THE ALBANY RAILROAD CASE.

The disagreement of a jury knocks the cause of the people out at this time of the Linn county circuit court, and allows the railroad companies to triumph temporarily in their warfare for a system of discriminations as detrimental as it is unjust. But the victory is a hard bought one and will only lead to ultimate defeat of the system of special favors to a few shippers at the expense of the many. It is learned that one of the jurors who upheld discriminations holds a special rebate contract on shipments of stone, amounting to about $5 on the carload. Two other jurors were special pleaders for the corporation interest while a fourth was unfair because of ignorance. When the cases are recalled at the October term new trials will be had under circumstances more favorable to justice.

Prosecuting attorney Bingham, of Salem, is thoroughly aroused to a sense of the extortions practiced under the discrimination system. The people will sustain him and all public officials who roll up their sleeves in defense of public interests in this struggle for justice. The time has come for a showing of hands in the matter of freight charges in Oregon. It remains to be seen whether our courts and commission and public prosecutors are to act as body guard to the corporations or defend the public interest and general welfare.

The policy of the railroad management has been a crushing one to Oregon. While rates were kept to the highest points, all extensions of lines were forbidden, and by sharp practice efforts of individuals and committees have been either anticipated or discouraged. The S. P. has had its agents at work heading off the possible building of a line from Salem to Silverton and the building of a line from Astoria in any direction. This has not been all. By a system of discriminations all grain from the Willamette valley has been prevented going to seaboard over the Yaquina route, or by water. Milling in transit privileges under cut rates have given the Portland mill syndicate practically a monopoly of the flour trade of Oregon. Special rates to the East Portland syndicate warehouses has almost destroyed the value of all other warehouse property in Oregon.

The battle of the people in the Albany discrimination case is virtually a struggle for liberty by the producers of Oregon. It is a fight for that freedom of commerce which alone insures the prosperity and development of a state. The fight must be made by the press and the people. It is a fight that must be made to a finish. It means retention of more commerce, more mills and more warehouses all through the state and less concentration at Portland. It means the development of all Oregon instead of the upholding of only one city.

The theory of defense of the railroad is that the new railroad law of 1891, giving the commission power to determine and establish just rates of freights, abrogates and repeals the Hoult law. The Hoult law forbids a higher rate for a lesser distance over the same line, and fixes four cents as a maximum passenger fare. It is not apparent that the Hoult law conflicts with the statute of 1891. In as far as it determines anything it fixes a maximum fare, beyond which no power can fix a rate. The commission itself if it could make passenger fares would not have the power to advance the rate above four cents per mile. Another discrimination case is on the docket in Polk county and this question of repeal of the Hoult law by later enactment may be carried to the supreme court from there. The contest will be watched closely by the press and the people, and cannot be presumed to issue too soon nor too vigorously.

SUGGESTED CONSENT. In one respect the bill of a mosquito represents that of a plumber. It is said to be a complicated institution.

Salem is having a building boom. The Capital City certainly is making great progress, and spreading out in all directions.—Roseburg Review.

East Oregonian: New York bankers oppose the further coinage of standard silver dollars, while nearly everybody else favors it. President Harrison and cabinet are to decide between now and July 1st whether it is best to please the New York bankers or the rest of the people.

Cora Bell Fellows was once a society belle in Washington, D. C. She went out to the plains of Dakota to teach the Sioux Indians fashions. The romance of the match wore off with the fun of the honeymoon and now Cora seeks through the courts that make divorce a specialty, to return to Washington City.—Ex.

The Dalles Times-Mountaineer: The possibilities of Oregon are almost immeasurable, and with the exercise of enterprise this state should be second to very few. To instill this energetic life into the different branches of business requires no dose of soothing syrup or smooth flattery. The commonwealth is a stalwart man in years and undeveloped strength, and the most efficacious plan will be some heroic treatment which will stir the dormant energies into healthful action.

FROM YAQUINA. Miss Bergen's school in South Yaquina closed last Friday.

The steamer General Wright touched here on the 18th inst. The Willamette arrived here on the 23d inst. On her return to San Francisco another steamer will be put on in her place while new boilers are being put in.

The steamer Wilmington, plying between Portland and Coos bay, is at this place taking fuel and freight.

Great preparations are being made here for the teachers' association. All the hotels will give reduced rates. You will arrive in Yaquina at half-past four in the afternoon. You should then see Prof. Bruce at the Mechanics' hotel, who will show you through the car shops, Parker's mill, the coal mine that is just being opened, and other places of interest. The boat leaves here for Newport at 9 o'clock in the morning and at 4:30 in the afternoon, making the trip in thirty minutes. No teacher should fail to attend the association if he can possibly come, for he will not only have an opportunity to feast on founders, herring, oysters, clams, crabs, etc., but the clear, cool breeze here will take the malaria out of his system and carry it back to the valley from whence it came.

A Warning. ED. JOURNAL: I notice on some of the young apple trees near Salem that the green aphid is getting quite a start. Especially in this case in a fine young orchard about four miles south of town, in which apple trees are set alternately with prune and peach trees. The apple trees are growing very vigorously, and it is just such young, thrifty growth that the aphid first attacks. They may be found just under the leaves and on the stems at the extreme ends of the thirteenth shoots, causing the leaves to assume a crumpled or curly appearance, and afterwards to turn black, shrivel and fall off. They multiply so fast that a small colony at first in a few days becomes millions. The best remedy so far as I know is to examine carefully the ends of the thirteenth shoots, and if infested cut them off with a sharp knife, being careful not to jar the insects off, place carefully in a basket or other receptacle, and as soon as a sufficient quantity are thus collected take them to a brush pile and burn them. Two or three times carefully going over will rid them out or discourage them for that year. If taken in time and before they get too much of a start there will be little or no harm to the trees. An ounce of prevention is worth more than a pound of cure. H. S. JONV.

GERMAN ANARCHISTS. LONDON, June 30.—A Berlin dispatch says that three of the leading detectives in the Prussian government service have gone to London to keep an eye on the exiled anarchists and socialists in that city during the coming visit of the Kaiser, and to point out to the English police any who are likely to be troublesome. The mission of the detectives is to be merely precautionary, and the government has received no information that would justify last of
