So confident are the manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy in their ability to cure Chronic Catarrh in the Head, no matter how bad or of how long standing, that they offer in good faith, the above reward, for a case which they cannot cure.

Symptoms of Catarrh.—Headache, obstruction of nose, discharges falling into throat, sometimes profuse, watery and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody and putrid; eyes weak, ringing in ears, deafness, expectoration of offensive matter; breath offensive; smell and taste impaired, and general debility. Only a few of these symptoms likely to be present at once. Thousands of cases result in consumption and end in the grave.

By its mild, soothing, antiseptic, cleansing and healing properties, Dr. Sage's Remedy cures the worst cases. "Cold in the Head" is cured with a few applications. Catarrhal Headache is relieved and cured as if by magic. It removes offensive breath, loss or impairment of the sense of taste, smell, or hearing, watering or weak eyes, and impaired memory, when caused by the violence of Catarrh, as they all frequently are. Sold by druggists, 50 fifty cents. Manufactured by WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

OUR WEEKLY WOMAN'S LETTER.

The Western Girl Ahead on Everything—What Will the National Teachers' Convention Do?—Western and Eastern Charities Compared.

The western girl might almost be said to be ahead of the period. In the eyes of the critic this is as sadly out of taste as being passe, but certainly the gay bevies from the inland that swarm to the wharves of New York, ready to take in Europe, to the unprejudiced eye, show every sign of being in the advance in the fashion ranks, at least, and also in preparation and study to make them appreciative of the treasure they are going to partake of. They are eager and questioning, whilst the lady from the hub and the gotham-ite show decidedly that they consider merely being in the east a sufficient preparation of mind. The poor western girl! how she will be laughed at not only by her conventional sister on the coast—but all thro' Europe wherever she may happen to turn up! For though she is beautiful, she has unfortunately more good sense than good taste; for look at the enormous waist-span, the broad, substantial shoe—prepared to cross the Great Sahara afoot if need be. Does she not know that the great goddess of fashion demands that she take shorter breaths and shorter strides—that simple gowns are affectation and that culture is delicacy and aesthetic deformity, not muscle and energy?

Ha! ha! the western girl is no libel on her Scotch lassie mother who with stout limbs forded her native streams, or perchance, the German maid, her ancestor, with her thick braids so wound around her temples, that the heavy basket on her head left no impression, and which the stout neck and back were scarcely aware of. And what if her father was a armer ut on the Iowa prairie, and she earned her travel-money by teaching school, we love her and look forward to the completion of her species. The rise and progress of the western girl will be one of the future literary classics when there comes a pen worthy to show her to the world.

The wave of dress reform is certainly but slowly coming eastward. The "four hundred" are making a strong stand against it, but it becomes to stay. Although many of the seaside and summer wardrobes are still severe and iron-bound, the sprinkling of fluffy, flowing, loose Greek styles has become so thick that they are no longer being stared at. The nymph in white tulle, falling softly from the throat with girdles carelessly catching the stray draperies—with the hair dressed in a low coil and circlet browed, is a sweet but incongruous picture on the piazza of a Queen Ann cottage, but she is not half so heterogeneous in construction as is her puffed, shirred, bustling, tie-back sister. The ideas of the girl who dons the aesthetic gown with a vengeance are usually traceable to the study of vocal or delsarte, to the riding school or some society of physical or ethical culture. She is to the front in some branch or art that demand real and complete freedom.

I have half decided to give up my July plans and follow the trail of the National Teachers' Convention at St. Paul, for it is believed that this year there will be some very important if not surprising results obtained from this wholesale meeting of the world's highest citizens—the educators. It is good to have this gathering in the heart of the country for even here in the east we feel its radiations of thorough measures and advanced ideas.

Chicago is going to give some telling strokes at this meeting, for the women at the head of the Queen Isabella Association have deep laid plans, educationally and every other way, not to mention the Woman's Club and the different kindergarten associations. Here in the East we have such a different spirit in our organized work, especially that on a missionary basis. There is enough broad and liberal charity but it is always done through a secretary or bureau, never is the warm hand of the giver felt nor the heartfelt sympathy of the benevolent donor.

And again our institutions of reform are always put on the permanent basis, never with the thought of eradicating the evil entirely. In the west, the farther the truer, there is a mighty effort made, always with the charity, to destroy the cutworm of vice and kill the weeds, as well as help the young plant along.

"Travel in Europe" and "The American Abroad" will not be such popular subjects this season as last. We are learning to appreciate ourselves and our own country, as well as our own fashions and institutions. Of course there will always be the element among us who consider they have been nowhere if they have not been to Europe. But the custom of turning about and exhausting the endurance with heated enjoyment, is giving way to the quieter "country home" resorting, and the enjoyment of genuine rural life, fishing and sleeping, and fighting mosquitos. The heated season finds the women and children away and papa, who must furnish the dollars, takes his pleasure in a book rest at the Thomas concert or a walk across Brooklyn bridge and back on the ferry, enjoying the thought that the best of them only take a flight that they may come home again. THE YOUNG MAN ELOQUENT.

A Washington dispatch describing Senator Wolcott's appearance when he made his maiden speech the other day says:

The Colorado senator dressed the part to perfection. His light trousers with a pronounced crease, his white waistcoat with its parted gold watch and pencil chains, his black cutaway coat, his heavy blonde mustache sweeping across a round boyish face, his hair parted close to the middle, all showed the care with which the outer man had been groomed for the occasion. There were no notes to retard the flow of the young man's impassioned words; his voice is simply magnificent and his gestures perfect. The bride of a month smiled inspiration from the gallery as her husband started out with the ironical statement that it was the rule of the senate that novices like himself should imbibe knowledge from seats in the back row, where they could not hear the wisdom poured forth by the elders, but must infer it from the eloquent backs of the seniors. Then he paid his compliments to Senator Aldrich, who had threatened free coal in turn for free silver; he asserted that poor little Colorado, shut away from rivers and oceans, was asked to assist the rivers and harbors, to build a navy and fortifications, and yet, when she came to ask the use of her product, she was charged with selfishness. Lastly he expressed a vigorous opinion of President Harrison and Secretary Windom in using every endeavor to defeat free coinage. The galleries applauded till the noise of Vice-President Morton's gavel was drowned.

After Senator Wolcott had ended old senators and new crowded about him with congratulations. They had found a new orator, a fresh young fellow who can interest the senate and shake things up. Don Cameron, who hates a speech as an unmentionable" but gentlemanly personage hates holy water, went over to sit with Mr. Wolcott. Senator Evarts and even Senator Morrill had pleasant words, which made the Colorado senator blush and laugh like a schoolboy.

HOPS AND PROTECTION.

The interest which Oregon farmers feel in hop raising is affected by a protective tariff. The committee appointed by the English house of Commons to inquire into the depression of the hop industry, has brought out some facts, which, if not very satisfactory to English people, are at least interesting to American hop growers.

That portion of Dr. Bell's evidence which most nearly concerns the American producer is his opinion regarding a protective duty on foreign hops going into England. Being asked if, in his opinion foreign importation was the cause of depression in hops, he replied: "The importation regulates the market for English hops."

"Do you think an import duty of, say 30s. per cwt., would benefit the English industry?"

Answer—"I think it would assist the industry."

"Would it increase the price of beer at all?"

Answer—"The increase in the price of hops would have to come out of the pockets of some one. I don't know whether the duty would increase the price of beer substantially, but the cost of production would increase to the extent of the duty."

In answer to further questions, Dr. Bell said, that in times past when the price of hops had been high, there had been no increase in the price of beer, but he did not know whether the gravity of the liquor remained the same.

From the facts brought out in this examination it appears that hop growing in England is not menaced by the introduction of substitutes; that it is not injured by the lessening quantity of hops used per barrel in the manufacture of beer; but that it is handicapped by the enormous importation of German and American hops. The English grower cannot raise hops as cheaply as the German or American grower, but a duty of 30s per cwt. would add 7½c. per pound to the value of his hops, and that without raising the price of beer to the consumer, according to Dr. Bell's own statement. It is a significant fact that the suggestion of such a duty came from one of the members of the examining committee, not from one of the witnesses. Our hop growers will watch with interest for the report of this committee, and afterward for the report of the House of Commons upon it.

DIVERSITY OF CROPS.

ED. JOURNAL:—I see considerable said in your columns on fruit growing. All of which are true enough. Yet our eastern friends may infer that raising fruit is the only profitable mode of cultivating the soil. We, who live back at a considerable distance from the city, and at an inconvenient distance from Salem's big canning and evaporating establishments, and being no nearer any other market for our fruits and vegetables, must find some other employment. We have one recourse that never fails us, and of which little is said in the valley papers,—from the reason that we live here in the foot hills enjoying the mountain air, and a prosperous and healthy life. The industry that I wish to call attention to, is that of dairying. With some experience in cheese and butter making, both here and in the East, I have come to the conclusion that there are few places where a better article can be produced with the same amount of labor and capital as can be in the foot hills of the Willamette valley. There are several reasons for this; first, we have mild winters and it requires but little feed for our stock, the early spring produces early pasture, and which cannot be excelled anywhere for dairy stock, as the quality of our butter and the quantity produced from limited herds will show. The old Empire state may boast of her dairying but we can show results with half the labor and with double the prices, that would startle her. The trouble of keeping the milk sweet here is a light task, the cool mountain springs which are abundant are all that is needed. Ice is not needed in summer and little is seen in winter. The milk here is richer in caseine matter and more butter can be obtained from the same amount of milk than from a pasture fed herd in any of the Eastern states. From some careful observations made from a herd of thirty cows of a mixed grade, a few half Jersey, but most of the herd were grades of Devonshire stock, which are not noted for dairy purposes, nor was that our intention when we selected the herd. They are a hardy cattle and fine beef stock. We found from our herd that about 22 pounds of milk would produce one pound of butter, and 10 pounds of milk, one pound of cheese. These figures are for the whole year. In the fall and when mill feed is used the results are better. The average price received for butter was about 25 cents and the cheese netted us about 12 cents. About 25 pound of milk is what may be expected from each cow per day, in an average herd where they have good pasture. Of course, many of the herd will go beyond this, but it is an extra herd that can do better and keep it up for three or four months. The air, the water and the pastures here are especially favorable for producing fine cheese and butter of a rich color and a flavor that can rarely be surpassed; yet this is done with half the labor required to produce the amount in the eastern states. Good dairy products find a ready market at paying prices, and the veal and beef and even the pork fattened from the milk from the butter room commands a good price. Our pork is not so fat as corn fed, yet for sweet hams they must be had in Oregon.

How to Cure Nervousness.

A body with a nervous temperament will make known its wants through its natural medium—the nervous system. If it fails to receive proper nourishment the nerves will be the first to cry out. Dr. Hiller's Hydrastine Restorative ensures perfect nutrition to those who take it, and a perfectly nourished body cannot be nervous. For sale at D. J. Fry's.

A Bargain!

A desirable lot of lands in lots to suit, seven miles southwest of Salem, within eighty rods of steamboat landing, the best oak wood and some fir timber—enough to pay for the land—and it is good soil for fruit, with springs and meadow land. Would take a good small lot of Salem property in trade. Address
