainfall was very light, as a result, the crop prospects are not so encouraging as might be desired, especially hay and late sown grain. The fall and early sown wheat, continue to have a favorable outlook. The fruit prospects are good. Strawberries are very plentiful. Cherries are ripe and the trees are loaded with them. General reports indicate a light hay crop. Crops in Tillamook county are all promising. Throughout the Willamette valley rain is badly needed. Wheat fields are burnt in places. Much of the spring sown grain did not come up. In the Umpqua and Rogue river valleys, the prospects are brighter. The coast counties are especially promising for good crops. The Grande Ronde and Walla Walla valleys, and a greater portion of Umatilla county as well as the major portion of Union county, have the best prospects for crops in Eastern Oregon. In the valleys of Wallowa county, wheat, oats, barley and rye are doing very well. Wasco, Sherman and sections of Gilliam county appear to be the worst affected by the dry weather. In Crook, Grant, Baker, Lake, Harney and Klamath counties, the frost of May 28th, 29th, did the most damage, and in those counties the grass is rapidly drying up.

RIVERS.

The cool weather stopped the melting of the snow in the mountains, as a result, all rivers are rapidly falling. The present warm weather may cause them to rise again.
