FOR THE JETTY.—The contract for furnishing stone for the jetty at the mouth of the Columbia has been awarded to Joseph Smith, of Portland, who agrees to turn over the loaded barges to the government tug at North Portland, and to furnish the rock for 63 cents per ton. His bondsmen are C. P. Bacon and George W. Weidler, also of Portland. The rock will be taken from the quarry near Milwaukee on the Willamette river. The rock has been brought from near Washougal, Wash., that have been used in the jetty during its progress in the past two or three years, and cost several cents a ton more than the price Mr. Smith offers to furnish the rock.

Rep Hall spoke for the bill. He made no charge of fraud, but evidently a gross and unintentional mistake, and the speaker showed how emendations and insertion in the act of 1889.

In 1889 Simon received 200 votes and held a certificate of election, and to avoid all legal controversy, his election is recognized in this bill until an election can be held. The only question was, shall the people of Portland have right to choose their own police board, or shall it be made perfect with all the powers of the czar of Russia. The police of Portland affected the politics of the whole state, and formed the basis of a political machine, that had its ramifications all over Oregon, and was an immense power in the hands of politicians for revenue only, which placed the gamblers and vicious elements of Portland upon a par with the clean and respectable voters of Oregon.

Rep Jennings opposed reference. He was in favor of the people electing all officials from United States senator down.

On motion to re-commit ayes 6, nays 48; lost.

Rep Coleman said that as the Australian ballot bill had passed this house, the disgraceful scenes attending the last Portland elections could not be repeated and he hoped every gentleman on this floor would vote for this bill.

The vote being taken resulted as follows: ayes, 54; nays, 0. So the bill passed.

The house received a message from the state of Washington relative to joint action on the Columbia river.

Rep Thomas said the Multnomah delegation were a unit on this bill.

It was time to sit down on this infamous usurpation of office and restore to the people of this country the right to select their own police commissioners and control their own affairs.

Rep Holmes said it was not in accordance with the constitution of Oregon, that the legislature had not power to appoint. This power rested with the governor only and offered the following amendment: That names be struck out and governor appoint.

Speaker ruled amendment out of order.

Rep Minto said this house represented one branch of the sovereign power of the people. He opposed delegating this power, but should refer this to the home rule of the people of Portland. Local self-government had been taken from the people of Portland.

The case is very mysterious and is hard to understand by the physician.

A STRANGE CASE.—A report comes from North Salem of a very strange case by which the little girl of S. F. Parker is effected in her speech. She came home from school one evening about two weeks ago and talked as freely as usual, ate her supper and went to bed as usual with nothing apparently the matter, and the next morning she was unable to speak above a whisper. She still appeared in good health. The case excited the alarm of her parents and a physician was summoned, but he was unable to detect any disease. The child is up playing about the house, but for nearly three weeks has not been able to speak aloud. The case is very mysterious and is hard to understand by the physician.

Rep Holmes moved to recommit with instructions to report.

After reading, which took 90 minutes, the Australian ballot bill passed the house without a dissenting vote. The house then adjourned.

MORE VICTIMS LEAVING.

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Kimberly of Neenah, Wis., and Mrs. W. J. Hewett of Menasha, Wis., left for their homes this afternoon in a special car. They were all victims of the Lake Labish disaster of Nov. 12. Mr. Kimberly had to be carried to the car, as he is paralyzed on one side and is unable to walk. Mrs. Kimberly can walk by the aid of crutches, while Mrs. Hewett has pretty well recovered from her injuries which were fractured wrist and general bruises.

Dr. W. H. Byrd accompanies them as attending physician and J. A. Dickey as nurse. None of these victims wanted the power of electing their own police commissioners.

Rep Hall spoke for the bill. He made no charge of fraud, but evidently a gross and unintentional mistake, and the speaker showed how emendations and insertion in the act of 1889.

In 1889 Simon received 200 votes

The only question was, shall the people of Portland have right to choose their own police board, or shall it be made perfect with all the powers of the czar of Russia.

The police of Portland affected the politics of the whole state, and formed the basis of a political machine, that had its ramifications all over Oregon, and was an immense power in the hands of politicians for revenue only, which placed the gamblers and vicious elements of Portland upon a par with the clean and respectable voters of Oregon.

They all speak highly of the hospitality of the people of Salem towards strangers. There are four of the injured yet in this city. They are J. S. Bartholomew, W. W. Creek and Mr. and Mrs. Hamill.

OREGON AHEAD.

From the class and conduct reports of the semi-annual examination held at the United States military academy, West Point, N. Y., 1891, it is learned that Cadet William B. Ladue, of the fourth class, a son of Mr. Wm. N. Ladue, president of the First National bank, of this city, has distinguished himself and honored Oregon, by attaining the proud position of head of the class, being first in all subjects. The fourth class is composed of eighty-seven members, of whom seventy-nine were present and eight absent. His standing was as follows: In mathematics, No. 1; English, No. 1; general merit, No. 1. Young Ladue's standing in his classes at West Point is very gratifying to his friends in Salem and a proud honor to the state which he represents.

CITIZENS IN CONFERENCE.

Capitalists and Leading Business Men

Discuss the Importance of Willamette University.

About two dozen of the leading capitalists and business men of Salem met in the parlors of the Capital National bank last night to take some steps toward putting the Willamette university on a financial basis, and providing a suitable location where ample grounds can be had for a campus, that will not only fill the present demands but for all further wants in that line. W. J. Herren was chosen chairman of the meeting and O. M. Smith secretary.

Geo. P. Hughes was called on to state the object of the meeting. He responded by giving the exact financial situation of the school and its present needs. Mr. Hughes is secretary of the board of trustees and keeps a record of all money received and paid out and fully understands the wants of the school. He spoke of what the citizens had done for the school and what it had done for them in return; and that many sacrifices had been made by the friends of the University to hold it in Salem. He said that men in the city who had not given much thought to the school while everything was moving along quietly are now taking a deep interest in the retaining of the institution at Salem, and they are willing to work for that end.

Dr. Rowland, Judge Henry and others spoke in favor of the citizens taking the matter in hand and making the Willamette a great school. Judge Henry said he came to Salem for the reason that the University is here and that Salem is the only proper home for the school.

The unanimous voice of those present last night was that the citizens should rally around the school and give a strong support. The following resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote.

"Resolved, that we, as citizens of Salem, realize the importance of the Willamette university to this community, and realize its need for more educational facilities, and believe it our duty to use all legitimate means to place that institution in a position to meet the demands being made upon it."
