Oregon Crop-Weather Bulletin.

Farm work is slowly progressing. Seeding on uplands is being pushed rapidly, on low lands the soil is too wet for it to be worked. The acreage of spring grain is being increased. The early sown grain is above the ground and looks to be unusually healthy, though of slow growth. Fall wheat is also of slow growth, but its roots and stools are large, and it is generally reported to be looking unusually well. Wheat prospects were never better at this time of the year than at present, the same can be said of other grain fruits and crops of all kinds. Fruit is slow in developing. In some counties peach, almond, quince, apricot, plum, cherry and early apple trees are in full bloom and leaves showing while in others the buds are only swelling or just showing. The lateness of the development of fruit buds almost certainly precludes the possibility of damage or injury by probable late frosts.

Tacoma Globe: If we were an old established state, in a position to develop our own resources by our own capital and snap our fingers at the world, conditions would be very different. As it is the state of Washington cannot afford to shut its gates against the capital by which the state must prosper.

Portland Telegram: The Oregon Humane society, in awarding prizes to the school children for the best original productions on animals, has hit a plan that, if generally practiced in our schools, would have a telling effect on the rising generation and add much to the comfort of the coming dumb brute. The fact that the members of the Humane society offered the rewards is evidence of their conviction that a study of animals, their habits and characteristics, will incite sympathy for them and cultivate a spirit of gentleness toward them. In discussing the horse they will hardly forget to condemn the tight overhead rein, which subjects this noble animal to much cruel torture.

The Walla Walla farmers' alliance denounce the vetoes of Governor Laughton's freight reduction bills in the following language: "We look with horror and dismay upon the spectacle of a high official's truculency to corporation interests, and his utter disregard of the most sacred interests of the common citizen farmers of the Great Inland Empire. His action upon these matters conclusively proves to us that a determined stand must be made to secure the rights of the common people, as against the overpowering influences of the great transportation companies doing business in our midst. Words are too weak to express our detestation of such prostitution of the people's highest officers powers to serve private interests."

Nearly Frantic.

Has it ever been your misfortune to be brought into frequent contract with a person excessively nervous. If so, you must be aware that trivial causes, unnoticed by the vigorous, drive a nervous invalid to the verge of distraction. It is as unnecessary to particularize these as it is impossible to guard against them. The root of the evil is usually imperfect digestion and assimilation. To assist these functions, and through their renewed, complete discharge to reinforce weak nerves, in conjunction with other portions of the physical organism, is within the power of Hostetter Stomach Bitters, systematically and continuously used. There is no disappointment here, no matter what or how grievous the failures of other so called tonics. No sedative or opiate—avoid both!—can compare with this invigorating nerve tranquilizer. Constipation, billiousness, malaria, rheumatism, kidney troubles are cured by it.

The World Enriched.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited, and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to cleanse the system gently in the Spring-time or, in fact, at any time, and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.

A Michigan Central Railroad Employe Wins His Case, after Seven Years Contest.

While employed as agent of the Michigan Central Railroad Company, at Augusta, Mich., my kidneys became diseased, and from an impoverished and impure state of the blood, my general health was entirely undermined. I consulted the leading physicians of this city and Ann Arbor, and all pronounced my case Bright's disease. In October last, I began taking Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup, and am to-day a well man. It affords me pleasure to render suffering humanity any good that I can, and I wish to say that it is the greatest blood, kidney and liver medicine in the world.

"No danger of that," said his wife, "it will set off the rest, and make them all look handsomer."

"It may be so," said George, doubtfully. "I suppose you know better about such things than I do. If you are desirous of having it, I suppose I can buy it."

"Oh, George, if you only will, it will be such a comfort!"

"Then," said her husband, turning to the clerk, "you may send it to my house."

"It shall be done this forenoon."

The young husband took five ten-dollar bills from his pocket and paid them over for the sofa.

"This is the money," said he, as he was walking home, "that I was going to put into the savings-bank. You know that this is quarter-day, and for the last four I have put in this amount. Now, in consequence of our new purchase, I shall not be able to."

"It is only for once," said his wife, "and then only consider how much better our parlor will look."

Was it only fo once? Time would show.

When that sofa came home, and was installed in the place of honor, the old-fashioned sofa was removed to a chamber. Somehow it did not seem to set off the room as much as it was expected to. It looked out of place, as Mrs. Hall could not help confessing to herself, though she was not disposed to speak of it. The plain but neat Kidderminster carpet looked decidedly cheap in comparison with it. However, Mrs. Hall resolutely shut her eyes to this unpleasant fact, and continued enthusiastically to expatiate in praises of the new sofa. She could not be contented until Mrs. Savary had called and expressed her opinion of it. This happened before long.

"My dear," said that lady, taking a critical survey of the apartment, "your sofa is a handsome one, I acknowledge, but will you pardon my suggesting one thing?"

"Certainly, Mrs. Savary."

"Then allow me to suggest that a dark Brussels carpet is necessary to have it show to good advantage. Now this Kidderminster, I dare say, is a tolerably good one, but it couldn't have cost more than a dollar a yard."

"Only eighty-seven cents," said Mrs. Hall, a little confused.

"So I supposed. Well, you see, a carpet at eighty-seven cents a yard doesn't correspond very well with a fifty dollar sofa. To tell the plain truth, the old-fashioned sofa looked more appropriate."

Mrs. Hall almost wished that she had never bought the new sofa, but, having done so, she was determined, if possible, to have every thing to correspond. She was too wise to say any thing about it at present, but waited until a week before the next quarter-day.

Then she began to indulge in brief hints, which at length became more decided. At first, George would not hear of a new carpet. He was determined not to omit his usual quarterly deposit this time; but at length his wife's importunities succeeded, aided by a lurking conviction on his own part that there was a real incongruity between the sofa and the plain carpet. The new purchase cost fifty dollars and a trifle more, which made George look a little sober; but he could not deny, as his wife said, that the room looked a good deal improved.

And was this all? By no means.

By the time the carpet was put down, it was discovered that the chairs, which were only cane-seated, looked quite inferior to the good company which had recently been introduced. When the next quarter-day arrived, it was found absolutely essential to purchase some black stuffed chairs. Afterwards came a new mirror, and a piano was hired, for even Mrs. Hall did not venture to suggest so large an outlay as purchase would require. So the piano was brought, and some fifty dollars a year were paid for its use, 'though, by the way, it was never used, since Mrs. Hall had no ear for music; and therefore it served only for ornament.

By the time the year was up, George found that two hundred and twenty-five dollars had been spent for furniture, and not one cent had been deposited in the savings bank. More than that, as their style of living had increased with their new furniture, which had unconsciously elevated their ideas. George found himself some hundred and fifty dollars in debt. At this time, or just before, the great commercial revulsion had swept over the land, and George's employers had not been spared. They had not failed, but their resources had been greatly crippled. They called him aside on the last day of the year and told him that, though they should be glad to retain him in their employ, they should be obliged to cut down his income for the year to come to six hundred dollars. He went home much depressed, as well he might be. His expenses increased, his income diminished, and a debt to pay, which would swallow up nearly all he had laid aside in the savings bank.

He at length told his wife the cause of his despondency, on her anxious solicitation. The vanity and love of show she had exhibited lay on the surface. She determined to express her sympathy in an active way. What that was I will explain.

When George came home the next evening to tea, what was his astonishment to find a load of furniture before his door.

"Can it be possible," he thought, "that Mary has been purchasing new furniture?"

Looking more closely he observed that the new parlor sofa and other articles of furniture were included in the wagon-load. Full of amazement he entered the house.

"What's all this, Mary? What have you done with the parlor furniture?"

"Sold it," said his wife, composedly.

"Sold it!" exclaimed George, in surprise.

"Yes; I knew that your circumstances were not as good as they have been, and I thought the money would be worth more to us than the furniture. I had heard that the Walkins were about to furnish their house, and thought they might be willing to buy our furniture at a reduced price. Here is what I got for it."

She placed in her husband's hands a purse containing one hundred and fifty dollars.

"Mary," said he, with emotion, "you don't know how you have relieved my mind. This will just pay off our debt, and I shall not be obliged to take the money from the bank."

The year passed. Again business revived, and with the first of January George had his salary raised to one thousand dollars; but though his means are increased, his wife has learned a valuable lesson, and probably will be content, for some years to come, at least, with the Old Fashioned Sofa.

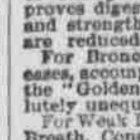
Maggots in His Ear.

A gentleman named Lord, from Alabama, some days ago had a fly suddenly enter his ear, from which it was promptly extricated. The insect then as suddenly disappeared. That night Mr. Lord experienced a sensation of itching in his ear. This grew in intensity and pain until it was unbearable. He went to Athens for relief, but remedies applied failed to afford it. Going to Woodville he stated his case to a doctor. The acute pain had by this time nearly thrown the gentleman into convulsions. The doctor, after applying an anæsthetic to his ear, inserted a copious drench, which brought out no less than eleven well developed maggots, [illegible] of robust life.

"O, ah, let me see, what do you give for a cold on the chest?" asked Jones, in a sort of indifferent tone, of a doctor with whom he was slightly acquainted, as he met him on the street. "Advice," was the laconic reply. So do we. We advise you not to neglect that hacking cough and drowsy feeling, the coated tongue, the failing appetite, the indigestion and general lassitude and debility—that "tired feeling," as so many express it. Take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, in time, and it will not disappoint. It is not only the most wonderful alterative, or blood-cleanser, known to medical science, but also possesses superior nutritive and tonic or strength-giving properties. It improves digestion and builds up both flesh and strength when, from any cause, they are reduced below a healthy standard. For Bronchial, Throat and Lung Diseases, accompanied with lingering coughs, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is absolutely unequaled as a remedy. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Short Breath, Consumptive Night-sweats, and kindred affections, it surpasses all other medicines. It's the only lung remedy, sold by druggists, guaranteed to benefit or cure, in every case, or money refunded.



$500 OFFERED for an incurable case of Catarrh in the Head, by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. By its mild, soothing and healing properties, it cures the worst cases, no matter of how long standing. Only 50 cents. Sold by druggists everywhere.
