LIGHT THE GROUNDS.—The executive committee of the State Agricultural society will hold a special session tonight to consider the advisability of accepting the proposition of the Salem Electric Light Co. to light the buildings and grounds with incandescent and arc lights.

Yours received and I am glad to hear from you. Cohen has been out of town and is still away, which is the reason your baseball boys have not heard from him.

SIX MILES OF SOLID FUN AND FRIED chickens walking all over the ground at the Crystal Springs picnic Friday.

At a special meeting of the school board held this afternoon, the following bids were received for finishing the North Salem school building:

G. A. Stevens, $2700. E. F. Hutchins, 2423. Vanderban & Smith, 2360. Welsh Bros., 2185. Coarington, Wickstrom & Co, 2148. Z Craven, 2142.

ON THE HEIGHTS.—One of the finest things in German literature is "On the Heights," and one of the finest places about Salem is the Englewood Heights.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS.—Persons having any of these flowers growing should give them special attention hereafter, as there will without doubt be a chrysanthemum show held in Salem this fall.

THE HEAT.—Although it has been quite warm the past week the difference is not noticed at E. C. Cross' markets, where meats of all kinds are "refrigerated" in such a thorough manner as to remain always sweet and fresh.

PICNIC SEASON.—The warm days have brought with them the annual picnic season which so many Salem people enjoy.

NOT SLOW.—Farrar & Co. are not slow about anything in their line, and always take the lead on choice fruits.

THIS WEEK ONLY.—T. Holverson is closing out ladies' and misses' silk mitts at exceptionally low prices.

CONDENSED COFFEE.—Just the thing for "camping out" or picnic at Strat & Gile's.

THE COMING LINE.—The Chicago, Union Pacific & Northwestern line offers the best accommodations to the traveling public en route from San Francisco and Portland, Chicago.

A HOT CHASE.

But it Brings Down an Old Offender to Justice.

Sheriff Croisan reached Salem Friday night with Adolph Gouche, who in concert with one Jack Ritchie last April, a year, broke into a store at Butteville.

ELUDING ARREST.—Gouche succeeded in making his escape and has ever since succeeded in eluding the officers of the law.

CAUGHT AT LAST.—A few days ago Sheriff Croisan received an intimation that he was at The Dalles, but upon reaching there he learned that he had left and gone on into Tygh valley.

BASEBALL AHEAD.—A Series of Games With the Eastern Oregon Clubs.

The Salem baseball boys have so far been unable to get any satisfaction out of Eastern Oregon club managers by means of correspondence.

SCHOOL HOUSE BIDS.—At a special meeting of the school board held this afternoon, the following bids were received for finishing the North Salem school building:

A country Exchange gets off the following: "The science of judicious advertising does not contemplate the placing of an advertisement in an obscure paper at a high rate. The judicious advertiser, who makes money at the business, takes into consideration both the character and the size of the paper's circulation, and the rates charged."

This is correct. The JOURNAL has the character and the circulation, as is shown by the appreciation of its advertisers. It takes pride in showing its lists and otherwise enlightening its patrons.

Hobart & Elliot, of Dallas, got the big tramway engine for their logging line Friday. In a few weeks the line to the timber line will be in operation. The engine came out from New York and weighs 15 tons.

A Desperate Chance. A Russian exile relates how he once saved himself by a desperate artifice. A police official searched his home for compromising papers. There was in his possession a document the discovery of which meant serious danger to himself and his friends.

After the most careful search the official, his nose blackened with soot and his hair decorated with feathers—for he had even examined the stovepipes and the bedding—departed empty handed.—Youth's Companion.

A New Way of Learning a Language. Free lectures are now being delivered in various parts of the country to those who wish to take advantage of the facility with which languages can now be studied by means of phonograph cylinders.

Sets of cylinders are also provided which contain the conversational course of a well known system in French, German, Spanish or Italian, and with each set of cylinders a set of books is furnished, so that the eye and ear can be educated at the same time.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Save Cure for Insomnia. Rope off your mind and eject every idea from the cleared space. Then assume the manners of certain Boston policemen; imitate the action of the tiger, stiffen up the sinews, and if an idea shows but his head in the rig size him by the collar and throw him out. If your will is tolerably obstinate you will win the day.—Boston Transcript.

ROMAN HOUSES IN LONDON.

Mysterious Ruins of Civilization in Brit. The houses of the better class can be reconstructed from the Roman walls whose foundations have been laid bare in various parts of the country.

Very great number have been found and partially examined by excavations. Some of them are of a size and splendor which denote great wealth as well as a feeling of profound security.

They have been found for the most part in the southern counties. Many are in Kent—a county which, so long as the Kent of the Saxon shore protected its coasts, was the safest part of Britain.

But many of these villas have been found in Lincolnshire, and there are probably hundreds awaiting discovery. It is not far in considering the trader's house of London to take the magnificent ruins of such a villa as that which has been laid bare at Woodchester in Gloucestershire.

Here we find sitting rooms fifty feet square ranged about courts or gardens a hundred and a hundred and fifty feet square; here are splendid tessellated pavements, fresco paintings, fragments of statues and groups, Samian ware, and every indication of art and luxury.

We need not suppose that London merchants lived in palaces. Into the lofty, brilliant, well heated apartments of the finer houses there was thrown a confused mass of furniture not unworthy of the richest palaces of modern days.

Cushions and lounges of crimson silk and Babylonian tapestry surrounded the banqueting tables and walls; mirrors of metal or glass shone on all sides.

Glazed windows let in the inconstant sunlight, and candles, lamps and candelabra in the winter evenings scattered over the rooms on tripods, tables, niches, and perhaps hung aloft on the ceiling, threw down sufficient light.

The infinite number and varied forms of their lamps show the care the Romans gave to lighting their rooms and their taste for nocturnal amusement.

Carpets, rugs and matting were thrown upon the mosaic floor. Statues of real merit stood around in artistic negligence. Tables of citron wood, or marble tripods, book shelves and stands, glass vases of all forms and modes, rich with green, red or purple dyes, shone on the Roman sideboard.

Goblets, pitchers and vases of the delicate red Samian ware were added to the glow of color; they were so fragile that only fragments of the finer kind have been preserved.

In the midst of his luxurious home sat the Roman curial, or alderman of the day, surrounded by wife and children, clothed in the richest fabrics of the day, and all glittering with rings, jewels, armlets, bracelets, some of which have been left behind to tell their tale.

On the bones of a woman's arm in Mr. Roach Smith's collection are seen three bracelets of gold, with gems and rare chasings.

To complete the picture of the home of the Roman period we must add a great number of articles of convenience or comfort that would seem to us almost exclusively modern.

Chairs, lounges, sofas, bedsteads, chests, closets, drawers, curtains, glass vases, mirrors and vases, bunches of keys, and a great variety of kitchen utensils, gold and silver ornaments, baskets and urns for money, great amphors filled with wine, and the well stored kitchens of the wealthy made up the requirements of Roman life.

These the barbarous Saxons plundered or destroyed, chiefly from a fear that magic lay in all objects of art. A garden in the front of the villa, filled with roses from Pæstum and lilies and violets, was never forgotten by a people so fond of flowers; baths, hot and cold, were attached to every large house.

Fourteen centuries and the ravages of Saxon and Dane have covered Roman London with a cloud of mystery that no one has been able to remove.—Eugene Lawrence in Harper's.

Take Hood's Sarsaparilla 100 Doses One Dollar

The Chief Reason for the great success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is found in the article itself. It is merit that wins, and the fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla actually accomplishes what is claimed for it, is what has given to this medicine a popularity and sale greater than that of any other sarsaparilla.

Merit Wins Pills or blood purifier before the public. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures Scrofula, Salt Rheum and all Humors, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Biliousness, overcomes that tired feeling, creates an Appetite, strengthens the Nerves, builds up the Whole System.
