FOR BREACH OF PROMISE.

A. G. R. Widow From Missouri After a Salem Man. This morning Mrs. Mary Goodenough was at the district attorney's office, the sheriff's office and Justice Applegate's office about as fast as her feet could carry her, seeking vengeance on one Mr. Blank, who arrived in Salem Wednesday evening.

The district attorney was absent from the city, the sheriff and his deputies were all in the mountains making arrests in a pig case. Justice Applegate sent her to the deputy district attorney but he was too busy and referred her back to the Justice office where a complaint was drawn up.

A Journal reporter was on the spot to get after the facts in the case. It appears Mrs. Goodenough came out from Ireton, Mo., after starting up a correspondence through the Salem board of trade for a fruit farm, bearing of which incidentally, Mr. Blank, who is a widower with five children, sought her acquaintance through a third party and a correspondence resulted.

The lady who is a G. A. R. widow, left Missouri reaching Salem in April and took up quarters at the Oregon house, afterwards working at Prof. Arnold's, there rooming. After her arrival Mr. Blank did not rush into her arms, but proceeded with that deliberation and caution becoming to a man who is choosing for his wife a lady who is not for himself alone. He is a hard-working man, but Mrs. Goodenough pressed matters to an issue and wanted marriage immediate, or an explanation. Mr. B. had all his letters returned to him thro' a third party. Mary says she made movements several times toward a wedding, but all the time there seemed to be some obstacle.

The most that the reporter could glean was that he wrote her to come out, and that when in upon acquaintance all was agreeable to both parties, a wedding would ensue. Pictures were exchanged, Mary says, and she confesses that she went so far as to center all her affections on him. Mr. B. has been away from Salem a good share of the time. Mrs. Goodenough is a neat appearing little woman, dressed in black and carries a large black silk sunshade, fringed with lace.

Justice Applegate examined into the woman's case and concluded no crime was committed. He concluded the woman had parted with about $1500 of property for $125, and was badly deceived.

The justice said Mary could bring a civil damage suit, and a jury would give her a big sum.

"Did you have any intercourse of a questionable character with this man after your arrival," asked the justice. The woman began to shed tears.

"He took no liberties with me except he kissed me."

"I cannot issue a warrant on that. Kissing is no crime in this country." The matter is still pending.

HOW TO STUDY BOTANY.

The First Thing to Do Is to Learn the Names of Common Wild Flowers. Most young people find botany a dull study. So it is, as taught from the text books in the schools, but study it yourself in the fields and woods and you will find it a source of perennial delight.

When we see a new person who interests us we wish to know his or her name. A bird, a flower, a place—the first thing we wish to know about it is its name. Its name helps us to classify it; it gives us a handle to grasp it by; it sheds a ray of light where all before was dark.

The other day, while the train was delayed by an accident, I wandered a few yards away from it along the river margin seeking wild flowers. Should I find any whose name I did not know? While thus loitering a young English girl also left the train and came in my direction, plucking the flowers right and left as she came. But they were all unknown to her. She did not know the name of one of them, and she wished to send them home to her father too. With what satisfaction she heard the names! The words seemed to be full of meaning to her, though she had never heard them before in her life. It was what she wanted. It was an introduction to the flowers, and her interest in them increased at once.

"That orange colored flower which you just plucked from the edge of the water, that is our jewel weed," I said. "It looks like a jewel," she replied. "You have nothing like it in England, or did not have till lately; but I hear it is now appearing along certain English streams, having been brought from this country."

"And what is this?" she inquired, holding up a blue flower with a very bristly leaf and stalk.

"That is viper's bugloss or blueweed, a plant from your side of the water, one that is making itself thoroughly at home along the Hudson and in the valleys of some of its tributaries among the Catskills. It is a rough, hardy weed, but its flower, with its long, conspicuous purple stamens and blue corolla, as you see, is very pretty."

"Here is another emigrant from across the Atlantic," I said, holding up a cluster of small white flowers each mounted upon a little inflated brown bag or bladder—the bladder campion. "It also runs riot in some of our fields as I am sure you will not see it at home."

"It was the first couple that came before the new judge. The groom was a little rapid in answering 'yes' before His Honor fairly got the question asked, but it all went off in good style. The reporter and Seth R. Hammer acted as witnesses and congratulated the bride."
