Paving Problem Solved by the Citizen's Meeting Plan Being Adopted.

Council met in regular semi-monthly session Tuesday evening at 8 p. m. In the absence of the mayor, Recorder Goodell took the chair.

City Attorney Richardson acted as secretary. Minutes read and approved. The committee on accounts and bills made a partial report, not including bill of city attorney, Chas. Moore's saying that it was not clear what was covered by salary and what by fees.

The city surveyor said he would not allow the city attorney or anyone else to draw the specification for work constructed under his direction. The city attorney's bill is $153.50; the city surveyor's bill is $94, at $5 a day. Mr. Brown moved that these bills be paid. Carried.

The committee then reported favorably on other bills as follows: Jack Hasty, labor, $3.50; E. L. Briggs, labor, $3.00; J. A. Bernard, repairs, $2.50; Wade & Co., books etc., $8.25; F. S. Petition of Enoch May was read asking permit to transfer his unexpired time of license to W. W. Davis at Arcade saloon. Johnson moved to grant petition. Hutton moved reference to committee on licenses. Objection was made to granting rebate, as the precedent would bring upon the council demands for all kinds of rebates from taxpayers. Referred back to committee on license.

Why it is Popular.

Because it has proven his absolute merit over and over again, because it has an unequalled record of cures, because its business is conducted in a thoroughly honest manner, and because it combines economy and strength, being the only medicine of which "100 Doses One Dollar" is true—these strong points have made Hood's Sarsaparilla the most successful medicine of the day.

People and horses often runaway for all sorts of different reasons, but few persons ever are frightened at prices of goods at Farrar & Co.'s grocery store.

Justice Kilbreth's Home and Family.

Colonel C. Chaille Long, formerly "Chinese" Gordon's chief of staff, who is now in Egypt, has been for years a great friend of Police Justice Kilbreth, and when in New York always lives with the genial justice, and when the latter's seven stepsons were youngsters they knew more about Africa and bloody King Mita than many of the members of the Geographical society.

One is Lucien Odin, of Odun & Oakley, counsel to the Block exchange; another is Eugene Odun, the baritone; another is a teller in a Fifth avenue bank, and Felix August Odun, namesake of the doughty Baltimore editor, is a prosperous broker. Justice Kilbreth's house is a veritable museum, and the walls of one room are completely covered with assegais, Arab muskets, fuses and curiosities of all sorts.—New York World.

THE DRAMATISTS' PLAYS.

Many Literati Think That Moliere Pleasured His Own Partial Life.

To look for allusions to his own affairs in the plays of Moliere is a folly with his commentators. In his comedies they find a kind of slyer history of his domestic life, as they discover, in Horace and Shakespeare, political hints of which Horace and Shakespeare never dreamed. It is not unnatural that they should regard "L'Ecole des Maris" (June, 1661) as a kind of matrimonial programme, written by Moliere for the information of Armande Bejart. Every one knew that he had made up his mind, perhaps with as much difficulty as Panurge, to risk himself in matrimony. In the Easter preceding the performance of "L'Ecole des Maris," he had asked his company to allot him two shares in the theater, one for himself and one "for his wife, if he married."

He did marry Armande Bejart on Shrove Tuesday, 1662. But to suppose that he meant the girl to expect that he would not like Ariste, in "L'Ecole des Maris," is to consider too seriously. The play is based partly on the "Adelphi" of Terence, partly on an incident in an Italian story. There are two brothers, Sganarelle, who is middle-aged, and a kind of vulgar Alceste—a slovenly curmudgeon; and Ariste, twenty years older than Sganarelle, who is all good humored sagacity, and full of sympathy with the young. Isabelle is the ward of Sganarelle, Leonor of Ariste.

Both men intend to marry their wards, but Sganarelle is all for a policy of seducing and lecturing the girl; Ariste lets Leonor spend money and divert herself as she pleases. Ariste is one of the first raisonneurs, an easy, conversational philosopher of French comedy. We have had many such characters since from M. Alexandre Dumas and M. Augier. Isabelle falls in love with young Valere, who shares her passion. By a series of ingenious devices (as in Charles Bernard's "Un Homme Serein") Isabelle makes Sganarelle act as her emissary to Valere. The young pair go off and are married, while Leonor marries Ariste, who was old enough to know better, for he must have been nearly sixty. Moliere was only forty, and it really seems improbable that he should have chosen to pose before Armande as an easy going, tranquil, indifferent Ariste.—Andrew Lang in Scribner's.

Arround the Camp Fire.

"When we came up to Nashville," said a veteran, "we"

"What corps?" asked a comrade.

"Fourth. When we came up to Nashville"

"What division?"

"Second. When we came"

"What brigade, comrade?"

"Third brigade. When we first came up to Nashville"

"What regiment?"

"The—th Ohio. When we first got up to Nash"

"Were you in the Franklin fight?"

"Yes indeed. But, as I was saying, when we first got up to Nashville"

"You had it pretty hot in that battle, sure enough?"

"Yes, there was warm work. It was a great battle. Now, when we first came up to Na"

"Didn't you think your time had come when you met Hood's veterans?"

"Oh, no! As I was saying when you interrupted me, when we first came up to Nashville"

"Were you hit during the fight?"

"I was detailed to go back to Louisville with some prisoners, and didn't even see the smoke of the battle."

The crowd immediately broke ranks.—Columbus Post.

Insects in the Chinese Materia Medica.

The grasshopper, which is so dreaded by the farmer in the western states, is highly valued in its powdered state by Mongolians.

The weak and afflicted Chinese organs of vision are returned to their normal condition by a poultice of macerated hornets.

Broken limbs rapidly knit together under the beneficent influences of a decoction of cockroaches.

It must not be supposed for a moment that these are all the remedies dispensed by the Chinese druggist. The few mentioned are but the staple medicine chest of every Chinese family. The wily Mongolian, too, does not trust his well being to them alone, but invokes the aid of his household deity to rid him of his sufferings.—San Francisco Chronicle.
