She was Boiled Chicken, Egg Sauce, Ham, eating an apple at the time. Presently the clerk missed a fine stone from the trayful she was examining, and as he was accustomed to the ways of shoplifters, he accused her of the theft.

"She protested vehemently at this insult, but a policeman was called in and she was searched. The stone was not found and then the woman began to threaten a suit for damages. In order to avoid an unpleasant scandal, the proprietor was about to offer her fifty dollars, when the police officer prevented him. "He had been questioning the clerk about the woman's actions in the shop and had learned that she had been eating an apple when she entered. That aroused his suspicion. Where was that apple? The woman had made a face over it and had thrown it out on the sidewalk. Then the clerk remembered. 'Let her go,' said the policeman, 'she will not bring any suit.' So the woman went away without any money and vowing vengeance. The policeman sent the clerk to follow her. She was soon joined by another woman, and before long they got into a quiet corner and the second woman produced the gave it to its original owner.
