THE COMMISSIONERS DID THEIR DUTY WELL.

The East Oregonian is laboring under a misapprehension in the following:

The commission didn't censure the railroad. Oh, no; we were too hasty. Our high-toned commissioners would not stoop to censure the railroad. In this case they merely gave the road some fatherly advice; they requested the officials to "strengthen the bridge." Noble advice that was, proceeding from a noble body of men. The people of this state are greatly indebted to their railroad commissioners, for without that recommendation the Southern Pacific would doubtless have kept up its slaughter of the innocent in the gloomy swamps of Lake Labish.

The railroad managers forced the fight upon the commission to decide between their removed rail theory and the general fact of a rotten bridge. The commission fearlessly threw their contention aside and declare the bridge rotten, which throws the responsibility for the disaster upon the company. The commission did its duty well.

THE regular republican city ticket appears in this issue.

IF you don't take advice until you take it from a lawyer it always comes high.

THE last Harper's Bazar contains a beautiful picture of the empress of Germany. She is a bright and intelligent looking woman.

IN a month from now it can be ascertained just who has been silenced by the Southern Pacific railway company.

ONE example of enforcing the Oregon laws against cruelty to animals would put a stop to a whole lot of inhuman treatment of these noble animals in this city.

THE merchants at this season of the year are bored to death with appeals for charitable advertising to help all kinds of enterprises. If advertising does not pay as a business investment it is not worth having at any price and is only money thrown away.

CLELAND & CLELAND, attorneys at law, Portland, are a new firm just out from Iowa. Mr. John Cleland, of this firm, was district prosecuting attorney in Iowa, and for a time prominent in the profession at Fargo, Dakota. We welcome the gentlemen and their families to Oregon.

IT is rumored in Western Washington that Major McKinley will succeed Charles Emory Smith in the Russian mission. It's too bad that the administration cannot find fat "slts" for all its defeated congressmen; but there are not enough positions to go around.—East Oregonian.

IT is reported that the Union Pacific will soon have a force employed along its line filling in all the trestles, so that there may be no danger of accidents from rotten timbers. The good work of the railroad commission in calling rotten timbers by their right names is exerting its wholesome influence in many ways. It is a noble and fearless decision and goes far to redeem the commission in the eyes of all the people of Oregon except those interested in maintaining rotten bridges. Those can never be satisfied with such a decision.

ARGENTI NOTES.

A pleasant rain Sunday evening.

The Sunday school has a large attendance yet.

While our capital city cousins have been enjoying fog the past week Argenti has enjoyed sunshine.

Argenti has her population increased by two more gentlemen. Plenty of room for more.

The fine opening for a saw mill is still open. There is as fine a lot of good timber here as anywhere. Come and see it.

Mr. J. D. Wirth will soon build on his ranch. He says he is not going to batch long. Wonder who is going to cook for him.

Mr. D. A. VanGordien is doing a good business sawing shingles at Cedar camp. Give him your order when you want shingles, and it will be promptly attended to.

Mr. G. A. Lehman has driven his cattle out to winter them on his father's farm near Salem. That is a good plan as feed is very hard to get at his place, and he does not want to lose any this winter as he did last.

WOMEN'S ROUND TABLE.

Edited by Andrea Hofer.

THE AMERICAN GIRL AT HOME.

The following from the pen of latest literary lion, Rudyard Kippling, on the all important subject of our girls at home is interesting in the included comparison with the English and European daughters:—The American girls are pretty—Very much so—with a piquancy all their own, impossible to describe as to resist. Sweet and comely are the maidens of Devonshire; delicate and of precious seeming those who live in the pleasant places of London; fascinating, for all their demureness, the damsels of France, clinging closely to their mothers, and, with large eyes wondering at the wicked world; excellent in her own place, and to those who understand her, is the Anglo-Indian "Spin" in her second season.

But the girls of America are above and beyond them all. They are clever, they can talk; yea, it is said they can think. Certainly they have an appearence of so doing which is delightfully deceptive. They are original, and regard you with unabashed eyes—as a sister might look at her brother. They are instructed, too, in the folly and vanity of the male mind—for they have associated with boys from babyhood, and can discerningly minister to both vices or pleasautly snub the possesser. They possess, moreover, a life among themselves, independent of any masculine associations. They have societies and clubs and unlimited tea-fights, where all the guests are girls. They are self-possessed without parting with any tenderness that is their sex right. They understand. They can take care of themselves. They are superbly independent.

When you ask them what makes them so charming, they say: 'It is because we are better educated than your girls, and we are more sensible in regard to men. We have good times all around, but are not taught to regard every man as a possible husband. Nor is he expected to marry the first girl he calls on regularly.' Yes; they have good times. Their freedom is large, and they do not abuse it. They can go driving with young men and receive nods from young men to an extent that would make an English mother wink with horror; and neither driver nor drivee has a thought beyond the enjoyment of a good time.

But this freedom of the young girl has its drawbacks. She is—I say it with all reluctance—irreverent from her forty-dollar bonnet to the buckles on her eighteen-dollar shoes. She talks flippantly to her parents. The parents permit it.

Nothing is too good for an American's daughter. (I speak here of the moneyed classes.) The girls take every gift as a matter of course. And yet they develop greatly when a catastrophe arrives and the man of many millions goes up or goes down. His daughters take to stenography or type-writing. I have heard many tales of such heroism from the lips of girls who counted the principals among their friends.

CHILDHOOD'S BROTHERHOOD.

When a mother tells her child, "You must not play with Freddie Jones! He is a bad boy and will make you bad!" she has done her child an injury which is bound to bear fruit later, after its own kind, for its seed is in itself. We do not realize the bondage we place our children in when we teach them to fear anything, when we teach them that mingling with other children is going to corrupt them. We thus make them sin against their own souls, for we implant a sense of evil where before there was none.

If mothers could but see this one essential fact, that it is a crime, yes! a positive crime to implant a sense of evil in a child when, left to itself, it would have none, a great step would be taken toward the manifestation of that great law, the unity of all things, which is coming forth constantly by means of this great object lesson, the world we live in. Children often teach their mothers this very fact. A little four-year-old who was playing in his own dearly beloved "back-yard," saw a small head peeping at him over the fence, and extended the natural combined invitation and command to "Come and play!" His mother hearing more noise than usual, looked out of the window and was horrified to see with her cherished darling, a little boy who she had heard use shocking bad language a few days before. Of course she did her duty as a mother and sent the visitor home, consoling her own little one, as she wiped away his tears with the declaration, "My darling! He is not a nice boy for you to play with!"

Quick as a flash came the answer, "But, mamma, I am a nice boy for him to play with!" Verily, out of the mouth of babes, etc.

Obituary to a Cow.

A writer in the Country Gentleman has this appreciative sketch of a faithful milkgiver:

There died on our farm, a short time ago, a cow whose age entitled her to respect, if nothing more. But there was something more. She died at the age of twenty-three years, six months and fifteen days. She was born in March, 1866, and died in September, 1889. She was a member of our "household" over seventeen years. There was not a vicious streak in her; she was a model mother, and brought up a numerous family in the best of manners. She was not what might be called handsome, but not unlike homely folks, she was "dreadful good." She was a grade, by a prize-taker Jersey bull which sold when two years old for a large price, to go West. The dam may have had good parts, but in all probability to the bull belonged the qualities of the get. From her horns to tail she was distinctively Jersey, a generous milker always, and of a quality that proved her paternity.

She was a persistent milker too. During the seventeen years that she lived at our home she went farrow but one. That was when she went to the city of New York in a case of sickness, to help feed some babies. When she got through nursing the children, and saved them in spite of the doctors, she returned to the country and resumed the rearing of her own young. When two years old, her first calf came. She had twenty in all, including the last in her twenty-fourth year. This one, however, did not survive the process of weaning. The weather was hot, the season hurrying, and there was some neglect; but as fine a yearling heifer as stands in the township remains to attest the merits of a prolific dam in her twenty-third year. There are others older, and promising milkers.

One fact was satisfactorily demonstrated during the lifetime of old Minnie, and she lived long enough to prove and disprove many errors. She was in fact an experimental cow. To get good stock for milk or butter, whichever the purpose, much or most depends on the bull. In every instance of the service of a thoroughbred Jersey from a milking family, the get was correspondingly good; otherwise, most times indifferent. Of late years, with Jersey bulls of good strain in our own stables, there has been no variableness.

The old dam continued to graze almost to the last; but when she got so she could not longer lead the herd afield, and was obliged by defective sight and faltering step to surrender the "boss-ship" to a favorite daughter, her heart failed her; she was ready to die. So one pleasant morning, surrounded by the family preserved to her, with fading view of pastures green, and springs perennial, what there was of life in old "Minnie" went away without sign of pain or fear, I know not where. Nor did her flesh become the prey of bird or beast. There is a hillock in her feeding-ground.

Rich Harvest for a Michigan Farmer.

I have suffered for years with rheumatism loss of appetite and disordered blood, and after great expenditure of time and money had almost given up all hopes of relief. Hearing of Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup, I grasped it as a last resort, and after using six bottles found almost entire relief. I am now able to work on my farm with ease which I have not done in years, and I advise all persons suffering with rheumatism and other blood troubles, to try this remedy.

A sea-serpent, 103 feet long, was seen to coil itself up in slippery folds on the coast of Florida last month. Three reliable persons saw this creature distinctly.

Reader, the above is a "yarn." If people would believe the following truthful statement as readily as they swallow sea-serpent stories, it would be the means of saving thousands of lives. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, if taken in time, will cure consumption of the lungs, which is really scrofulous disease. If this wonderful medicine does not do all we recommend, when taken as directed, we will cheerfully and promptly return all money paid for it. Can any offer be more generous or fair? No other medicine possesses sufficient power over that fatal malady—Consumption to warrant its manufacturers in selling it under such trying conditions. The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not only the most wonderful alterative, or blood-cleanser known to medical science, but also possesses superior nutritive and tonic, or strength-giving properties, which assist the food to digest and become assimilated, thus building up solid strength and flesh. For all cases of Bronchial, Throat and Lung Diseases, accompanied with lingering coughs, it is absolutely unequaled as a remedy. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood and kindred affections, it surpasses all other medicines.

WHAT IS A TUBULAR WELL?

Be Sure to Read and Get no Other

A genuine Tubular well is constructed by putting down a three inch iron pipe, with no openings except top and bottom. No dirt can get in and only pure water can be got out. This is the only kind of well that worms and insects cannot get into, that is absolutely surface-water proof, and that is forced through the cement strata to the pure living water. It is positively the only kind of well that is worth building in this country. James A. Roberts, Salem, residence near fair grounds) makes these wells.
