IN THE JAIL. Use a little more moderation or a little less liquor hereafter, said the justice in the police court when E. Duffie came before him and got the usual price. He was put in Friday evening and when Marshal Minto looked over the jail in the evening he found a man on top of the cells. He called him down and found he had an axe and big pocket knife and had worked a square hole into the brick wall to get outside. Jack Cooper, an intermittent jail bird was helping him. The two had been into the office and got the axe, and had a fair way to get out. There was about $10 in the jail office and a watch. If they had not been detected they would have been out before morning. Duffie was put in the dark cell as a reward for his enterprise, and may be dealt with more seriously.

PROTECT THE VALLEY.—Rumor hath it that the gentlemen composing the Oregon railroad Commission are at outs mildly putting it, over the proposed adjustment of freight rates. The Southern Oregon member having got low rates on lumber and cattle, the Eastern Oregon member having got his wool rates fixed to suit, the member from the Willamette valley was gently shut out from getting low rates on grain, and thereat he very properly kicks. And right you are Mr. Clow.

DANGEROUS BATHING.—There is something strangely deceptive about the size and force of the Willamette river and for bathing purposes the main channel is a dangerous place for bathing. This was learned by a party of young men who were indulging in a swim about half mile below the big bridge Monday evening. Undertaking to swim the dark blue stream one of them was fatigued before getting across the swift current and had great difficulty in reaching the other bank. His clothes had to be carried to him across the bridge.

STOP THEM.—The city council can easily stop two-thirds of the runaways if they will pass an ordinance requiring all teams left standing on the street to be hitched with a 20 pound iron weight and strap. At present even teams known to have proclivities for eloping on every occasion are left standing unhitched "for just a moment," while the driver or owner delivers some parcel.

PAYING OFF.—"We are more interested in soldier life than ever before," said a militiaman Monday night proudly, as he come out of the armory building with a roll of coin in his hand. The boys were paid off from the state fund at the rate of $1.50 a day for time put in at the state encampment. The officers had a big bag of coin and it takes about $500 a company to meet the muster roll.

The ladies are flocking to Holverson's cut rate sales in a great rush. A grand saving can be made, and none wish to be too late.

NEW FIRE ALARM SYSTEM.

Salem Getting a Good Local Fire Alarm Box Connection.

A Salem man who had a $60,000 fire says: "I'd have given $20,000 on the spot if the engines could have been promptly at my fire that night." That expression gives some idea of the value of a good fire alarm system.

Without being aware of it our city is getting a good start for a fire alarm system, and that too without paying a big royalty to some eastern patent-right concern, such as tried to work Salem for about a thousand a year a few months ago.

Walter J. Holman, the new engineer of the Capital engine, showed a JOURNAL reporter through the engine house today. The electrical connection, gong, and lighting wires have all been overhauled with a view to getting in a good fire alarm system. A glimpse at the battery room shows a five cell battery that works the stalls and turns the horses loose. A second battery of eight carbon cells works all the connections to the engine, annunciator and big gong that sets the horses to bounding, they paying no attention to the first alarms and gongs upstairs. A third battery of five cells works the night bells in the driver's and engineer's rooms upstairs. The horses can only be turned loose from the safety box under control of these two officials. All the gas is turned on by electric currents and the fires lighted. An electric contrivance invented by Capt. Price draws the blankets off the horses and the moment the driver is in his seat the big doors fly open and the "Caps" are off in lightning speed.

THE FIRE BOXES

that are being put in different parts of the city are the regular four-call boxes used in all cities, connecting with an individual gong at engine house with annunciator that locates fire. The first call is for police, second for messenger, third for special detail, fourth for fire. Each call consists of 24 taps; for a fire there are four rapid calls of 24 taps each. Arrangements are being made with Mr. Holman that will place alarms in different parts of the city as follows:

Cannery and Salem Woolen Mills;
Holman Electric Light works.
Big Capitol Mills.
W. F. Dugan's new residence on High street.

A general system providing for nearly all parts of the city can no doubt be worked up. These boxes are private enterprises, but so arranged that all fires in that section can be turned in.

SALEM MANUFACTURES.

Three Carloads of Cleaners and Separators Shipped by a Salem Firm.

The manufacture of warehouse grain cleaning machinery and grist-mill separators is an important branch of industry at the big agricultural works of which Thomas Holman is proprietor. Three cars were shipped out this morning holding about four thousand dollars worth of machinery, that is equipped with shafting, hanger, pulleys and boxing, ready to be set up. The destination of these large machines was Siverton, Forest Grove, McMinnville, McKee and Amity. Mr. Holman accompanied the load with a force of men to set them up. These works have orders for nearly a train load of machines of different kinds which are turned out as fast as skilled labor can do it. The growth of this business is very rapid, and under Mr. Holman's enterprising management is a credit to the Bouquet City.

RUNAWAYS.—People and horses often runaway for all sorts of different reasons, but few persons ever are frightened at prices of goods at Farrar & Co.'s grocery store.

TIME EXTENDED.—The directors have changed the time for opening the bids on the school houses to Saturday, July 25, at 2 p. m.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

Intelligent paving should not be abandoned.

Out of nineteen games played this season the Salems have lost but two.

The Salems downed the Farmers & Mechanics at Portland Sunday, 9 to 3.

The Bentley failed to reach Salem last night, being stuck on a bar.

Elias Schoerber from Clatsop county died at the asylum Sunday evening.

A. Dahl, a Swede aged 26, was brought to the asylum Monday evening from Bandon.

It would be a little more metropolitan and enterprising if the citizens of more of our leading streets would arrange to have them sprinkled during the dry season.

Father Gwinn, of North Salem, has the reputation of having the best kept team of horses in the city. He says a man who does not take good care of his beasts can never get to heaven.

In place of raking the earth with a fine tooth comb to find some one who will serve as president, there should be first-class men figuring to take the place. That would be one way to manage a university.

There is one kind of runaway that would be appreciated in Salem—if the owners of some of the shanties on the best parts of State and Commercial streets would runaway and take the shanties with them it would leave room for some fine buildings.

Capt. Babcock writes that he is improving finely at Mehama, appetite double his capacity to enjoy and improving daily.

During the hot season only one class do not get Sunday off for rest—the barbers. A canvass shows all but one proprietor willing to close Sundays—the workmen are all only to willing. As barbers cannot get the benefit of the eight hour law, nor even the ten hour system, they ought to have Sunday.

Put it on the list if you have never been there and you will not regret it—we mean that charming mountain and seaside retreat cambined—Gearhart Park, Amos Strong's hotel at Seaside.

Eugene has $4497 of warrants afloat, pays $1000 a year for water; $2600 a year electric lights; and total estimated liabilities for ensuing year $14,267. The proposed levy for 1891 at 5 mills would bring in $8000.

There was no daylight robbery as reported at Mr. E. M. Cross's on Piety Hill. Some member of the family, before departing for Nestucca, secreted silverware in different parts of the house to keep it from being stolen, and some servant not knowing this probably gave it out to some hard-up reporter.

No Willamette university president was chosen at the Monday night meeting. Another meeting is called for tonight. Reade or Pillsbury will probably be chosen.

Geo. Cleveland, a son of Johnson Cleveland of Portland, is said to have been drowned in the Santiam near Jefferson.

Jay Smith and Dr. Richardson are home from Nestucca, but left their families there.

Howard & Co., house movers, go to Woodburn to move the Fooze warehouse so as to run in a new switch.

Just received fine fresh venison—call early if you want a roast or steak. Poultry and fish—best supply at Davisons & White's, Court Street Market.

With Stanley as field captain the Salem boys are making a big record for themselves.

County stock inspector reports pleuro-pneumonia among the cattle of this county, and had one killed near Brooks. The watchfulness of these officials is highly commendable.

The young ladies of the Episcopal church will give a lawn party at the residence of Mrs. Geo. A. Edes, Wednesday evening. Ice cream and cake will be served. No admission fee. The young ladies will make an effort to render the evening enjoyable to all who may attend.

The school board has closed the contract with Contractor Craven for completing the North Salem school building, and approved his bond, the building to be complete Sept. 22. The clerk is instructed to secure an insurance permit.

A prominent official of the Reading railroad addressed a porter on the train as "John." The latter said: "I beg yo' pawdon, sah, it is etiquette to call me 'potah,' and that title, sah, I will answer to. You have not an acquaintance with me, sah, that warrants you calling me by my Christian name, sah, although if you really wish to know my name—which is not John, sah—I will be happy to give you my cahd, sah." The official was overcome.

Why it is Popular.

Because it has proven its absolute merit over and over again, because it has an unequalled record of cures, because its business is conducted in a thoroughly honest manner, and because it combines economy and strength, being the only medicine of which "100 Doses One Dollar" is true—these strong points have made Hood's Sarsaparilla the most successful medicine of the day.

NOB HILL'S USELESS PALACES.

Five Enormous Buildings Intended for Private Residences, but Unfit.

A morning contemporary announces as a matter of news that Mrs. Hopkins-Searles offers her residence on California street for sale. It might have added, as a companion item, that the Pilgrim Fathers had landed on Plymouth Rock. There has been no time for many years that the Hopkins mansion on California street has not been for sale, though, if public rumor be believed, the owner has not been distracted by many offers to purchase. It is, in fact, difficult to conceive who could want to become its possessor at any price.

The spectacle of Nob Hill, with palatial piles crowning its ridge, fills the stranger who visits California with mild amazement. There are five big buildings there which were built as private residences, and are as unfit for that use as could be conceived. They were apparently modeled on the plan of the palaces of the Old World, which were erected to be the homes of feudal barons and all their retainers. In the middle ages every nobleman supported a swarm of dependents. He had to find quarters for them, and of course his lodgings had to be large. In our day rich men do not maintain much larger households than their neighbors.

Individually they cannot occupy more than a dozen rooms, and as many will lodge all the servants they can employ. More rooms than this are of no possible use. Conceived in ostentation, their destiny is to become lumber closets. In the old feudal castles of Europe the modern possessor is lost; it gives him a nightmare to wander through a maze of rooms which are never occupied save by mice and spiders, and he flees to take refuge in a bedroom and parlor at club or hotel. It must be much the same in the mansions of Nob Hill.

If they have any destiny it must be to become some day public buildings—museums or hospitals. Even for that use they would have to be donated by their owners, for the city could build suitable edifices for less money than they would cost if they were bought.

It seems odd that men with the sagacity required to build a transcontinental railroad and to acquire vast fortunes should not have understood that a house that is too big may be as inconvenient as a house that is too small. A very small quantity of shelter is all that the richest and greatest of us can want. A bedroom, a dressing room, a reception room, a parlor, a dining room, a library, and perhaps a billiard room—what more than this can Crœsus occupy, though he counts his riches by the hundreds of millions.

Yet rich men go on piling stone upon stone and bricks upon mortar until they have exchanged what might have been a snug home for a barrack; and in the doing of it they generate a mass of envy and grudging which follows them to their grave.—San Francisco Call.

The Ocean.

The great storehouse of the world's water is the ocean, which covers four-fifths of the globe's surface. In some places the ocean has never been sounded, even by a line more than five miles in length. It is supposed these great depths are without plants, because all plants require some light, and though light is said to penetrate sea water farther than fresh, yet we can scarcely imagine there is a ray of light at the depth of five miles. Some of the sea plants have stems at least 300 feet in length. In some parts of the sea we are told that the eye can discern the bottom at four or five hundred feet.

It is a very pretty sight to look down and view a forest beneath the waves. It is sometimes a blaze of gold, scarlet and green. In one part of the Atlantic is a space which the Spaniards call the Sargasso sea, because its surface is covered there for miles and miles with a great mass of seaweed, which Columbus spoke of as "floating meadows."—Montreal Star.

The News Editor's Nemesis.

"Years ago," said a news editor, "I used to have on my list a correspondent at Valparaiso. He would send reports of church socials by wire, and we couldn't shut him off. One day a store down in his place burned. The loss proved to be about $5,000. He began sending bulletins as soon as the fire broke out, and kept it up every ten minutes till the last spark of the conflagration was out. We tried to choke him off, but he couldn't be suppressed. There are two persons on earth whom I would like to meet some time when I am feeling real well and strong. They are that correspondent and the man who sold me a fountain pen."—Indianapolis Sentinel.

Zeno's Paradox.

Many persons will recall the famous paradox of Zeno, by which he sought to prove that all motion is impossible.

"A body," he argued, "must move either in a place where it is or in a place where it is not. Now, a body in the place where it is is stationary and cannot be in motion, nor, obviously, can it be in motion in the place where it is not. Therefore it cannot move at all."

Bodies do move, however, and that is a sufficient answer to the ingenious philosopher.—New York Tribune.

Ornithological.

"They say a sparrow has been known to hatch out a king bird's eggs."

"Yes; but what of that? I've known many an eagle to father a lark."—Puck.

Wonderful Results often follow the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Severe cases of scrofula, upon which other preparations have been powerless, yield to the peculiar curative powers of this medicine. Distressing cases of dyspepsia, excruciating complaints of the kidneys and liver, agonizing itch and pain of salt rheum, disagreeable cases of catarrh, and aches and pains of rheumatism, are cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It purifies the blood, and at the same time tones the stomach, creates an appetite, and gives strength to every function of the body. Give it a trial.

General Debility

"For four years my wife suffered with large tumor bunches on the glands under the arms, and general debility of the whole system. She became so poor in health that we were on the verge of despair regarding her recovery. Physicians did not seem to understand her case; at all events she never derived any benefit from their treatment. She finally concluded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. The immediate effect was so marked and satisfactory that she continued to take it, and this is the result: She has gained in weight and is stronger and in better health than she has been for years. The bunches under her arms have diminished, and we believe Hood's Sarsaparilla will be too much for them in time." J. J. NORCROSS 225 Commercial Street, Boston, Mass.

From 84 to 111 Pounds
