Dates Of Coming Events.

Friday and Saturday, Nov. 7 and 8. Eddie Abbott, boy magician, Reed's opera house.

Tuesday, Nov. 11, W. J. Armstrong's lecture, "Italy and Garibaldi."

Wednesday, Nov. 12, "Hearts of Oak," at Reed's opera house.

STREET CAR IMPROVEMENTS.—Some splendid improvements have been made in the operation of the street car lines during the past few weeks. The improvements have not been so much in the extension of the roads as in the better accommodation of the public. The horse car line has put in a switch on State street near the Methodist church, and have also completed their Y at at the intersection of State and Commercial streets and have put on two extra cars which gives very good accommodations on this road now. The electric line company have theirs about completed as far as Trade street. This will give that company about two miles of road in this city.

A DISTINGUISHED MAN.—The time for the appearance of Hon. William Jackson Armstrong, will soon be here. Mr. Armstrong's coming to Salem, speaks well of our city. A man of the reputation of Mr. Armstrong can only afford to visit cities of some literary standing. Salem has the reputation abroad of being an educational center. The people should show this by giving this noted lecturer a warm reception. He will give one of his most popular lectures, that of "Italy and Garibaldi." The lecture has been delivered in many of the eastern cities, and is highly spoken of. Let Salem show her appreciation for literary talent.

BUILDING IN EAST SALEM.—A number of new buildings are going up in this part of the city. A. F. Hofer has just completed a neat cottage out on Eighteenth street and will soon be comfortably domiciled there. John Patterson has one small cottage about completed, and the frame work of another under way of erection on East State Street, near the power house of the electric car company. Lumber is being hauled for the erection of a new cottage at the corner of Chemeketa and Seventeeth street. A number of buildings are yet under way of construction in the addition east of the S. P. depot, and a score or more houses have been built there in the past two or three months.

ACCIDENT AT THE FERRY.—Last night as R. H. Leabo and his father were returning from Dallas, they met with an accident at the ferry at this city. They drove up on the bank of the river and hallooed to the ferryman if all was clear, but the ferryman claimed he did not hear them, and they drove onto the ferry before the chain was taken down. The horses became entangled in the chain and both fell, beaking the buggy tongue, neck-yoke and doing considerable damage to the harness, besides their horses being bruised and their legs cut through with the chain. It seems there was not due care taken, either by the drivers or the ferryman.

WAS NOT INTENDED.—The JOURNAL gave the announcement of the wedding of Mr. M. G. Harlord, formerly of this city, but now of Spokane Falls, to Mrs. Susie Hill, of that city. The notice escaped the sight of the proof reader and a provoking mistake was allowed to go into the paper. The word contradicting was used instead of contracting. The JOURNAL hopes the contradicting may never enter their home, but peace and unity may ever abide there.

IS IT DESERTION?—Thomas Osborne, who has been living in one of Mr. Bruce's houses in North Salem, has left his family for good, so his wife says. The woman has returned to her parents near Brooks, who are also poor people. Mrs. Osborne has two small children and is not able to leave them so as to work to support herself. If Osborne has really deserted his family he should be forced to return to their support.

SOCIAL DOINGS.

Literary Work Leads in Social Circles —Theatrical Attractions—A Prominent Lecturer.

G. A. R. CAMP FIRE.

The sociable on last Monday evening was well attended. Commander Jas. A. Varney and Col. T. C. Smith gave appropriate addresses. After the supper tables had been cleared away, an hour was spent in social dancing.

FAREWELL RECEPTION.

About a score of friends of Prof. Clyde Cooke met at the residence of his mother, Monday evening to give him a farewell reception before his departure for the East. Prof. left Friday and went to Seattle, where he will remain for a short time before he starts for New York. He will spend this winter in some of the New York art schools.

AVENUE TENNIS CLUB.

The Salem Avenue tennis club held their meeting on last Tuesday evening at the residence of Mr. D. W. Matthews. This club now has a membership of about forty. They hold regular meetings at the homes of different members of the club and spend some very pleasant evenings.

THE PHILADORIANS.

The Philodorians and Philodosians gave a joint meeting in their hall last night. The hall was packed to its utmost capacity and the waiting room contained a score or more who could not find room in the hall. The main feature was the address of Dr. Stratton in behalf of the honorary members of the societies. He closed his remarks with an eloquent peroration to his alma mater. After the program was concluded a couple of hours were spent in social converse.

THE UNITY CLUB.

Unity club met at Mr. G. Steiner's on Tuesday evening, and valuable papers on the political and social conditions of England, France and America from 1775 to 1790 were read and discussed. The next meeting will be held at 7:30 p. m. sharp, at the residence of Mr. Wm. England. Papers will be read upon Madame Roland, Madame de Stael, Charlotte Cordry, La Fayette and Thomas Paine, and their connection with the French revolution. The meetings of the club are open to all who are in sympathy with its aims. Members respond at roll-call with a humorous quotation from the "Tale of Two Cities."

OPERA HOUSE TREAT.

The opera house was well filled last night, notwithstanding the numerous other attractions in the city. Their entertainment of last night will assure them a big house for their appearance to-night. If hearty applause bespeaks of how the audience appreciates the program, the entertainment must be pronounced a decided success. Master Eddie is surely a prodigy, and "Gumbo" lends his share to the fun provoking part of the program. Prof. Abbott, the Grecian mystery performer, was all that could be asked. There is not a dull feature in the whole play. Those who do not see the entertainment to-night will miss a treat.

FAREWELL PARTY.

About thirty young people gathered at the residence of Mr. G Steiner on Twelfth street last Thursday evening and spent a few hours in music, conversation and games. The party was given in honor of Edgar and Sidney Hanenstein, who have been visiting here the past four months, and are to return to their eastern home on Monday. They have made many friends while here and their depature will be regretted by many. The following are the names of those who were present to enjoy the pleasure associated with the evening: Miss Florence Steiner, Miss Oskie Matthews, Miss Lizzie Holverson, Miss Lizzie Hunt, Miss Ida Martin, Miss Pear Skiff, Miss Anna Golden, Miss Clara Blosser, Miss Carrie Willis, Miss Emily Thatcher, Miss Grace Savage, Miss Belle Golden, Miss Gertrude Savage, Miss Mary Steiner, Miss Alice Steiner, and Mrs. Al Hanenstein. Mr. Edgar Hanenstein, Mr. Sidney Hanenstein, Mr. Chester Murphy, Mr. Ladue, Mr. Chester Parvin, Mr. Ralph Matthews, Mr. Legg, Mr. Ginn, Mr. Steeves, Mr. Epley, Mr. Steiner and Mr. Willis.

ALKA-HESPERIANS.

The literary and musical social given by the Alka-Hesperian and Atheneum societies last night, was attended by over two hundred people. The exercises were opened by an address from Mr. W. M. Kaiser, in which he extended a cordial welcome to all present and set forth the objects of the society. The Misses Dalrymple favored the audience with a piano duet. They were succeeded by an essay by Mr. C. B. Brown, "The novel as arousing a desire for historical knowledge." Miss Grace Scriber read a selection, and in answer to a hearty encore responded with a second. An essay entitled, "The Evolution of Liberty," was read by Mr. H. H. Brown. Mr. J. H. Ross sang a solo and responded to an encore. Diamond's orchestra next played a selection. Miss Lena Willis then sang a vocal solo. Her encore was loud and long but she did not respond. The entertainment was a great success, although parts of the program were too long. It is the intention of the society to limit speakers to twenty minutes, and the society regrets that that was not perfectly understood.

Large 10 cent tablet for 5 cents at Crisman's 5 and 10 cent store.

UNUSUAL SALES.—Their immense stock and cuts in prices has been drawing Johnson, Boothby & Co., the Capital City clothiers, an increased trade in overcoats. The excellent way these garments are made up and finished, as well as the variety and styles, from youth to largest man, shows to what perfection the art of producing ready-made clothing has been advanced. any taste or demand for a special article can be laid before the astonished buyer's eyes on a moment's notice, and the splendid arrangement of the goods makes this a very desirable place to trade. d & w-1t

STOCK INSPECTOR.—Hon. John Q. Wilson was to-day appointed stock inspector for Marion county, Al Herreu having resigned. This, while a fairly well paid office seems to be little sought after. It was not learned to-day whether Mr. Wilson will accept the office or not. The selection is certainly a good one, as Mr. Wilson is a stockman of many years experience, and doubtless there are but few men in the county or state, who knows more about stock of all kinds, than does Hon. J. Q. Wilson, of Salem.

A NEW YEARS EDITION.—A special representative of the Portland Oregonian is in the city to write up the progress made by Salem the past year for the 32 page illustrated edition of that paper. The paper will have a large circulation and will be sold at the usual price of 5 cents. Salem illustrated and well written up will make this a desirable number for eastern circulation.

FAMILIAR NAMES.—U. S. Grant, postmaster at Dallas, Oregon, informs the JOURNAL that George Washington of that place has skipped out to parts unknown. George should have had more respect for the father of his country than to throw such a stigma on the familiar name of George Washington. The assistant postmaster at Dallas is Miss Nellie Grant.

He Was Surprised.

Rev. E. W. Clarke, the traveling correspondent for Frank Leslie's Illustrated Weekly, who has been traveling in the Northwest says: "This whole Northwest is a wonder to me. I can hardly believe my senses. I, in common with the people of the east, have labored under the impression that here were the wilds of America. Here in Oregon I expected to find frontier settlements of logs and adobe, with little patches of vegetables, wheat and Indian corn, growing among the stumps of recently fallen forests. Instead I find thriving cities, which for push and enterprise are far ahead of towns in the east. And here, too, is to be found one of the greatest wheat centers in the country. The people of the east will not conceive it until they come and see for themselves."

Oregon Senators.

(By Northwest News and Literary Bureau.)

The people of the Northwest are particular fortunate in the selection of senators that represent them in the national halls of legislation. It is seldom one observes in the press dispatches that one of our representatives at Washington makes a flaring Fourth of July oration, but if an appropriation is to be hauled through the committees, and a large slice of the public money is to be had, our senators are always on deck and ready for action. After all, that is what we want. If there is anything in the appropriation line that is to be handed out, we want our men to be right there, so that we secure all that can be had. It is interesting to know how men get their opportunities in life, and how they use them when once fortune's doors are opened. Talking of oratory, it may be noted, that we have small use for the article just now. Some of our Western men have attempted to electrify the country with the words of burning eloquence, but generally they have put their feet in it and have been laughed at for their pains. What we want is the genuine rustler, who throws dignity to the wind in serving his constituents. This thing of politics is a grab game any way, and the people might as well realize it now as later on.

JOHN H. MITCHELL.

Now take for an example, Mitchell, of Oregon, who has the Republican party of his state in the palm of his hand. When he came from the East he had nothing but nerve and pluck, a suit of clothes, three law books, and a desperate determination to win. Clients were few and fees as scarce as water agates. He drifted into politics, and easily placed himself at the head of a coterie of workers that rapidly moved to the front. When the senatorial contest came on, that is remembered by every man in Oregon, he had his wires laid pretty well for the capture of the prize. Quite suddenly, however, the Oregonian grew terribly virtuous, folded about its robes of spotless white, and began to sling mud at wicked brother Mitchell, held up the man's private character to public ridicule, and instead of moulding public sentiment against the aspirant by persecution, won for him the sympathy that finally elected him. Personally Mr. Mitchell is a very interesting man. He has a splendid form and wears a flowing beard of which he is particularly proud. There is no senator in the country who is more accommodating to his constituents. He spends whole days at a time, often, in looking up matters for the people of Oregon. Moreover, he deserves the greatest credit for reaching so honorable a position by the force of his own aggressiveness. He has a law office in Portland, and has gained a large practice by the reason of the "pull" he is supposed to have with the great men of the country. I saw him on the street quite recently and his step was as firm and his carriage as erect as it was twenty years ago.
