REPLY TO LIES.

Commissioner Colvig Replies to Attorney Fenton of the S. P. Co. Mr. Fenton in his interview on yesterday published in the Telegram says, speaking of the S. P. Co.: "We have recently reduced rates on green fruit, vegetables, wood, lumber, cattle, hogs and sheep for the benefit of farmers in Willamette and Rogue River valleys, also a reduction on grain, etc., coming to Portland from south of Eugene for benefit of producers in Umpqua and Rogue River valleys, equal to nearly 25 per cent. We also asked at same time a slight increase on merchandise south from Portland."

The commissioners do not wish to rush into print to defend their action on making the reductions proposed but would like to say that the S. P. Co. has not made any reduction in rates on the commodities named. Mr. Fenton probably intended to say the company proposed a tariff and filed the same with the commission on May 20th, which it claimed would have the effect of a slight reduction of the company's revenue. We simply deny that it would have that effect but to the contrary we found that the same would increase the revenues of the company.

The alleged reductions were proposed at points where there was no business, in many cases, on the commodities named, while the rates were increased at the points where the company gets its greatest volume of business. We give a few examples of this alleged reduction on the part of the company:

Table with 4 columns: Commodity, Old Rate, New Rate, Difference. Includes items like Oregon City, Astoria, etc.

When it is considered that no reduction on wheat is proposed north of Eugene and a material increase on wheat, it is not surprising that the company gets its greatest volume of business. We give a few examples of this alleged reduction on the part of the company.

We do not believe that the rates on the special commodities covered by our revised schedules will cause any great hardship on the company and that it will stimulate shipments to the extent of almost equalizing the difference. GEO. COLVIG.

SUICIDE BY AMMONIA.

The Terrible Agency Does Not Prove Its Use.

No poison brings death with more maddening agony than ammonia, and that does not seem to discourage the suicide. The man I saw, who deliberately swallowed a fatal dose of the drug in New York recently, is only one of the many who have gone the ammonia route to death in spite of the excruciating pain. Dr. Byrle has recorded thirty cases of ammonia poisoning in the small London district of which he is health officer; Prof. fessor Mitchell mentions twenty two cases, and four have occurred during the short time Dr. Jenkins has been connected with the coroner's office in New York.

Cases of slow poisoning from ammonia are of constant occurrence among men who work in its manufacture, or even in decomposing substances which give it off in considerable quantities. Ammonia, slowly and from day to day taken into the system, causes the complexion to lose its freshness, and the skin of men who get heavily impregnated with it has a disagreeable blotched and discolored appearance.

Taken into the stomach from day to day in even the small quantities used to adulterate food, such as baking powder, it not only injures the complexion but attacks the lining of the stomach, and is the source of much general ill health.

The recent rapid increase in the use of ammonia for various purposes, and the consequent increase in its manufacture, have made it one of the most easily obtained poisons and, although everybody is familiar with it in some form, there is a surprising amount of ignorance of its dangerous qualities. Its use is an adulterant in any food preparation is simply a crime, and as a crime should be punished.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited, and when the world was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect remedy known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to cleanse the system gently in the Spring-time or, in fact, at any time, and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.

MARRIED. WOLF—OLMSTED.—At the residence of Col. Olmsted on State street, Aug. 12, 1891, Miss Minnie Wolf to D. D. Olmsted, both of Salem.

This event was happily consummated at the pleasant rooms of Mr. and Mrs. Olmsted over Steiner & Blosser's store. Rev. Williams, of the Christian church officiating. The groom is a younger brother of the proprietor of the Salem steam laundry, and came to Salem two years ago taking an active part in that establishment. Mr. and Mrs. Mason, old Michigan friends who were visiting in Salem, were the only guests. The ceremony was performed at 8:30 p. m. and elegant refreshments were served by Mrs. Col. Olmsted. The newly married pair will occupy rooms in Mrs. Parr's house, and a large circle of Salem people wish them the greatest success.

Kelter. Kelter in this part of the country means lumber, rubbish, litter, but more particularly worthless lumber which is in your way—rubbish that you may kick against or fall over. That is how I have heard it used all my life. It is quite a common word. Old boxes, packing cases and such like in the courtyard would be kelter. Old gears, broken buckets and such things about the stables or in a farmyard is kelter. "I went to the sale, but that was no good with buying; that was no good a lot of kelter." That is Lincolnshire.—Notes and Queries.

THE QZAR'S CAR IS SHOT PROOF.

A Ruler Who Travels Continually Between Two Files of Soldiers.

When the czar travels in Russia the precautions taken for his safety could not be greater if he were in an enemy's country. A battalion of infantry is detailed for every two miles of distance, and allowing 500 men as the effective force of each battalion, every spot of ground on both sides of the track is covered by sentinels within easy distance of each other. The czar is suddenly whirled off to the station, accompanied by the chosen twelve of his body guard without pomp or circumstance, swiftly and silently. The czar always travels in a train of five carriages. His carriage is built in a peculiar style.

The windows, while ample for light, are high, so that a person sitting down is invisible from the outside, and the sides of the car are fortified with plates of steel concealed in the ornamental woodwork, but strong enough to resist a bullet. There are two sentry boxes in the carriage, one at each end, and each looking out at an opposite side from the other.

The guardsmen on duty in these apartments are shut in from any observation from the interior of the carriage, but at intervals of about two feet, the whole length of the saloon, are electric buttons, communicating with the guard chambers, as well as with the two carriages, one containing the suite, and the other, in the rear, occupied by the guardsmen not on duty. So far, therefore, as the train itself is concerned, the czar could be no more secure in St. Petersburg.

The train speeds on to its destination without a halt, except on account of accident. At a distance of not less than five miles ahead is a pioneer train, in which the imperial director of railways and the chief engineer of the particular railway on which the czar is traveling always ride. As the pilot train whizzes by the reserves along the line rush to arms and guard the tracks of the railway, waiting until the imperial train has passed, so that the spectacle is presented of continuous lines of soldiery for hundreds of miles. Arrived at the end of his journey, the czar is escorted to the quarters intended for the imperial family.

The streets are guarded by special constables, in the attire of citizens. Every property owner has been called upon to supply one or more of these men at his own expense to do duty when the sovereign makes a public appearance. The constables average one in ten of the crowd that throng the streets, and being in ordinary dress they can mingle with the people, note what is said, and, perhaps, do something that will obtain them regular employment among the secret police.

With one-tenth the population engaged as spies upon the remainder, with troops enough concentrated to stand a formidable siege and his faithful guardsmen dogging every step, the czar goes through the forms of a visit to the ancient capital of Russia, or whatever city he may choose to honor.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

One Pellican's Power. The Paris prefect of police is today the most unaccountable and the most powerful man in France. His functions are highly varied. He controls not only the ordinary police that patrol the streets and keep order, but also the detectives and officers who constitute the "police judiciaire," and who work up criminal cases. Besides these, he is master of the political police—the government's secret agents—and he has in his hands a secret service fund to spend unaccountably except as regards his immediate superior, the minister of the interior.

His department covers the maintenance of order everywhere in streets and public places, the punishment of misdemeanors, the inspection of weights and measures, the organization of important life saving and sanitary services, authority to permit or to forbid public spectacles, licenses of numerous sorts—such as omnibuses and cabs and river steamers—the regulation of certain trades and callings, and, in general, the control of a great number of services that affect the security of life and property, the public health and the convenience of a great community.—Dr. Albert Shaw in Century.

A Russian Baby's Cradle. In Russia a cradle is used, contrived rudely as to both structure and motion. It is an oblong box or wicker basket, with a cord from each of its four corners converging to the hook or the rafter from which it is hung, and with a looped cord underneath, in which the mother puts her foot to swing her baby. In winter—which in Russia is long and severe—the cradles or sometimes the hammocks in which the youngest children sleep, are slung around the great stove upon which the parents and other adult members of the family pass the night, wrapped in their sheepskins.—Strand Magazine.

THE PLATFORM. THE CAPITAL JOURNAL favors a reform in the present currency system of Oregon, and in the present system of supplying an inadequate currency may be supplied by the government issuing direct to the people an adequate supply of legal tender money, with a coin made of steel to conform to sound banking principles. It favors election of all officials who legislate for, or are directly responsible to the people, by direct vote of the people. It favors raising all state revenues by a tax on the gross earnings of corporations, both foreign and state. It favors opening all waterways to free navigation, and a constant of all common carriers to the end that the producer shall secure for his labor the largest net return possible. If you favor retaining all powers possible in the hands of the people and government in the interests of the people, send us this paper. For terms, see elsewhere.

Beware of Imitations for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

Mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by E. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by E. J. Cheney & Co. Sold by druggists, price 75 cents per bottle.

SCROFULA

That impurity of the blood which produces unsightly lumps or swellings on the face of the neck; causes painful eruptions on the arms, legs, or feet; develops sores in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; is the origin of cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "impure" and festering upon the lungs, causes consumption, and death. Behold the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can CURED

It Be

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula or impure blood, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, sores breaking out on them in various places. My little boy, three years old, has been a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. I was advised to use Hood's Sarsaparilla, and we have all taken it. The result is that all have been cured of the scrofula, my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. CHILDREN, Passaic City, N. J.

Building up a Strong, Independent Paper for the People in Oregon?

A PAPER THAT WILL NOT SELL OUT—Printed at the Seat of Government.

LOOK AT THE RECORD OF THE CAPITAL JOURNAL.

During the recent session of the legislature it was the only paper in the state that attacked successfully the Portland dictatorship in Oregon politics. It successfully opposed all doctrines of the American labor law in the interests of political justice. It opposed the law that passed giving the Oregon railroad commission power to fix just and reasonable rates of freight and passenger fares, and to enforce its decisions. It successfully advocated retention of the old railroad commission as being qualified to enforce the law. It insisted for all measures in open rivers and thus secured to the people the right to a free and unrestricted use of the waterways.
