LITERARY NOTES.

Will Carleton is reported as having recently said: "Other writers of verse have laid great stress on the artistle faculty which many of them have possessed in an eminent degree, but with me the aim has always been first and last to reach the heart of the people, and to say those things which should both entertain and make me better. I hope I have not altogether failed in my efforts. I would rather appeal to the heart of a man than to his intellect."

Oscar Wilde contributes the complete novel to the July number of Lippincott's Magazine. It is enelimax. Wilde is a man of such an tion ball where the exercises took Western Oregon in its exemption possible to him, and so he has produced a novel entirely out of the orconception or criticism of this dra-matic story and besides, every one matic story, and besides, every one cellent and pleasing program.
