THE OLD BOAT.

A worn out boat upon the shore, The children's playground is it now, The troubled deep it tempts no more, It lies at rest like rusty plow. And yet it looks in bright sunlight, It echoes gladly childish voices, A sailor's wife leans here, and wide Her outlook till her heart rejoices. Here lovers meet when dusk draws near, Their voyages have scarce begun; Ah! may they keep their hearts so near, Until their resting days are won. For 'tis not every craft that lies So calmly on a kindly shore; And 'tis not every heart is wise To cherish love when youth is o'er. -Beatrice L. Tollemache in Academy.

The Ways of Women. A richly but not over-dressed woman a day or two ago entered a well filled Fourth avenue car, and without so much as a look dropped into a seat vacated for her by a man who on rising had politely raised his hat.

The woman's behavior was so markedly ungracious that the other occupants of the car smiled broadly at the victim of misplaced politeness, who did not fail to notice that he was being laughed at.

Turning to the lady and once more raising his hat, he said, "Pardon me, madam, but did I leave my gloves on the seat?"

The woman stood up to look for the missing handkerchief and the man slid himself edgewise into the seat. The laughter which followed was not participated in by the woman, and she left the car at the next block.

"Take my seat, madam," said a man to a woman on another occasion under similar circumstances.

"Thanks, no. I saw the car was more than full when I stopped it to get on and I expected to stand. I have no right to deprive you of your seat, and I won't do it."

This little speech was followed by a look of blank amazement on the part of the other passengers.—New York Times.

Mountains of Baedili. Prodigions as must have been the number of organisms whose remains form the great chalk deposits found all over the world, yet these are only as a single grain of sand on the seashore when compared with the vast accumulation of fossil infusoria. In spite of the extreme minuteness of these invisible forms, the stratified rocks, forming a large portion of the crust of the earth, are made up almost entirely from their shells and skeletons. They form great mountain ranges in different portions of the globe.

Even the silicious rocks, called tripoli, are shown by the microscope to be composed of the carapaces of tiny animals, that secreted silica from its solution in water in the same way that the organisms whose remains composed the strata of chalk. These silicious animals belonged principally to the family bacillaria, and their skeletons are so perfectly preserved that they can be identified and compared with the bacterium of the present day.—Macon Telegraph.

A Queer Court Decision. A peculiar case disposed of at Caldwell court was that of a man who had been tried by the mayor of Lenoir for violation of a town ordinance and had pleaded guilty. The mayor fined him more than he wanted to pay, and he appealed, and in the superior court the jury acquitted him of the charge to which he had pleaded guilty in the mayor's court. This strikes us as something new under the sun in the way of criminal procedure.—Marion (N. C.) Free Lance.

The Number Five is Convenient. Five is a number but little employed in the Scriptures, but it is a number of great convenience and utility. Man was created with five natural senses, and with five fingers on each hand and five toes on each foot. The earth's surface is divided into five zones, and the rose has five leaves, or some multiple of five.—Chicago Herald.

Complaint was made in the house of commons that some publicans were in the habit of obliging their customers by selling postage stamps after the post-office was closed. It was stated on behalf of the government that no one is entitled to sell stamps without first taking out a license.

The production of electrically welded steel chains will soon become an important industry in this country. The steel chain will be one-third lighter than the present chain, with as great a tensile strength, and can be produced at considerable less cost.

SUGGESTED COMMENT.

A scientific exchange speaks of lions being successfully hypnotized by dogs. We do not know how it is about so large an animal as the king of beasts. It would depend some on the size of the dog. But it is known for a fact that almost any kind of a dog can hypnotize a hen.

Lane county finances makes the following show: replacing of the bridges cost over 600,000; total expenditures $110,365.44. Less than $50,000 was expended for ordinary purposes. The delinquent taxes are being collected rapidly and Lane county will soon be free from indebtedness.

State Senator John H. Woolson, of Mt. Pleasant, Ia., is mentioned as a possible successor to the late Judge Love. He is a representative lawyer, an experienced legislator, a paymaster in the navy during the war, and a man of high standing in his profession and his party. The president cannot well select better material for a judge.

A county exchange says of the county printing bill: "The bill, at first introduced, might have done some good, but it was ruined by changing it so that the fees of clerks and sheriffs were not to be published." It was amended at the instance of a granger representative, to save expense of publishing such items of fees as are absolutely fixed by law.

Some parents have little respect or regard for the feelings of their children, and the only result, the exact reverse of this comes to pass when the parents are old. The Albany Democrat says: "Nearly every 4th of July some boy commits suicide on account of the heartlessness of his parents. Charley Purves, aged 16, of Talent, committed suicide by hanging himself with a log chain. The cause of this act was not getting some article of clothing which he wanted from his parents for the Fourth of July."

The Southern Pacific officials from Senator Stanford down were surprised by the dispatches announcing that H. E. Huntington, nephew of C. P. and a railroad manager at Lexington, Ky., would on Sept. 1st become assistant general manager of the S. P. with headquarters at San Francisco, and at the first of next year take the entire management of the road to succeed A. N. Towne.—Exchange. Thus will another plutocratic prince be quartered upon the people of this coast at an enormous salary.

Judge Boise is out making alliance speeches. The Eugene Advance says of one of the judge's speeches in Linn county: "His speech was upon the subject of the national banking system. It was pronounced by those who heard it as one of the clearest and most forcible expositions of the banking system ever heard. Judge Boise has not only a clear head but also a clear record, and when he discusses a question of national interest his words have weight." Another meeting like the above will be held in Lebanon on the 29th.

Sketch of Emma Thursty, the Singer. The American public has impatiently waited for a renewal of its delight in the songs of its favorite and great artist, Miss Emma Thursty, who has been absent in Europe. Lately the South has been made happy by the exquisite charm of her voice in Concert, and she is about to make a tour of the country. Every where she is sure of meeting a hearty welcome, to which her exceptional gift and acquisitions entitle her.

Miss Thursty was born in Brooklyn, New York, of cultivated and wealthy parents. She was tenderly bred and carefully educated, and sang soon as she could speak. She displayed so keen a love for music, that her gift for it was judiciously trained, but with no anticipation of a public career. Her first master was Herr Julius Meyer, a pupil of Mendelssohn, after which she studied with signor Achille Erassi, a disciple of Vucchi, and a wise and conscientious master he was and is. Erassi did most toward developing her unusual gift, and then advised her to go to Europe. At Milan, both Lamperti and son Giovanni were happy in training her beautiful voice. She returned to New York and studied oratorio music with the famous Mme Rudersdorf, whose name and abilities are honored throughout the musical world.

Her religious training prevented her from accepting recognition in the opera, as have many of our famous American songstresses. Her first public singing was in a Brook-

MISCELLANY.

TROUBLE IN TENNESSEE.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 21.—A special from Priceville says: The crisis came at Priceville yesterday about 11 o'clock, when the miners and a crowd of sympathizers from the surrounding county gathered about the camp of the state militia and captured the troops and convicts, marched them to the depot, put them on a train and shipped them to Knoxville. The camp was on a little knoll surrounded on all sides by mountains. The miners and friends, numbering twelve or fifteen hundred, divided into squads and approached the camp from four sides. They sent a flag of truce and a committee to the officers in command. They notified the officers that they came to take the convicts peacefully if possible, by force if necessary. The officers parleyed awhile then agreed to surrender. The troops were allowed to keep their arms and ammunition, and with the convicts were marched to the train and sent to this city, arriving about 4:30. The troops, who numbered about 107, are at the armory of the Knoxville rifles, where they now remain, awaiting the governor's orders. The convicts were locked in jail. An immense crowd met the troops at the depot. The men had been on duty nearly five days, and had seen little in the way of provisions and camp equipments.

ALLIANCE MEETINGS.

Report of a New Alliance on King's Prairie. Ed. JOURNAL: Allow a farmer to report another alliance meeting.

According to previous announcement quite a number of the people of, and surrounding the vicinity, met at King's Prairie school house on Friday, July 17th to hear Hon. Robt. Irvine, explain the objects of the alliance. Prof. M. V. Rork of Salem, state lecturer and organizer, being present was called on by Mr. Irvine to deliver the principal speech. The Prof. began by placing innumerable dots on the blackboard to represent the people, around which he drew a circle—the home. Around that another—the schools; another the church, then around all the state. On this latter circle he placed a king, a pope and a party. Whether the mass of the people inside believed in the divine right of kings, or were obediently bound to the decrees of party, the result was the same—the enrichment of the few and impoverishment of the masses. The speaker was felicitous in his blackboard illustrations, holding the attention and interest of his audience. He declared that by the exception clause placed in the legal tender act of 1862. At the dictation of the bullion holders, they were enabled to run down the coin value of paper dollar paid the soldier to 25 cents on the dollar. (It was 55) that we had during the war period, in circulation, $52 per capita, now but $4.78. That the capitalist having control of the volume of money through the national banking system could control prices, and squeeze the pleasure. That as the government created the national bank money and loans it to the banks at one per cent, the alliance demanded that the same government take into consideration the interest of the farmers and loan to them at two per cent. Surely the capitalist could not complain that this is unjust favoritism to the farmer. That the circulation should be increased to $50 per capita. And that the government should own the transportation and telegraph facilities. The speech was about two hours long and held the attention of the audience, and it was frequently applauded. At the close Mr. Irvine read the platform of the alliance and asked those who wish to join to rise, when ten so declared themselves. Adjourned till 7 p. m., when another meeting was held and an organization effected with twenty charter members. Officers: J. R. Goddin, president; Don Smith, vice president; T. J. McClary, lecturer; your correspondent heard the following criticisms of the lecturer.

1st. The loans must not be confined to holders of real estate or farm products. That would be class legislation, just what the alliance complains of.

2nd. All conceded that the lecturer correctly portrayed the wrongs, but the critic said he failed to clearly point out the remedy. (Your correspondent withholds his own criticism.)

To show what an awakening there has been, I will state that your correspondent talked with an old line never-doubting republican, born in the party, who allowed it would all pass away, not amount to much, but would go to hear it, as a matter of curiosity, just as the boys go to see the elephant. When opportunity was given he was one of the first to rise, and with his bright, intelligent sixteen-year-old daughter is now a member of the alliance. The same man being judge, the Jefferson alliance being nearly all democratic was a movement in favor of the democratic party. This, then, being largely composed of former republicans, must be in the interest of the republicans.

MEMPHIS, July 21.—The Chickasaw guards, Hibernian rifles, Bluff City zouaves, and Hoosier zouaves, under orders from Governor Buchanan, left this city yesterday for Priceville. The companies are small, aggregating 150 men.

NASHVILLE, July 21.—Governor Buchanan's administration is that of the alliance, and some politicians are discussing what the alliance will do. The great mass of citizens, however, say the law must be observed, and that Governor Buchanan must enforce the law regardless of caste. The sentiment here is that he must soon send state troops, who are few and poorly organized, to the front, and put experienced men and officers in charge. If he has not force enough, he must call for volunteers. The miners have appointed a committee to say what dispatches shall be sent out, and what not, and this committee, or some of it, is in the telegraph office all the time, and reads all the matter sent out by the newspaper man. The committee told the operator on duty that if he did not let them read the messages they would cut the wires.

PHILADELPHIA, July 21.—Another story of queer financing. The National Bank of the Republic of New York, recently entered suit here against Ephraim Turland, to recover the account due on certain promissory notes, of which Turland was the maker. In an affidavit of defense filed today, Turland says he never received any value of any kind from the notes, it having been obtained from him through
