FINED FOR CRUELTY.—Rev. C. E. Cline made complaint before Police Judge Goodell Saturday against one John T. Jordan for cruelly beating and abusing a horse he was driving. He was just drunk enough to be ugly. He had driven the gelding so furiously along State street that it was completely covered with lather, and when he put the animal up at Ellis & Whitley's stable he was surprised to find himself promptly arrested by officer Lake and placed in the city jail. Monday morning he pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs. The Salem police are to be commended for rigidly enforcing the law against cruelty to animals, and those who overload or overdrive horses almost to death, or neglect to feed and water their animals when they come to town and let them stand in the hot sun all day, must do so at the peril of the law, because public sentiment is getting strong on this subject.

STRAWBERRIES.—While Triomphe de Gand has been the main variety to supply the market, it is by no means the only variety that can be grown at this late season. Mr. H. H. Ragan brings the JOURNAL a sample of Haverland, conical bright colored berries of good flavor; also a sample of the Gandy, an extra late berry, also bright red, one five inches in circumference, but not as rich in flavor as the Haverland; then a most beautiful box of Warfield No. 2 rich, dark red, with a waxy gloss. These samples show Mr. Ragan to be an artist in this line.

PLUNGED TO HER DEATH.
 A Pioneer and Prominent Woman of Salem Found Dead Sunday Morning.

Sunday morning the city was startled with the sad intelligence that Mrs. I. N. Gilbert had been found dead in her home.

She was last seen alive in the city by Mrs. A. A. Wheeler, of Liberty street, with whom she returned from a committee meeting at Hotel Willamette, in connection with the State celebration, where these two ladies served on the Indiana delegation.

About six o'clock her little grandson, Ralph Scott, who had arrived but the Friday before, got up and began to call for her. Getting no answer he went down stairs and found her lying at the bottom lifeless. More than crazed with excitement, the little fellow ran to Mr. Wm. England's, several blocks away, awakening the family with his cries.

Mrs. Wm. England was the first person to reach the residence of Mrs. Gilbert at the corner of Front and Marion streets, at about 7 o'clock Sunday morning. Her first impression was that her sister had been murdered. Her nose was broken, there were some drops of blood on the floor, and her face and limbs were turned almost black. The body was not bruised much and she seemed to have stepped off the top of the steps and went to the bottom with one plunge, striking her head against the front door, smashing the left side of her face terribly. The fright to Mrs. England was terrific as she recognized in the ghastly bloody corpse her sister. She at once went to the door and called to the first person that there was a woman murdered in the house, and to get the first doctor he could find. Dr. Henderson came and he called Dr. Jessup, who with Geo. H. Burnett and others examined the body of Mrs. Gilbert and found life had been had been extinct for hours and the body perfectly cold and stiff, except the head which hung loose and the neck was evidently dislocated immediately next the skull.

A coroner's inquest was not held, as it was perfectly evident she had plunged to her death from the top of the stairs, where she was step and not very wide. An undertaker was at once summoned and the relatives and friends in the city notified of the awful accident. The news soon spread and the tolling of the Congregational bell about 8 o'clock told all that one of that society had departed this life.

A LOOK UPSTAIRS showed the rooms as Mrs. Gilbert left them to take the last steps of her life. She had evidently retired and arisen in the course of the night to go to the bedside of her grandson, who had a severe cold and there was settling on the table at his bed the usual preventives. There was no lamp burning in either of the rooms, but one was set on the floor in the corner of the passage way from her room to the boy's. The boy's room was right at the head of the stairs, opening off the passage. At right-angles to the door to Mrs. Gilbert's room a door enters the front room. The only rational theory of the accident is that Mrs. Gilbert went in the night to the boy's room and in returning by the dim light of the shaded lamp turned back, she did not turn, but walked straight out of the boy's room off the top step and plunged to her death. Mrs. Gilbert was not troubled with heart disease.

The bed was just as she left it, with the clothes thrown back, her watch was under her pillow and jewelry and valuables undisturbed. Mrs. Gilbert leaves considerable property but it is not known that she made a will.

BIOGRAPHY.
 Mrs. Marietta Stanton Gilbert was born in La Porte, Ind., Jan. 29, 1835, and came to Oregon overland with her parents in 1847, locating temporarily on the present Huffman place, then building a home on the Alfred Stanton donation claim. Mar. 27, 1850, she was married to Isaac N. Gilbert, who died Mar. 29, 1879. Mrs. Gilbert was one of the four charter members of the Salem Congregational church in 1851, and was always a more than faithful worker in that society, teaching a large bible class ever since the church was started and up to the last Sunday of her life. Mrs. Gilbert was at one time a trustee of the state orphan's home at Salem. She was always deeply interested in the Oregon Pioneer ass'n and returned from the last session at Portland declaring she had never enjoyed herself so well. She had also taken a foremost interest in the Oregon State celebration of July 4th, to be held at Salem. It would be difficult to mention a public enterprise that she was not ever ready and willing to befriend and support and in this respect her death is a public calamity. Any good work public or private had her cheerful assistance and only a few weeks ago did she prove her zeal for culture and improvement by taking an exhibit of nearly one hundred varieties of roses to the rose fair from the garden cultivated by her own hands.

Deceased was the mother of Mr. Frank Gilbert, of the N. P. boat line at Portland, and five daughters, four of whom are alive, as follows: Mrs. Mattie Palmer, of The Dalles; Mrs. Mary Gardner, of Los Angeles; Mrs. Lulu Herren, of Butteville; Mrs. Nellie Shadden, of Eugene.

Mrs. Gilbert has survivors in her brothers, Mr. Frank Stanton, at Siletz agency, and Mr. Phillip

Stanton, at North Yakima; three sisters, Mrs. Rickey, of San Francisco; Mrs. W. P. Murphy, of South Salem; Mrs. Wm. England, of Salem.

IT WAS A SHOCK to more people than could have been caused by the death of almost any other woman in Salem. It was felt in all circles and especially by those of her own generation and who have known her two score years. All day Sunday a stream of callers flowed to the house of sorrow that was now tenanted. At the Congregational church Rev. Corwin referred to her death in a manner that put half the members in tears. But especially was she missed at the Sunday school, where rain or shine she stood before a large circle of the best young people in the city, who were always drawn to her by a lovely christian character and sweetness of disposition possessed by few women.

THE FUNERAL will take place from the Congregational church Tuesday at 10 a. m. The children of the deceased will all be present except Mrs. I. W. Gardner, of Los Angeles, Cal., who cannot reach here until Wednesday morning.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.
 The barometer stood at 31.50 Sunday—set fair.
 One tramp got the regulation five days this morning.
 Mrs. Smith, of Portland, spoke at the prison Sunday.
 Hon. Ed. S. Parkhurst left for Chicago Sunday evening.
 The Salvation Army of Portland are reported to have rented the old court house.
 L. F. Pennington's family, of Highland, went today to meet him at Portland.
 E. E. Wild has filed for record Oxford addition to Salem, just east of New Park annex.
 Supt. Yoder and Prof. Whipple left this morning for the teachers' meeting at Newport.
 The mercury at 80 in the shade drives Oregonians to the cool side of the street. The close air at noon indicates rain.
 Mr. Fabritus Smith is at home from a two weeks run on Puget Sound. He reports real estate dead at Port Townsend.
 A. W. Scott, of the Church Hill factory, started for California Saturday evening to visit his father in Anador county, and will probably be gone several weeks.
 G. B. Cornelius, farmer at the Chemawa Indian school, is reported to have sent in his resignation, and there are several aspirants now at work to secure the appointment.
 Col. Jno. D. Letcher, professor of mathematics in the Oregon Agricultural college, is in the city today. He is on his way to Virginia where he will spend his summer vacation.
 Ernest Porter, who worked for County Recorder McNary several months, is cashing the warrants in County Treasurer Condit's office while he is at the state encampment.
 Mr. John D. Shaw returned this morning with J. D. Daly, of Dallas, from a trip to Minto mountain, about 80 miles east of Albany, where they regaled themselves in the snow banks of the Cascades.
 Miss Ellen Chamberlain, a graduate of Willamette, sister of Mart Chamberlain, and professor of German and elocution at the state university at Seattle, goes to take a year's vacation in Germany, having been re-elected and allowed full salary while absent.
 Miss Hansee, dean of the Woman's college of Willamette university, who was going to New York with her mother, received a telegram several days ago that her father had decided to come to spend the summer on the coast with his wife and daughter, who will not go East.
 Rev. Frank Sullivan preached a highly practical social christian sermon at the Baptist church Sunday morning. It was enjoyed by a large audience and left a good impression. Mr. Sullivan will spend the week introducing the Pacific Baptist of Portland, and promises to give the Boulevard City a write up.
 Mrs. S. A. Grubbe, superintendent of the Salem schools, Miss Olive M. Capwell, superintendent of the Oregon school for the blind, Miss Julia Capwell, of the Portland schools, and Miss O. Ballou, of the Salem kindergarten school, all started this morning for Newport, to attend the state teachers' meeting. These hard-working ladies will no doubt enjoy their week's vacation at the seashore.

ROTTEN BALL.
 That is What the Crowds Term the Matches With Albany.

The Saturday game in which the leaden-shoed visitors allowed Salem sixteen in exchange for nine score, was practically repeated Sunday.

The reported change of batteries took place, but the desired improvement was not apparent to the jeering crowd. The practice games played by Albany scarcely afforded fun or the Salem nine. The change of batteries was no improvement. Holman, of St. Paul, did better with his drop balls. Albany fielders seemed not accustomed to mits-in or mits-out. People turned out good-naturedly to witness what was certain to be a tame game, showing that with enterprise the game can be made profitable at the second city in Oregon. A thousand or more people were present, and the car lines kept bringing loads up to four o'clock. The excitement of the afternoon consisted mainly of the frantic efforts of a carriage team to rid themselves of horns. For a moment there was a scattering of vehicles in all directions, children screaming and the ladies in the carriage in imminent danger. After the Salems made several efforts to give them the game and the Albany incapable of making a record of anything but errors and the tally sheets unable longer to hold those, the crowd began to go home.

The score of the game stood as follows: Salems 42, Albany 6.

 His Resignation as County Judge to Take Place July 1st.

The resignation of Hon. Wm. Waldo as county judge of Marion county was placed in the hands of Governor Penney upon his arrival in the city this morning. The governor will appoint a successor to fill the vacancy Wednesday morning.

Judge Waldo was elected in 1890 and will have held his office just one year.
