the street from the Capitol and the ground embraces nearly a quarter block. On Court and on Capital streets are cement sidewalks, while at the outer edge, fourteen feet from the fence, is a curb stone of cement leaving the margin between for decorative shrubbery and a grass plot.

It was characterized by good logic and philosophy throughout and profound beyond the expectations from a young lady of her years. After some very entertaining instrumental pieces, Miss Susie Murphy delivered a recitation, "The Painter of Seville," which was given in every respect.

Her gestures were most appropriate and well timed, her expression carries the full meaning of the language, and all comes naturally and without apparent effort. Miss M. is surely destined to take a high place in elocutionary circles.

Three gold medals were then distributed by Father White; the first, presented by Governor Penney, awarded Miss Susie Murphy for proficiency in prose composition; the second, presented by Judge J. J. Daly, of Dallas, to Miss E. Coquette, for highest class average, and the third, presented by Dr. J. C. Griffith, of this city, to Miss Cecelia Jeffries, for general excellence.

Archbishop Gross made a few remarks in his usual pleasant way and paid a fine tribute to Gov. Penney's worth as a man and citizen. He also spoke of the necessity of moral and religious training in connection with education and said this was the great anxiety of the Catholic church, that the educated citizen should not be barren of the higher and nobler attributes which ought to accompany learning.

Gov. Penney and State Supt. McElroy endorsed the sentiments thus expressed and were very hearty in congratulating the teachers and pupils of the academy upon the success achieved. This closed one of the most successful years of the institution, and a vacation began which will last until the first Monday in September, when work will be resumed for another year.

It is only a short time until Salem will lose from its permanent social life the presence of Supreme Judge and Mrs. W. W. Thayer, who have contributed much toward its pleasures during the past four years, and during a previous four years when the judge was governor. So last evening the Old Folks' Whist club had set as the time and Mayor Williams' new mansion as the place for a grand surprise in honor of the judge and his estimable wife.

The members of the club had arranged matters with Mrs. Williams and had escorted her into allowing them to come in good old-fashioned style, provided with the viands for a social spread, and at the usual hour the crowd assembled, having notified the guests of the evening to attend in good order.

It was certainly a surprise and an agreeable one to the venerable couple, and there could be no more complete and hearty pleasure than characterized the whole evening. Drive whist and social converse filled up the time, which flew by on electric wings and was gone before they knew it. At whist the first prize was won by Mrs. J. G. Wright and Major Geo. Williams (the latter says they may beat him away from home, but not on his own ground).

The prizes were delivered over by Mr. E. M. Waite in one of his most appropriate speeches, and that means that it was a producer of much mirth and amusement. The following were present: Judge and Mrs. Thayer, Major and Mrs. Geo. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. John G. White, Mrs. J. M. Rosenberg, Mr. and Mrs. T. Holmerson, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Waite, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Breyman, ex-Governor and Mrs. S. F. Chadwick, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Webb, Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Howell, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Fleming. At an appropriate hour luncheon was spread in an elaborate manner and was delightfully enjoyed, being well seasoned with the wit and humor, laugh and jest, of which a gathering composed as that was is so prolific. Judge and Mrs. Thayer will long cherish the event as one of the pleasantest of their experience.
