WHAT THE ARTISTS PROPOSE.

An Art Exhibition in Connection With the State Fair.

The meeting of artists at The Willamette parlors last week started the ball rolling for what can be made the finest feature of our coming state fair—a grand display of paintings and works of art.

Heretofore this department has been the weakest part of the great annual agricultural show. Several times the managers have, at considerable expense, had a few large pictures brought from Portland.

As a rule the exhibit has been meagre if not ridiculous, and more indicative of a semi-civilized state of society than of the status of culture in one of the wealthiest states of the Union. Prizes have been awarded by persons entirely competent to pass upon a mop-stick but not on art. The result has been that real artists or persons having pictures of any value would not participate in the show or seek prizes which were more certain to go to daubs and the winning of which subjected them only to ridicule.

The artists of Salem will make an effort to change all this. If they are encouraged by all interested in art and who have good pictures that could be used to swell an exhibit they can arrange a collection that will be a credit to our city and the state. Their plan is to allow each person to compete for the premiums or not, (some $200 to $300,) but get up and control the exhibition in common and try to secure intelligent award of prizes, thus stimulating an interest in art. The superintendent of the art department is this year a lady who has some knowledge of art. Prepare to attend the next meeting at The Willamette, Wednesday at 4 p. m.

A committee consisting of Mrs. England, Geo. F. Smith, Mr. Best, the artist, and Mrs. A. F. Hofer, jr., was appointed at the last meeting to enlist co-operation of all artists in the city and also persons who will aid the exhibit with pictures. Salem is capable of getting up a collection of pictures that would next year require an art gallery to hold the display.

STATE HOUSE NOTES.

New Freight Rates Adopted by the Railroad Commission—Material Reductions.

Governor Pennoyer is expected home today, when there will be a session of the school land board.

The latest arrival at the asylum is one C. C. Shepard of Eugene, a farmer of temperate habits, suffering his fourth attack of insanity, and is afflicted with acute rheumatism, and a desire to kill his wife.

THE RAILROAD COMMISSION.

The same arguments that were used by Mr. Kochler were repeated again Monday for further time and the board refused to grant it. The tariff arranged by the board will now be put into effect so far as the board is concerned as soon as the law will allow, about Sept. 1st. The new tariff makes a square cut of ten per cent on grain in car loads, flour and millstuffs. The rest of the tariff is as first proposed by the board, about fifteen per cent. The new rates reduce rates on all lines in the state except the charges over Willamette steel bridge which are fixed by the governor and secretary of state, and which are $4.00 a car toll in addition to the regular mileage fees. If hard work and close attention to business will earn the commission the respect of the people the present one deserves that. The proposed new rates will now be carefully examined by the attorney general and be put in effect as above.

A SUPERIOR ARTICLE.—Geo. Hoeye has just secured the sale of an article that will be a great comfort to all classes. It is the Princeton horse hide razor strop, the leather of which is tanned as soft as as chamois, and the back being oiled canvas. It is as pliable as a silk handkerchief, and can be packed into the smallest space without injury, being ready for use at any time. This is the finest strop in the market.

A NEW BOARD OF TRADE.

New Life to be put Into the old Organization.

The JOURNAL interviews Monday show an unusual interest in reviving the work of the Board of Trade. The real estate and business men all talk right to the point and are perfectly willing to back any intelligent plan of proceeding. An organization that would give our city hundreds of dollars a month from sources now practically untouched should not be left in a state of "innocuous desuetude" a moment longer.

Everything is favorable at Salem for carrying on a work well begun. The Salem Board of Trade had a good name. It bankrupted itself with too lavish expenditures and too loose a hand on the purse strings. The JOURNAL always opposed jobs on the Board and used its influence for restricting expenses to legitimate purposes and proper enterprises. The thing to do is to learn from errors of the past and go ahead to organize a first-class board and keep control of it in the hands of those whose interest are to make this a great city.

The JOURNAL submits more suggestions from business men. It has no scheme to offer and knows of no royal road to success but intelligent industry.

H. W. Cottle: "For twenty five years this town stood still. A little eastern advertising has doubled and trebled our population in a few years. Before that you could never get your money out of a building lot; now there is a steady advance in all values. This will not stop unless we let up in our efforts. Advertising will make this the biggest city on the the coast: I favor immediate action on the plan submitted by our committee on organization.

T. McF. Patton: "I've got tired of fooling with it, but am prepared to help whenever responsible and inteligent action is taken by the business men of Salem."

J. H. Albert: "I have paid $10 a month in the past, and will pay any reasonable amount that I am assessed by a board judiciously managed and regard it as a good investment."

A. Bush: "The public seem to have cut off supplies. This bank has always contributed liberally."

A. N. Bush, treasurer of Salem board of trade: "The board has a balance of 21 cts. here to its credit."

Squire Farrar: "You cannot run such an institution on a four-bit-dues plan and you cannot spend hundreds of dollars a month on a ten cent subscription paper. The majority of our business men who have a vital interest in the growth of our city seem to want a few to put up the money."

REORGANIZATION.

The JOURNAL has secured the following carefully prepared plan of reorganization. It is entirely practical and the members should at once be united upon some such plan. The report was submitted to the June meeting of the board and has never been acted upon:

To the Board of Trade of Salem.

GENTLEMEN: Your committee to whom was referred the matter of a more efficient organization of the board, beg to report as follows:

1st. We recommend that the board be immediately and fully reorganized and regularly incorporated.

2d. That all regular members who become such prior to July 1st, 1891, pay an initiation fee of $20 and all subsequent to that date a fee of $30.

3d. That monthly dues be $1.00 per month, payable at the end of each quarter.

4th. That honorary memberships be provided for, not requiring membership fees or dues or conferring right to vote.

5th. That a competent advertising committee of three regular members be provided for, in whose hands all advertising funds shall be placed, who shall have power to act, and who shall be required to present to the board quarterly full and exact reports.

6th. That all other necessary work of the board be delegated to appropriate committees, and that no salaried offices be created within a period of two years.

Respectfully submitted,
P. S. KNIGHT,
H. W. COTTLE.

I concur in the within except that I would prefer an amendment of our constitution rather than a reorganization, and am not in favor of disfranchising any member but favor increasing dues to say $3 per month and an initiation fee of $20 or $30 in future. Respectfully,
J. H. ALBERT.

The outrage of introducing more Chinese on Court street ought not to be successfully perpetrated upon the people of that street. It should be resisted by all lawful methods and the nuisance prevented.

Mr. and Mrs. Claud Gatch rejoice over the arrival of a son at their home Aug. 9th. The enlarged quarters at the bank will hardly do justice to the feeling of the happy father. May the child prosper as it deserves.

Edwin Scott, on the outside advertising staff of the Oregonian, was on Monday evening united at the Episcopal church to Miss Kathleen Miller, of Jacksonville, Rev. Wm. Lund officiating. Mr. Scott is well known in Salem, where he will always be warmly received with his charming young life partner.

An accident occurred to the Scriber-Coolidge coast party at the Grande Ronde store. The party were shaken up some and all proceeded on their way, except Miss Grace Scriber and Mrs. Coolidge and children, who returned to Salem Doug Minto, unfortunately had his ankle, sprained at a ball game, again wrenched, somewhat seriously complicating his hurt.

WILLAMETTE.—The University building will have two coats of paint on the outside, while the chapel and entrance will get one coat. The hallways will be calsomined and the buildings renovated throughout. The grounds will be thoroughly drained and the sanitary conditions improved in every way possible.

NO LOTTERY SCHEME.—Every person sees what he gets. Three beautiful glass dishes and a pint glass fruit jar filled with superior baking powder, all for 60 cents, at M. T. Rineman's, 132 State street.

Another Pioneer Gone.

There died at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. W. C. Barker at Salem, Aug. 10, 1891, Daniel Fiester, who came to this state overland in 1847. Deceased was born in Pennsylvania Feb. 3, 1811, his wife Mary Ann Darling surviving him. Originally he settled at Clackamas county, then coming to Marion county. He came to Salem in September last from Josephine county, where he had of late resided. Mrs. R. Bates and Dal. Feister are the other surviving children. Funeral at 3 p. m. today. Rev. P. S. FATHER ARMSTRONG GONE.

The Veteran of Veteran Odd Fellows Gets a Demit Card From Nature.

This Tuesday morning Henry Armstrong, the ancient and venerable Odd Fellow, passed away peacefully of old age. Deceased has been somewhat seriously ill for a short time and only a month ago visited the lodge at Woodburn with great honors. He has been supported by the lodge here for some time. A native of Auburn, N. Y., he was born Jan. 1, 1802, and joined the order at Buffalo, Sept. 16, 1834, of which for more than half a century he has been a member in good standing. At present he is a member of Fulton lodge No. 339, Fulton, Iowa. His encampment card is from Maquoketa, grand encampment of Iowa. In October 1885 he came to Salem. He has one son on the coast, P.J. Armstrong of Seattle, who will arrive Wednesday at 11 a. m. The funeral will take place at I. O. O. F. hall, Salem, Wednesday at 4 p. m. He will be buried by the Odd Fellows of Salem and other towns. So far as known he was the oldest Odd Fellow in years of membership in the United States. He was well liked and will be buried with all the honors which a man of his character deserves. While he was able, he lived well but when needing aid from others he indulged in no luxuries, showing a high sense of self respect. He was a spiritualist by profession. Dr. Gwynne will officiate at the funeral.

Odd Fellows are requested to meet at the lodge hall at 3 p. m.

The Leak Advertising Co's Car.

In our issue of yesterday we mentioned that the Leak Advertising company's car known as "Placer county on Wheels" stood at the foot of Commercial street, and was open for the inspection of visitors. Having seen an item in the Eugene Guard calling the enterprise a 'fake,' we refrained from any comment, preferring first to investigate for ourselves. We have done so, and have come to the conclusion that had the editor of the Guard taken the pains to visit the car while it was in Eugene, instead of sulking in his den and sucking his paws like a wounded bear, he would have learned whether his definition of the word fake was correct or not. We found the car to be decidedly the most complete affair of the kind we ever saw. It is really three cars in one; being used as a sleeper at night, and an exhibition and dining car during the day. A force of twenty-four men is with the car, among whom are a bookkeeper, stenographer, electrician, cook, steward, and a force of eighteen or more painters, who during the day are engaged in painting advertising signs on the sides of stores, barns and other buildings; and it is but fair to admit that they are putting up the neatest work of this class we have seen. This large party sleeps in the car, each man having a cozy wire mattress to himself, the berths being drawn up in the roof of the car during the day, leaving the whole interior of the car clear for exhibition purposes. The car is brilliantly lighted at night by means of over seventy-five electric lights, driven by an engine and dynamo built in the car, and in the evening is a beautiful sight to see. An immense crowd visited the car last evening, and it was past 10 o'clock before the last one had passed through. Each visitor to the car was presented with a liberal sample package of Sperry & Co.'s Germea, Royal Dutch Cocoa, Folger's baking powder, and other goods of this class. During the evening the large crowd was treated to a magnificent stereopticon entertainment by Prof. Hovey, who has the finest outfit, and is well known as one of most expert operators in the United States. This entertainment is given in the open air where all can enjoy it, is free to all, and is a genuine treat. It was pleasing to hear the congratulations extended to Manager Leak on the enterprise shown by the Leak Glove Co., of San Francisco, of which he is president, in putting such an enterprise before the public. It is the most complete scheme we ever saw for manufacturers to introdroduce their goods directly to the public. It is a decidedly fine thing for local merchants, for the large quantities of sample packages distributed nightly cannot fail to create a lively trade for them for these goods. The Placer county exhibit of fruits is a credit to that enterprising county, and their enterprise must certainly result in much good. To sum it all up, the result of our visit has been to make us think that if there were more advertising "fakes" of this kind the country would be better for it. The car will be open during the day and again this evening and visitors will receive a cordial welcome.

A DESPERATE MIDNIGHT CHASE.

An Incident That Came of an Omaha Woman's Walking in Her Sleep.

One night a prominent business man living on Thirty-first street was awakened from sleep and discovered that his wife was missing. Hastily arising, the husband began a search of the premises. In the hallway of the first floor he found his wife lying unconscious on the floor, with several ugly gashes on her face and neck. Instantly it dawned on the husband's mind that burglars had entered the house and that his wife had been attacked.

There was no one in the house to send for help. The husband threw open the front door and fortunately, or unfortunately, a well dressed gentleman, who proved to be an equally well known young business man, returning from a late card party, passed by.

Arrayed in his night gown, the husband hurried down the steps and called lustily to the young man. The latter turned and gazed upon the figure in white. One glance was sufficient to terrorize a less superstitious man. The husband hurried toward the young man, but the latter took a fresh grip on the overcoat which had hung carelessly over his arm and started east on Farnam street at a dead run.

"Stop, there!" yelled the husband.

But the injunction only served to accelerate the speed of the young man. It seemed the only chance in sight, and the husband clung to it. With his night robe flapping in the breeze he flew over the pavement, yelling at every bound when he could summon breath. One or twice the young man turned to see if he was still pursued, and then he took a fresh grip on his coat and plunged forward into the damp atmosphere. On and on went the young man, and on and on followed the husband.

It seemed a race for life. But nature could not stand everything. The husband was plainly gaining and the young man was plainly losing his breath. When the young man struck the hill in front of John A. McShane's residence it seemed that all hope had gone and his legs showed signs of weakening. The husband gained several laps and he seemed to progress right well on an uphill run. At the top of the hill all the breath was gone from the young man, and hatless he halted, and turning savagely upon his pursuer exclaimed:

"What'n thunder are you chasing me for, anyhow?"

The husband gasped for breath as he replied: "What in thunder are you running for? My wife has been attacked by burglars, and I want you to go for a doctor. Now, will you go get one?"

A glad light burst upon the young man, and feeling as though he was a brand snatched from the burning he hastily took the number of his pursuer's house and hastened away in search of a doctor.

The young man repaired to his own home, where he summoned Dr. Riley by telephone. Then he sent to the stable for his team, and drove out on Thirty-first street to see if he could be of further assistance. But in the excitement of the moment the young man had become confused on numbers, and after an hour's search for his pursuer's house he retired to his own home and was soon lost in slumber.

The next day the young man met the husband on the street and explanations followed. The doctor had found the house and had administered to the wife. It was not a case of burglary at all. The wife had simply arose and walked in her sleep, something she had never done before. In attempting to pass through a big pane of window glass she had sustained her injuries.—Omaha World-Herald.

No Bread.

Antoinette de Bourbon, the mother of the Guises, had in addition to her other fine qualities, great good sense. One example of the discipline to which she subjected the young Guises indicates that had there been more mothers like her in her class there would have been less of ruthless extravagance on the part of the royalty and nobility of France.

The young nobles were out hunting, and rode through fields which had been sown with corn. The duchess heard of it. That evening, according to the tradition preserved at Joinville, there was no bread on the table.

The princes at once asked for bread, astonished at such negligence in this well ordered household.

"My children," replied Antoinette, it is necessary to economize flour since you have destroyed the future harvest."—Youth's Companion.

A Sponge Bath Every Night.

If people knew the good of a hasty sponge bath every night before going to bed they would avail themselves of this simple means of obtaining a good night's rest. The water needn't be cold, as some suggest, but warm enough to be comfortable. To wash the hands, face and feet is to do one's self untold good, and that any one can go to bed without having performed these three ablutions seems to the user of water a thing as impossible as it is improbable. And the feet should have the preference. —Detroit Free Press.

SCROFULA

Is that impurity of the blood which produces unsightly lumps or swellings on the glands of the neck; causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; develops ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" and fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption, and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula or impure blood, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, sores breaking out on them in various places. My little boy, three years old, has been a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. I was advised to use Hood's Sarsaparilla, and we have all taken it. The result is that all have been cured of the scrofula, my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.
