nessed by people on shore who were powerless to save him. A high wind was blowing and the boat, containing three fishermen, when sbout 1060 yards from shore off Beacon Hill was seen to capsize. Two of the occupants clung to the bottom of the boat, but the third struck out for shore. When about half way his strength failed him and he sank. The other two men were Old Hutch, Trial of Plenty Horses, rescued by a passing boat which saw their signals.
