A BIG FAIR.—Hon. M. Wilkins, of Lane county, a World's Fair commissioner for Oregon, was in the city over night and went to Portland this morning for a conference with the officers of the State Board of Commerce in relation to the mode of procedure for the best advancement of Oregon's interest at the great fair. Mr. Wilkins said to a JOURNAL reporter that from his knowledge and observation of the arrangements in progress the World's Fair, under the patronage of Ms. Columbia, will be so much the biggest world's fair that the world has ever seen, that the world will be amazed, and he is anxious serious in the administration that Oregon cannot afford to lose the opportunity of taking the place therein that belongs to it as a great common wealth. Nature has placed us in a position to make as grand a showing as any state in the Union, while the developments of industry have enabled us to step well to the front with the results thereof. These statements, coming from a careful and observant business man who has traveled in all parts of the United States, are entitled to a wide circulation and should be scattered abroad by our Board of Trade.

PROGRESSIVE SALEM.

Elements of Growth, Prosperity and Possible Future Development as Seen by an Ashland Banker.

Hon. H. B. Carter of Ashland spent a few days in Salem last week, and knowing that he had frequently visited the city in the past, a JOURNAL man asked him to kindly note down his impressions of Salem upon his return home. He has done so and his observations are printed below. These statements, coming from a careful and observant business man who has traveled in all parts of the United States, are entitled to a wide circulation and should be scattered abroad by our Board of Trade.

MR. CARTER'S LETTER.

FRIDAY HOFER: Our recent visit to Salem after a year's absence was a pleasant surprise. For years the city seemed plodding along in the even tenor of its way, not quite stationary, but improvements were "few and far between," especially modern improvements were conspicuous for their absence. The ubiquitous churches and saloons were not lacking, but within five years a stranger has looked in vain for a news stand, to find that a daily paper was an unmentionable luxury in the capital of Oregon.

A COMPLIMENT.—The Detroit Free Press says editorially that Clara Morris is both a great artist and a player of superior natural gifts. She knows the value and importance of detail; she employs the finesse of her art with nice discrimination, and she makes many telling points by seemingly spontaneous treatment of trivial things. Nothing can emphasize the significance of acting so fittingly, and nothing that she does seems perfunctory. When she goes to her mirror she does it because it is the natural and inevitable thing to do. If she drops her handkerchief, the incident has a meaning. Her elevation is the every-day speech of a woman who says what she has to say because that alone expresses her thoughts. There is no hint of studied lines. The author is never obscured. The spectator sees a woman with all a woman's capacity to do and suffer. It is her fortune in which we are concerned; her suffering that moves; her art that inspires our admiration; her pathos that compels our tears; her power that thrills us and our passion that thrills us. Clara Morris is not measurable by rule and line. She acts in splendid defiance of mere tradition being superior to the schools. In a word, she is Clara Morris—a wayward, unhampered genius whose work commands absorbed attention and whose achievement is unique.

IF A BODY MEET A BODY.

the result is a collision, whether you fall or the other falls, or if you fall and the other falls, or if you meet somebody or something. It isn't with our neighbors it is with us. We are the ones that are most liable to fall off the track and perhaps damage us for life. Women especially it seems have to bear the brunt of more than men. They are the ones that fall most. In all cases of nervousness, break down emotional tendencies, personal pain, and headache, causing all "female weakness." Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription comes to the rescue. It is the only medicine for women, and it cures under a positive guarantee, from the manufacturer. It is a safe medicine, and is used in every case or money paid for it will be refunded. See physician or bottle-wrangler.
