unanimous as now. Already the signs of the times point unmistakably to serious differences among them. When these differences become solidified the colored voter will be in demand. Meanwhile, protected in life and property, slowly, but surely, coming up out of the ignorence imposed by bondage he can afford to wait. And so can the Republican party afford to wait. If every Southern member of the next house of representatives was a republican, we would be still short of a majority, and two years from now, when the beneficial tariff measure which is now the law, has had an opportunity, which time alone can give it, of demonstrating its wisdom, inspired by new zeal, I trust we will not need the assistance of the Southern republican representatives which this bill seeks to give us.

ANOTHER CONSIDERATION.

"But, Mr. President, above and beyond all the considerations to which I have referred, there is another and mightier reason for which, in my opinion, this bill should be defeated. For a quarter of a century out from poverty and despair, the South has been reaching forth an effort to plant its foot on the solid rock of material prosperity, and in view of the marvellous growth and transformation now taking place in the Southern states, I believe it would be unwise and unpatriotic for us to interfere in the conduct of its internal affairs. If I am not deluded by my hopes, at an early day the men in control of its destinies will permit the counsels of the republican party to have weight in the shaping of its future.

"The significant utterances in South Carolina during the past six months have shown us something of the tenacity of party discipline in the South. I have, I say, no hope for the immediate political regeneration of that section, but this does not affect the question. Slowly but surely, and as confidence grows, with accelerating speed, are the people of the Southern states not only regaining their old prosperity, but are leaving it far behind. Under these changed conditions, unused to effective laws, handicapped with countless disadvantages, they have yet come out and up into light. They have won the confidence of Northern capital and enlisted the aid of Northern enterprise, and there is no section throughout this wide land that to-day blossoms with brighter promise than the South. The history of mankind has shown no such wonderful growth and awakening. And rejoicing in the prosperity of every portion of our common country I am unwilling with my vote to intrude upon that people at this time a measure which means to them, but a renewal of strife and bitterness, and which is foreign to the spirit and dangerous to the freedom of republican institutions. [Applause in the galleries.]

NORTH HOWELL PRAIRIE.

The Christmas tree at the M. E. church was well attended and a merry time was enjoyed.

The sympathy of the neighborhood is with Mr. and Mrs. Ruble, in the death of their youngest child, which was buried at Salem last Saturday.

The socials given at Wm. Sappingfield's and Mr. Peraguoy's, durthe holidays, were enjoyed by nearly all of the young people of the place, and a general good time had at each.

The Ladies' Aid Society has a large and active membership, and they have done great good in raising funds for donating towards church property, among which was the payment in part for a fine organ for the church.

Miss Winnie Baughman has been visiting in the neighborhood.

Jennie Norwood goes to Salem this week as dressmaker.

A number of the citizens attended the exercises at the "dedication of the Silverton school house," New Years.

A Happy Solution.

Eugene State Journal: An effort to remove the Willamette university from Salem to Portland has been abandoned, to the great relief of the Salem people and papers. They were swinging war clubs of enormous weight and threatening instant death to all "traitors" "ingrates," and "real estate speculators from Portland and Columbia Slough" But now the Salemites and the Portland speculators are all happy, because the former are to keep their university and build it as tall as the tower of Babel. And the latter are going to build for themselves a university somewhere near Portland or perhaps over on the "Columbia Slough," that will so far eclipse the Salem affair that a comparison will seem odious. We are glad that this happy ending to a vexed, unpleasant question has been brought about by the good sense of the Portland people, who perhaps could have taken the university away from Salem had they persisted in their efforts, but it would ever have been remembered by many throughout the State as an act of injustice, and would have injured, them in many ways, and on many occasions, so they would have received more harm than benefit from it in the course of human events. Justice and fair dealing pays in the long run between nations, states and cities, and between individuals. Portland and Salem have the lion's share of the wealth, public buildings and all that is most desirable in Oregon. They should be content with, this and should not try to interfere with each other. And by all means they should refrain from interfering with any of the less favored towns of the state.

Science Overcomes Deafness.

Just now the medical world is discussing the new device for deafness called Sound Disc. No invention of late has attracted so much interest among the medical profession. Its perfection, which is now an established fact, has resulted in the overthrow of many pet theories of there being no relief for a vast number of cases of deafness.

This ingenious discovery was made by H. A. Wales, of Bridgeport, Conn., and coming as it does with the approval of some of the leading Aurists of the world it can hardly fail to prove of great value to both the profession and the afflicted.

My lungs were badly diseased, and my parishoners thought I could live only a few weeks I took five bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery and am sound and well, gaining 26 lbs in weight."

Arthur Love, Manager Love's Funny Folks Combination, writes: "After a thorough trial and convincing evidence, I am confident Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, beats 'em all, and cures when every thing else fails. The greatest kindness I can do my many friends is to urge them to try it." Free trial bottles at Fry's drug store. Regular size 50cents and $1.

Capital National Bank.

We publish in another column the report of the condition of the Capital National Bank of Salem, as called for by the comptroller of the Currency at the close of business, on the 19th day of December, A. D. 1890, showing a very prosperous and safe condition, and in comparison with former statements, showing a remarkable growth in its business. Notwithstanding the present stringency in money, the world over, the item of deposits in this bank show a gain of over $50,000, compared with their statement as published one year ago, aggregating now a quarter of a million dollars.

Able management, and courteous treatment of its customers, has made this the leading bank of the city. President Wallace, and Cashier Albert are wide-awake, enterprising citizens and both take an active part in all meritorious enterprises looking to the development of the rich resources of the Willamette valley.

A New Year's Gift

Which will be acceptable to all horsemen. $2 a set has been the ruling price heretofore, but of late I am informed some are favored at $1.50. Believing that all are equal and should share alike, all teamsters and farmers will hereafter be served at my shop at the new price, $1.50 per horse, cash in hand, I have a large stock of shoes, and I have a large patronage, gained by superior mechanical skill during 3½ years in Salem. A four years' apprenticeship, four years in a veterinary school, several years in steamboat work, railroad shops, etc., enables me to do any piece of forging needed —mill work, threshers, reapers or anything else. In the same shop will be found a superior wagon maker in the person of J. H. Elgin, who will do all work in his line in the best possible shape at lowest rates. JOHN HOLM,

The readers of the CAPITAL JOURNAL will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address, F. J. THE SHARK'S HABITS.

The Fish Is a Great Coward in the Presence of Living Men.

The author of "On Blue Water," a man who had sailed much on tropical seas and had many opportunities for studying the nature and habits of fish, treats the common belief that the shark is a man-eater as a superstition. Man does not have his dwelling in the water, and it is only rarely that, by accident or design, he exposes himself to the attacks of the shark. It is not likely, therefore, that he was intended to be the natural and preferred food of the fish. The writer referred to above says that he had never conversed with any one who had seen a living man attacked by a shark. He gives an amusing account of a meeting between a black sailor and a shark, which makes it appear that this fish is a great coward in the presence of man.

His ship, an English one, was lying in Bombay harbor. An enormous white shark lay sluggishly on the surface of the water only a few feet from the ship's side. The sailors were making such remarks as "He's got his eye on us for supper," and when this opinion was doubted, they challenged the incredulous to put a foot in the water within the shark's reach.

A negro made a bet of a pound of tobacco that he would jump into the water just as he was. The bet was taken; and, without removing any of his clothing, the man jumped from the rail plump upon the monster's back. The fish was large enough to have swallowed two men, but his fright overcame any longing for human flesh. The narrator says:

"I have seldom seen any thing so scared as that shark was; he plunged off, half his body out of the water at times, leaving a wake like a paddle-boat behind him which could be traced for three or four hundred yards where he dived, and never showed himself alongside our ship again."

This instance would, perhaps, be met with the objection that sharks show a preference for white men to feed upon. This common notion has been adopted from observing that the colored South Sea Islanders spend much of their time in the water, wholly indifferent to the sharks which swim around them. If the shark is really partial to white victims, he probably selects them from sight, not from taste.

When the shark gets a taste of human food, he no doubt experiences unusual delight, and from that time on is a ferocious man-hunter.

The case is much the same with the shark as with the tiger. Not one of a thousand of either of these creatures stands any chance of ever tasting human flesh, and before having done so they both stand in mortal fear of the face of man.

JUSTIFIABLE WRATH

A Pretty Girl Reporter's Experience with a Blundering Proof-Reader.

"I've seen lots of male editors whose yearning dream was to shed some proof-reader's rich, red gore," said a newspaper friend to a Chicago Mail reporter, "but I never saw a woman on the rampage but once. She was the society reporter on a paper I worked on out West. I must confess that the proof-reader was one of the worst of his class—dire bad isn't half strong enough. There wasn't a day but somebody's story wasn't made as silly as an end-man's joke by the proof-reader's blunders, and there was always somebody, from the city editor to the night-policeman, who was looking for his scalp. I reckon he had a cave somewhere and that he hustled himself into it and locked himself in when the paper went to press and staid there till nightfall. Anyway, nobody could ever find him. But one night he got hold of an account of a swell reception—the biggest social blow-out the town had known for seasons. Every body was there in war paint, and the women who held family purse-strings were in their glory. Of course the paper did it up in great shape, and of course it fell to the fashion writer to describe the costumes. She threw herself, because it was a great chance, and was mighty proud of the column and a half description of the toilets she turned in. But, holy smoke! You should have seen her when she appeared at the office the next afternoon and asked where she could find the proof-reader. She was white and red by turns, and spluttered so she could hardly talk straight. Every body gathered around her to learn what had happened, and she said:

"'Miss So-and-So was the belle of that affair last night, and for several reasons, some of which are entirely personal, I took great care to describe her toilet accurately. I wrote, among other things, that she wore a wide antique collar and band cuffs,' and here's the way that brute of a proof-reader fixed it:

"We looked at the line she pointed out and saw that it credited the daughter of the richest man in that section of the country with wearing 'a snide antique collar and handcuffs.'

"One by one we silently shook hands sympathizingly with the fashion reporter, and she took a hat-skewer from her pocket and braced out into the composing-room looking for the proof-reader. She didn't find him. I don't reckon she ever squared it with the girl."

A TRILLION KISSES.

How Long a Time This Osculation Extraordinary Would Take.

The case of the Florida man who had his love letters produced and read in court should teach other lovers moderation in the making of osculatory contracts.

In a single postcript the Florida man undertook to deliver to the lady of his choice no less than 1,000,000,000,000 kisses. And as such contracts are not infrequently made in love letters it may be well to give a thought to the magnitude of the undertaking, says the Boston Globe.

Whoever will take the trouble to figure it out will find that, even if this amorous Southerner should give the lady 15,000 kisses a minute (and we affirm that no person could hope to do more than that), and even if he could keep up this rate of osculation twenty-four hours a day, never pausing to eat, sleep or take breath, working 365 days every year, it would take him more than 100 years to complete the contract. And by that time, it is painful to reflect, the ardor of his love may have cooled. Even at the end of 100 years, counting 15,000 kisses a minute, there would remain an undelivered balance of more than 200,000,000,000, a number which in itself might well appall the most industrious.

We therefore feel constrained to advise writers of love-letters not to undertake contracts of the magnitude of that reported from Florida.

An Old-Time Duel.

In the duel between De Witt Clinton and John Swartwout back of Weehawken, in 1802, Clinton hit Swartwout five times, and each time Swartwout demanded another shot. Once he was hit in the arm, then in the leg, then in the finger, and finally somewhere else; but, while struggling on the ground in great pain, he insisted that he should have another chance, though his antagonist was as yet unhajured. In view of such ridiculous persistency Mr. Clinton finally cast his pistol on the ground and walked off, with the remark that he had no patience with a man who did not know when either his wounded honor or his [illegible] was satisfied or overeating, or the partaking of too rich and indigestible food, is a common cause of discomfort and suffering. To immediately relieve the stomach and bowels from such overloading, a full dose of Dr. Pierce's Purgative Pellets is the best remedy. They operate gently, yet thoroughly and without griping, nausea, or other unpleasant effects.

If the too free indulgence in such intemperate eating has deranged digestion, causing dyspepsia and biliousness, attended with a sense of fullness or bloating after eating, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in mouth in the morning, on arising, drowsiness after meals, indescribable feeling of dread, or of impending calamity and hypochondria—then you need to follow up the use of the "Pellets" with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, to tone up the stomach, invigorate the liver, and set all the processes of digestion at work. While curing indigestion, it purifies the blood, cleansing the system from all humors and blood-poisons—no matter of what name or nature, or from what cause arising. There is nothing similar to it in composition or approaching it in results. Therefore, don't be duped and induced to take some substitute, said to be "just as good," that the dealer may make a larger profit.
