BOOMED INTO HELPLESSNESS.

Abnormal development is not only unsatisfactory; it is barren of results; it is fraught with positive evil; it is suicidal. The greatest danger to cities to-day is that they grow so fast as to be dangerous to themselves—almost self-destructive. The city grows out of all proportion to its ability to take proper care of itself. It is unable to properly police its rapidly swelling stream of vicious elements; it cannot keep its streets in order; it fails to keep up any kind of sanitary order; it is utterly incapable of coping with fires, the number of which is out of any ratio to fire records of larger cities of slower, more substantial growth. The floating and criminal elements present in large percentages, and the temporary character of buildings erected in over-boomed cities, constitute a double cause for conflagrations. Given an unusual amount of incendiary, a sense of police, and a city of paper origin and pasteboard houses—result fires.

Who does not recall the fires that have swept nearly every over-boomed city in the new West? Chicago was a horrible example, and there are thousands of smaller ones of similar character. The repeated devastations of Seattle and Spokane Falls are at once in mind and emphasized by recent disasters at the latter place, two destructive fires raging in one day. No one doubts that both fires were set and that the water supply and fire department are entirely inadequate. So general was this feeling that many people sat up all night rather than take chances of being burnt out while asleep. In the mean time insurance men reap a harvest of high rates and commissions. Wild cat insurance has a bonanza in such localities, while reliable companies either suffer enormous losses or withdraw from the field. They realize the apparent helplessness of the community and can only retire. What is more helpless than an overgrown, over-developed, hothouse municipality? It has all the vices of an older city, lawlessness is rampant, and none of the means of a well-ordered city to cope with the evil.

PARTY ASCENDANCY.

Governor Gordon, of Georgia, concedes too much in expressing the hope "that some republican senators would be found patriotic enough, broad and brave enough to prefer the well-being of the country to party ascendancy," and to vote against the federal election bill that has passed the house. Party ascendancy could only be gained by neglecting republicans to congress from the districts of the solid South. If any general election law can be framed that will allow the full and free vote of these districts to be cast that will be the only result—the polling of the present suppressed republican vote and election of republican congressmen. Without the solid south democracy cannot regain the presidency. In asking republican senators to disregard party ascendancy Governor Gordon waives all real objections he may have to the federal election law.

The fact is, there has been a wonderful growth of public sentiment to more perfectly safeguard the ballot. No law on elections is now to be cast aside unless it can be claimed and shown that it hinders the perfect freedom and security of the ballot. The inherent right of each citizen, white or black, to cast a ballot as free as a bird is the most sacred one under the constitution.

ONE MAN WHO KNOWS HIS MIND.

The King of Milan is the one man in the world who knows where he wants to stay—he is at Belgrade, the only place where he is execution-proof against his many creditors. Paris, and many other fashionable and delightful resorts for princes and noblemen, have no charms for him, as against his knowledge of the fact that in each of those places, bailiffs lie in wait to jump onto his royal highness for a million francs over here or a few million there. The King of Milan thinks Belgrade is good enough for him.

Here is one man who does not want the whole earth to romp about in. He does not want to move to some other country. He is not a kooker about climate, crops, his wife's health, or his own. Belgrade is rich enough for his blood. If he stays until he can pay his debts, there will always be one crowned head in Europe. At last accounts he shows no disposition to go anywhere but just stays right in Belgrade. Getting in debt is a royal fault, and the king was never known to condescend to such plebeian action as paying a debt. His only hope is an American heiress.

PACIFIC COAST SHIPPING.

The world's shipping records show that traffic to the Pacific coast is on the increase. The remarkable fact is that the volume of trans-Pacific commerce is comparatively small. Perhaps this is accounted for by the fact that on opposite shores of the Pacific lie the newest and the oldest civilizations—the new-born Occident and the Orient of Confucius. Inter-course between these antipodes of human progress cannot be great, as they have little in common. Even the Chinaman is accorded a vitriolic welcome.

Still Pacific coast shipping increases. June saw 8,000,000 bushels Oregon and California wheat afloat for British ports, four times as much as was afloat from any other coast. This month's record will be greater. At present there are 170 ships at sea with charters for San Francisco, 19 of which are from the Hawaiian Islands and 29 from New South Wales. The tonnage now bound for the Golden Gate is 258,144, a marked increase over 1889.

The maritime register at Portland shows a larger tonnage so far this year than all of 1889. Last year a 1500-ton vessel was a rarity. This year vessels of this draft and as high as 2000 are quite common. A 2000-ton ship had to pay over $2000 tonnage and pilotage fees under the old Oregon law; under the new bill the fee for such a ship is about $500. The shipping outlook on this coast is very bright.

UNCOVERED A WHOLE NEST.

The anti-lottery agitation has revealed a whole brood of corrupting influences, that have grown out of the evil aimed at. Not only was the press of New Orleans bribed, (with the single exception of a paper that it probably paid to keep on the off-side,) but legislators, congressmen and U. S. senators were swept into the net of bribery. The money which people all over the United States generously invest in lottery tickets becomes a corruption fund on an immense scale.

The Times-Democrat publicly states that U. S. Senator-elect White received $10,000 to use in securing his election. White denies and declares he will publicly reply to the charge of the press. If he does, of course that paper will retaliate, and the public will be regaled with facts pro and con. But all will be grist that comes to the hopper of the public ear.

The lottery swindle must be destroyed. It takes too much money for nothing. It corrupts too many public men and its poison gets into too much of our law-making machinery. The nation cannot stand it. Let the cry be with its death, as was that of Sulpis toward Carthage—"Carthago delendum est."

JEFFERSON NEWS ITEMS.

(From the Review.)

Men have been busy all week arranging heavy timbers and preparing for rapid work on the bridge.

A car of cement for our bridge is on the ground and about twenty men are rushing the work along at a lively rate.

By an order from the postoffice department the mail brought up on the evening train is held at the depot until the next morning.

The record is broken. G. F. Robertson left a bunch of tame clover at this office that is 5 feet, 6 inches in length. Who can beat it?

We have a sample of oats from the farm of E. N. Thomas, that are hard to beat. They were sown very late and the heads measure eighteen inches in length.

The late wheat is filling well, the berry is large and plump, and is an excellent yield. This will be one of the best harvests on record. The hay crop is well secured, the yield is above the average.

Marion and Linn counties have millions of dollars worth of gold and silver hidden in their mines in the Cascade mountains, and their productive valleys lands represent a wealth many times greater.

Otto Shultz has purchased of the First National Bank of Salem, 15,000 wheat sacks, which were stored in the mill at this place. They were taken to Marion to be used in the warehouse at that place.

An Irish Thrush at the Barge Office. The quietness of the Barge Office, New York, this morning was enlivened by the sweet singing of an Irish thrush, perched in a wicker cage that stood on a desk in the registry clerk's enclosure.

The bird belonged to an Irish emigrant who brought the feathered songster of his native land over the sea to America. Undisturbed by his surroundings the thrush poured forth a flood of melody that rose above every other sound, and filled the building with sweetest music, to the joy and admiration of all the emigrants and employees.

CAPITAL JOURNAL JOTS.

The Portland club has lost King Jim Borchers, a baseballist with about equal propensities for downing weak batters and strong drinks.

The men who tell you that all the seven days are to be kept just as sacred as the Sabbath and that the whole week is to be just as consecrated as Sunday, are generally not found to be over anxious to keep even the one day in seven.

The high importance which our legislators attach to the business of the people is shown by the unrecorded congressional record of the senate proceedings the other day, when an important amendment to an appropriation bill prevailed "because it was not desirable to show the absence of a quorum."

In reporting the fight between Billy Woods and Jack Ryan the press account has it thus: "Woods won the fight in the fifth round by knocking Ryan senseless." To knock a man senseless implies that the man knocked is translated into some other condition which he was formerly not in. We think there must be some mistake about the above report.

OREGON CLIPS.

Work is progressing rapidly on the foundation of the new school building in Silverton.

Ashland is still the metropolis of Southern Oregon and please don't forget it says the Tidings.

The ring of the carpenter's hammer is heard on every hand in Silverton, says the Appeal.

Two thousand dollars have been voted by the people of Burns for the building of a new school house.

Hale Backensto, a former resident of Albany, and Arthur Wilson, a drug clerk, were arrested at Dallas Friday on a charge of selling whisky to Indians on July 4th.

The canneries on the bay will not run this season, so we are informed. The reason assigned is decline in prices, canned salmon selling at present at the 90 per dozen says the Coos Bay News.

The Burns, Harney county, Herald, says: There are a good many persons in town who think the water impure, therefore, unhealthy. They have stopped drinking water. Good excuse gentlemen.

The Albany Mining & Milling Co., says the Democrat, have ordered a quartz mill and other machinery for their mines, which they propose pushing the coming season, having great confidence in their metal resources.

We understand that very rich quartz mines have been discovered within twenty-five miles of The Dalles, says the Mountaineer. Several specimens have been brought to this city, and the ore is as rich as any taken out in the Coeur d'Alene or Pine creek. As soon as the proper assay has been made, we expect to witness a grand stampede to these new discoveries.

The Cottage Grove Leader reports two accidents in one week to one of its neighbors, George Smith, of Lowell. Last week he had the misfortune to lose one of his eyes by a splinter from an iron wedge striking him in the eye. Now we hear he has had his right hand blown off by a gun exploding. He is a young man with a family, and just starting out in life, and to be crippled for life seems too bad.

Forage Plants in Oregon.

(From Pacific Rural Press.)
Editors Press:—In making note of the progress of different varieties of grasses and clovers this season, there are none more promising than orchard grass (Dactylis glomerata), fall oat grass (Avena elatior), and medium red clover. While others have done well and are worthy of recommendation and extended trial, those mentioned seem to take the lead, especially for hay. Good crops of hay were cut from these plants early in the season and a second crop has gotten a good start. All of the early grasses did the best this season. Timothy is below the average. Red top did fairly well. Observations this season have led me to believe that those grasses which grow rapidly, maturing in May or the first of June, will prove the most successful in this valley. The clovers and grasses mentioned came to maturity without the aid of any rain. They simply drew upon the supply which was held in the soil from last winter's rainfall. The later varieties, such as timothy, requiring more time to mature, were out short of their needed moisture. The supply was exhausted before they were ready to need it most.

Clover sown on College farm with winter wheat, during February, is all right so far, and promises to hold through the dry season. That's the last of March stands a much poorer show; in fact, much of it has given up the ghost already. We shall try seeding in the fall this season. A single failure should only teach us to try the harder for we must have clover and grass.

WEBSTER

ANCIENT AND MODERN
DON'T BE DUPED.

A so-called "Webster's Unabridged Dictionary" is being offered to the public at a very low price. The body of the book, from A to Z, is a cheap reprint, page for page, of the edition of 1847, which was in its day a valuable book, but, in the progress of language for over forty years, has been completely superseded. It is now reproduced, broken type, errors and all, by a photographic process, is printed on cheap paper and flimsily bound. It is advertised to be the substantial equivalent of "an eight to twelve dollar book," while in fact it is a literal copy of a book which in its day was retailed for about $5.00, and that book was much superior in paper, print, and binding to this imitation, and was then the best Dictionary of the time instead of an antiquated one. A brief comparison, page for page, between the reprint and the latest and enlarged edition will show the great superiority of the latter. No honorable dealer will allow the buyer of such to suppose that he is getting the Webster which to-day is accepted as the standard and the best.

There are several of these reprints, differing in minor particulars, but, don't be duped, the body of such is a literal copy of the 1847 edition.

WHAT THE PAPERS SAY OF IT.

The New York Times says: "Only those who are ignorant of the great advances that have been made in dictionaries are likely to buy this reprint at any price."

The American Bookseller of New York, says:

"The etymologies are utterly misleading, and naturally so; for when the Webster of 1847 was issued Company's Philology was in its cradle. The definitions are imperfect, requiring condensation, rearrangement and additions. The vocabulary is defective, some of the commonest words of to-day, especially scientific terms, for which a dictionary must often consult, being entirely absent. In not one of these three prime requisites of a dictionary is the Webster reprint a trustworthy guide, or rather it is a misleading one."

not intended for intelligent men. It is made especially to be foisted by all the arts of the book canvasser on those who have been precluded from a knowledge of what developments lexicography has undergone during the last forty-two years. This is the cruelest feature of this money-making enterprise.

The Buffalo Christian Advocate says: "Don't be duped. Thousands are, or are likely to be, by the flashy, fraudulent advertisements of 'The Original Webster's Unabridged Dictionary,' which is offered for three or four dollars.  If any of our readers wish to invest in a purchase which they will be likely afterward to regret, they will do so after being duly notified."

The Journal of Education, Boston, says: "Teachers cannot be too careful not to be imposed on, since the very things which make a dictionary valuable in school are wanting in this old-time reprint. Any high school dictionary which can be purchased for a dollar and fifty cents is worth more for school use than this."

Many other prominent journals speak in similar terms and legitimate publishers write us in strong condemnation of this attempt to foist an obsolete book on the public.

The latest and the best, which bears our imprint on the title page, has over 2000 pages, with illustrations on almost every page.
