A SMALL THIEF.—Captain of police, Harry Minto, was called on today to make a search for some missing goods from F. S. Dearborn's bookstore and Crissman's variety store. The search revealed the fact that a small boy who lives on Front street back of Dalrymple & Co's. store, had stolen a number of articles from each store. J. M. Rogers, a clerk in the bookstore, has suspicioned this boy of taking things and set a trap for him. This morning he came in and made some inquiries about a novel for his mother and asked the price of a box of dominoes. A customer came in and while he was being waited on the boy skipped out with the dominoes. In an hour or so he came in, and this time was eyed closely and soon skipped out with two other articles. Mr. Crissman has also missed several articles and suspected this boy of being guilty. In the search the police found 12 boxes of cards, dominoes, checkers and other articles which had been taken from the bookstore and valued at some eight or ten dollars. A small wheelbarrow and wagon with some other articles were recovered which he had carried away from Mr. Crissman's. The little fellow does not look to be over 8 or 9 years old, but has a tough appearance. He is said to be of uncertain parentage. His mother's name is McDonald.

THE ART EXHIBIT.—The new Art Gallery at 36 Commercial St., is continually thronged by many of our leading society ladies and gentlemen, who are taking advantage of this opportunity of studying art in its highest form, both from real life and outdoor nature. This is a great treat to our art loving citizens, to view works by such a master in figure painting as Tojetti, and landscape painter as A. W. Best. Mr. Best is now forming a class in painting, which he will start on Wednesday next. Those desirous of joining should call as soon as possible.

A POSER.—"What would you do if your girl insisted that unless you got a new overcoat she would attend church and theatre with a fellow who has just invested his last dollar in one at Johnson, Boothby & Co's." "You will have to go get an overcoat or go without the girl," said his friend and he at once followed the sensible counsel. Nothing like a sensible friend, and the right kind of an overcoat is to be had of this firm.

A WRECKED CART.—Yesterday while driving toward town, Mr. D Steiner and son Albert, met with quite a mishap, on the Turner road, near the slaughter house. They were in a cart and by some cause run into a passing wagon which broke one of the wheels off their cart and hurled them to the ground. Mr. Steiner received several bad bruises and his hip was sprained. Albert escaped unhurt.

RECIPE FOR CORNED BEEF OR PORK.—Recommended by a prominent Polk county farmer: To 5 gallons of water take 6 pounds of salt, 1 quart of molasses or sugar, 1 ounce of cayenne pepper, a little salt petre. Boil one hour and skim. Let it cool and use like any other brine. Will make the finest red pickled meat.

STREET REPAIRS.—The street commissioner is having gravel hauled and put in the holes in front of the postoffice. This work will be fully appreciated by the many who drive to the Salem office for their mail. The rainy weather this has been an ugly mud hole.

ACCEPTED THE CALL.—Rev. T. H. Gwynne, of Madison, South Dakota, has accepted the call of the First Presbyterian Church of this city, and telegraphed Mr. H. V. Matthews that he would be here before the first of December. The Church expect to hear him preach Nov. 30.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.—W. P. Boot, superintendent Pullman Palace Co., sends from Portland the following notice to passengers: "All persons having pullman bedding, etc., are requested to kindly return the same to W. W. Skinner, depot agent at Salem, at my expense."

SALEM GRANGE No. 17.—This body had a large meeting to day, and some important matters were up for discussion.

LATER WRECK NEWS.

The Railroad Men Making a Strong Pull to Exonerate Themselves—Doubtful Stories.

The work of removing the wreck of the Lake Labish disaster is still going on and time only adds to the horror of the scene, and the mystery of how so many escaped such a wreck with their lives, still deepens. The number of the injured is much larger than was at first supposed, and many who were at first thought to be only slightly injured, are now found to have severe spinal sprains or internal injuries.

It was impossible to ascertain at first just the nature of the spinal and back injuries which are proving to be the most serious of all. Some of those still here are in a very critical condition. Miss Lata Hamblett, of Tacoma, was in a critical condition this morning. Mr Alonzo Hamblett and Mr. and Mrs. Junette are here attending to her and are considerably alarmed over her sufferings.

A CONFLICTING STORY.

A JOURNAL reporter, on the night of the wreck interviewed John Schenkel at the house of Mr. Hughes, where he had been carried. This was the first interview that was had with this man, and does not agree with that as given after he had been interviewed by other parties. Why this discrepancy should occur in his stat ments, is unaccounted for. He told the JOURNAL reporter on that night just after the doctors had dressed his cut face, that he and another man, whose name he did know, were riding on the front end of the first baggage car, just behind the tender, and were loading up wood for their passage. He said the first he knew of the wreck was he felt the train going through the bridge and he was instantly hurled from where he was standing and that he saw no one not even the man who was standing by his side. He was asked to describe the man who was with him and the description answered fully for the man who was lying under the trestle opposite the engine in an unconscious condition, and who was thought to be dead when the relief engine from this city arrived. The reporter in company with another man went to see who the supposed dead man was and found that he was still breathing and reported to the doctors. This man is now in room 31 at The Willamette and is in a critical condition and an interview was not allowed this morning. John Schenkel is also at The Willamette in room 31 and was interviewed this morning by a JOURNAL reporter. His statement corroborate with the one given by the other man. He said he had been on the engine handling down wood to the fireman not more than five minutes before the wreck occurred. On being asked if he saw or heard anything to indicate that the engineer had discovered anything wrong with the track, he said that he did not. He says the whistle which was given seemed to him to have been given as the engine was going down, and in his opinion there was no rail removed.

The company seemed to be endeavoring to make a strong witness of this man and the man who was with him. Their statements to the JOURNAL have not given the company much satisfaction.

PETTY ROBBERS.

As in nearly all great disasters some people are mean enough to commit dastardly robbery. Yesterday a valise was found in the brush, near the bridge cut open and relieved of its contents. It is not yet known to whom it belonged. Overcoats and other articles are missing. The worst punishment is too good for the fiend who would purloin the property of another in such a time. How many articles have been taken is not yet known, as the sufferers have not had an opportunity to see all their baggage.

THE CONDITION TO-DAY.

Most of the wounded who were brought to this city are improving nicely. Miss Clara Hamblett of Tacoma is considered in a serious condition. The man whose name could not be learned, no interview being allowed, and who was on the baggage car with John Schenkle, can hardly recover. He is yet in a semi conscious condition. James McGarry, U. S. marshal from Utah, is also in a weak condition, but hopes are entertained for his recovery. Others are suffering from spinal injuries and internal troubles whose conditions can only be hoped is not so bad as is supposed.

REOPENING THE ROAD.

The wreck is not all removed yet and it will be several days yet before the road will be open for traffic. A temporary bridge will be put in to allow trains to pass. The company will probably put in a fill with proper culverts.

ANOTHER FACT

tending to show that this bridge might have been injured, consists in the practice of unloading a gravel train with a gravel plow. Considerable gravel has been unloaded there. A whole train of gravel cars would be run upon the trestle, the brakes locked and then the engine would be hitched to a gravel plow running on a single rail in the middle of the flat cars. It would take the whole power of the locomotive thus drawing on the bridge to unload the gravel, and farmers in the neighborhood say the trestle, not being braced lengthwise was terribly racked by this immense strain put on it, and was in a shaky condition, the assertions of Mr. Grondahl, who is building the Salem bridge, to the contrary notwithstanding.

CONCLUSIONS.

From what can be learned from the interviews with the survivors it seems the engineer did not reverse his engine, and that he only had time to give a blast of the whistle and work the air brakes until he was hurled to his untimely death. The people who were hurt have had little sympathy with the railroad company. The rumor of a strange man being seen on this side of the bridge soon after the wreck occurred seems unverified. It is believed this afternoon that there is another man yet under the wreck. Mr. Schenkel stated on the evening of the disaster and also repeated the statement that four men were on the two baggage cars. But three of these men are accounted for. Two of them are at The Willamette and the other was buried from the morgue yesterday. Many believe the other man is yet in the debris of the wreck.

WESLEY SHANNON, DECEASED.

Departure From Life of the Man Who Drew the Bill For the Capitol at Salem.

The pioneer legislator, who drew the bill and made a gallant fight for an appropriation to build the present state house at Salem, has just passed away. He was Hon. Wesley Shannon, one of Oregon's most enterprising pioneers. He fought hard against putting up a $10,000 state house, and did as much as any other man to give us a state official government building of generous dimensions. He was a man of rich personal, progressive cast of mind, well posted in the history of the state and nation, and knowing nearly every pioneer in the Willamette valley personally. Of late years he has made his home in Eugene.

Wesley Shannon came from Galesburg, Ill., in 1845, and located on a farm near Salem. When he arrived the only considerable building on the present site of our city was the old Institute building, turned a few years ago, which was the architectural infernal of Willamette university. In 1847 he married a Miss E saleth Simmons, of Howell prairie. He always took a deep interest in public affairs, and was a member of the provincial legislature. A straight republican through all the years of the anti-slavery struggle and acting with the party in general, he was by nature an independent man, voting for men and measures upon their merits rather than upon party lines. His funeral services were conducted, at his request, by Rev. P. S. Knight, a fellow pioneer and personal friend, who always held him in high respect and considered it an honor to perform the last service on earth that one man can render another, doing justice to his memory. The funeral at the Congregational church was attended largely by the pioneer friends from Howell prairie and Eugene. To-closes the record of another of the founders of an empire of the Union a man of rare worth, a worker at honest toil, who leaves behind the imperishable monument of an upright citizenship.

SOCIAL REVIEW OF THE WEEK.

SOCIAL WRECKS.

Salem people who had social programs have all been vanquished. The disastrous influence of the Labish accident extended to all kinds of gatherings in the city and it has been next to impossible to get a quorum for any purpose. The Congregational society held their regular prayer meeting Thursday evening with diminished attendance. The pastor and many of the people had worked all day to relieve suffering. The young ladies of the Baptist society had labored all the week to arrange a chrysanthemum social. Rev. Whitaker and wife had gone to Newberg Tuesday, to visit Mrs. Whitaker's family. Yesterday they drove over to Aumsville to come home by train, but found all travel suspended and returned with but slight intelligence about the wreck. Friday they drove thirty miles a second time to reach home, and only got in by evening. The young people's society had been in suspense, whether to go on or not. If Rev. Whitaker had been able to communicate with them he would have had an announcement made public that it was not an opportune occasion for mirth when there was so much sorrow. Still there was a large attendance and at 8:15 Rev. Whitaker opened the program. He said the services need not detract in the least from their warmth of sympathy for the sufferers, and he had just come from the bedside of the injured. After singing, Miss Hattie Rundell and Carleton Morris rendered recitations. This was followed by a solo by Miss Ella Thompson. The strains of music and other parts of the program were soon agreeably interspersed with the fragrant fumes of coffee and other good things, which were partaken of by a large number.

A PLEASANT PARTY.

A number of young people met at the hands our residence of Mr. J. D. Dalrymple last evening and spent a few hours in various amusements. The first attraction, aside from the beautiful decoration which graced each room, was a "hemming" party in which three prizes were given, two for excellence and a booby. After a nice luncheon had been served, an hour was given to dancing. The following are the names of those present: Misses Anna and Ellen Claggett, Chapman, Messrs. Brown, Blanch and Myra Allen, Halverson, Bone, Gillingham, Meiehen, Dearborn, Earhart of Portland, Flint of Sacramento, Littlefield, Wilson of Seattle, Jesse and Kate Dalrymple, and Bess. Also the following gentlemen: Dr. J. C. Griffith, Jos. Albert, John Westacott, Alta Gregg, Paul Small, J. S. Phillips, Otto Wilson, Frank Hughes, I. A. Wiggens, L. L. Porter, Chas. E. Casper, Clara Abaker, Ras Gilbert, G. G. Brown and John Krause.

SOCIETY ELECTION.

The Philodosian literary society held their election of officers yesterday afternoon, with the following result. President, Miss Carrie Gheen; vice president, Miss Carrie Bradshaw; secretary, Miss Marsh; treasurer, Miss Nettie Carpenter; censor, Miss Florence Smith; sergeant-at-arms, Miss Grace Bunnell; librarian, Miss Ida Paul; custodian, Miss Gertie Cleaver. The Philosophians in the evening elected and report the following officers for the ensuing term: President, B. L. Steeves; vice-president, S. C. Dobbs; secretary, G. G. Spaulding; assistant secretary, A. A. St Clair; censor, G. A. Richmond; librarian, O. Eastman; treasurer, O. A. White; sergeant-at-arms, H. N. Rundell.

A VISIT TO LONDON.

It is not the good fortune of every person to visit London, the world's great city, and to get acquainted with her people, but every person in Salem has an opportunity to hear of the London society this evening at the University chapel. His lecture is full of vivid reality that carries one back to old London and makes him feel that he is in a strange circle of people whose customs are not entirely his own. All who heard Mr. Armstrong on Wednesday night will hear him again to-night and many others will avail themselves of an opportunity to hear one of the most natural lecturers that ever visited Salem.

AT THE OPERA HOUSE LAST NIGHT.

The people were slow in coming to the grand concert at the opera house last night by the Second Regiment band, but by the time the dancing began there was a fair audience, and an hour of so was spent in a delightful dance. The music was all that could be desired. The band was never a better organization than it is now. They have secured a number of new instruments until all their old brass horns have been replaced by silver. The cornet and baritone solos were duly appreciated, as Prof. Conner's and Lou Wells's playing always is.

THE GLEE CLUB.

The Glee club of the Good Templar lodge met at the residence of Mr. A. T. Yeaton on Tuesday evening and devoted an hour to singing and the remainder of the evening to games and the discussion of a luncheon. The club will meet next Tuesday evening at Mr. James Godfreys in South Salem.

CAPITAL CITY BAND'S DANCE.

Owing to the several attractions in the city last night, and that many people were tired from having spent a portion of the day at the wreck, but few were out to the dance given by the Capital City band, and a short time only was given to the dance.
