

of Angley, the Count DeLade, Mr. and Mrs. Baird, Augustus Spaulding, Mrs. Valda, the distinguished prima donna; Mr. Ferris, of the Lyceum theatre; Mr. and Mrs. Adell, and Mr. Lily, the rising young tenor. The performance in the theatre began at 8 o'clock. It is needless to say a splendid audience was present, and the scene in the body of the theatre rivaled in brilliancy that on the stage. Everywhere were to be seen rich dresses, jewels and flowers. Programs hand painted on yellow satin were served to the guests.

DEPARTED HER HUSBAND.

HUFFALO, Aug. 14.—Society circles are all agog today over the announcement that Mrs. Emma Cronyn, wife of Dr. John Cronyn, a prominent physician of this city, had joined the Carlton Opera company as a chorus singer, and that she appeared on the stage in Washington as a student in "America," dressed in tights. Mrs. Cronyn is a very handsome blonde, and is of almost perfect physical proportions. Her husband enjoys a large practice, and she had almost everything that could be desired. She became infatuated with the stage, and when the Carlton Opera company was in this city she applied for a position in the company. She was told that she must start at the bottom in the chorus, but this did not deter her, and on Sunday she left with the company for Washington. It is said Dr. Cronyn is much distressed over his wife's conduct. His office was closed yesterday and the doctor could not be found.

WE NEED MORE SHIPS.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—The seizure of the Pacific mail steamer City of Panama by the Salvadorian authorities may result in the sending of United States war vessels to these waters. How to meet this possible contingency is something that is bothering the navy officials. There are only three vessels now at San Francisco besides the Charles ton, which is ordered to China, and it is questionable if any of these can make the trip. One of the trio is the Pensacola, which arrived yesterday. The others are the Omaha, which recently returned from China, and is now out of commission, and the Bangor, which has within a fortnight come up from Nicaragua for repairs. The former is the only one that could possibly leave soon, and as she is out of condition her journey to San Salvador would be slow, if not dangerous. It has not been determined that the seizure of the City of Panama will necessitate the presence of a man-of-war at La Libertad; but to be prepared for that contingency the department has been to telegraphic communication with the authorities at San Francisco about the three ships. The absence of any official particulars from minister Pacheco at Guatemala leaves both the state and navy departments in doubt as to the course to be pursued. If it turns out that the political refugees are still in the city of Panama, the departments, to be consistent with the position taken in the Barrandine case, must necessarily give all possible protection to them until some understanding can be reached with the Salvadorian government. In the absence of any definite official information, Mr. Seley declines to discuss what action the navy department will take in the matter, further than to say that the subject is receiving careful consideration, and that the navy will not be found wanting when called upon.

TWO NEGRO FRIENDS.

SARATOGA, Aug. 14.—Mrs. Oscar Cook and her daughter were driving Wednesday evening from Wilton, about four miles north of this village, to Does Corners, and as they reached a lonely piece of highway about half a mile from their home, their wagon collided and locked wheels with a carriage driven by two negroes. The negroes jumped into their wagon and began an assault upon them. One of the negroes struck Mrs. Cook, and the other attempted to choke Miss Cook. The ladies fought them off and screamed for help. The neighbors were aroused by the screams of the ladies, and the negroes fled. Among those who rushed to the rescue was Oscar Cook, the husband of one of the ladies and the father of the other. He and two young men procured a buggy and started in pursuit of the negroes. They had not gone far when Mr. Cook said to his companions, "Boys, I can't see," and immediately fell over dead. The body was taken to the Cook residence. On the arrival of Coroner Carr, a jury was impeached and an inquest held. A verdict of heart disease, superinduced by excitement, was rendered. Mr. Cook was a decorated veteran pensioner. At about noon yesterday Chief Blodgett and detective Costello, of the Saratoga police, arrested near Sandy Hill the two negroes who committed the assault. They brought the men here and they were committed for an examination in the police court. The prisoners gave their names as Edward E. and Sewell Willard, and claimed to be from New Hampshire and to be peddling soap. They are held on the charge of assault in the first degree, and a more serious charge may be preferred. They charged Mrs. Cook until she nearly became insane. She is now insane, as a result of her injuries and from grief at the death of her husband. Miss Cook escaped by taking refuge in the woods skirting the road.

CHLOROPHYLE.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 14.—R. M. Frayzier, president of the Security and Memphis City banks, secretary of the Memphis City railway, principal owner of the Public Ledger and one of the most prominent and wealthy citizens of Memphis, was yesterday afternoon chloroformed and robbed at the Gayoso hotel by a man asserting that he was John A. Morris, of New Orleans. Morris engaged a room at a hotel, sent for Frayzier, who went to the hotel, and, after some talk regarding a matter on which Morris asked information, the latter asked the other to take a drink. Frayzier drained a glass. Turning to face Morris, the latter pulled two revolvers, saying: "I am a desperate man, no money, family in New Orleans destitute, much have cash. You endorse a check for $5000." Frayzier argued the matter. The parties finally compromised by Frayzier endorsing a check for $500, hoping the cashier at the bank would suspect something wrong and refuse to cash it, as he endorsed it. P. D. Frazier, an unusual endorsement. The checks are usually endorsed by P. Dudley Frayzier. Morris then chloroformed Frayzier and sent the bell boy to the bank for the money. This evening cities of "Murder," "Thieves," were heard issuing from the room. The door was burst open, and Frayzier found unconscious, his watch, $40, and valuables being gone. The check was on the table, payment at the bank having been refused. Morris escaped.

A BOGUS DOCTOR.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—For some time past the advertisements of the Institute of European staff physicians appeared in German papers guaranteeing to quickly cure all ills of both sexes, a lack of money being no barrier to treatment. Germans flocked to the institute by hundreds, doting one Dr. Beckmann, who styled himself president of the association. In every case he administered "a colored fluid and sweet pills." Complaints of extortion have been made. He was arrested and confessed he was not a physician, but formerly had been a doctor's servant in the German army. Analysis of his medicines shows them to be bread pills and a solution of salts. Beckmann said his treatment would kill no more than that of regular physicians. He was held to the grand jury in $1000 bail.

NO MORE CHINESE.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 14.—The landing of the Chinese from the steamer Oceanic was stopped yesterday by order of Collector Phelps. The order was due to a circular received from the treasury department quoting the decision of the United States supreme court in the case of Wan Sing. The latter is a laborer, and wanted to land on the ground of prior residence. The court held that no Chinese merchant, or otherwise, could land in the United States unless he was provided with a consular certificate. He would have to prove he was conducting mercantile business in this country, which would be almost an impossibility in China. Collector Phelps holds that this practically excludes all Chinese except those connected with the diplomatic corps.

ELOPED WITH TWO WOMEN.

ANNANDALE, Mich., Aug. 14.—Charles W. Windus, a barber bailing from Minneapolis, has thrown not only the village but the whole district into social fits. He has eloped with two pretty women at the same time, both of them married to prosperous men and each of them the mother of three children. Both women are four or five years older than Windus. They are Mrs. Samuel Wells and Mrs. Leonard Watson. Young Windus, who sails under the name of Charles E. Edwards and two of three other aliases, came to Annandale a few months ago, and, being good looking, got on well with the women. One day in July, Mrs. Watson came over from Smith Lake to visit her friend Mrs. Wells, and the former was introduced to Windus by the latter. For several weeks afterward Windus was constantly in the company of the two married women. The affair came to a climax late last week when the trio disappeared. The sudden going of the three soon became the subject of general gossip. The husbands of the missing women learned that their wives had gone to Minneapolis and decided to follow them. The runaways were, however, posted by some one in Annandale, and left Minneapolis. Upon returning to Annandale, the two men caused a warrant to be issued for Windus' arrest. The village marshal went to Minneapolis and was not long in locating his man; but the barber managed to slip away from the marshal, and was soon hid in St. Paul, where he has been living with the women.

BIG RUNS OF POPULAR SONGS.

An Author and Publisher Tells How Some Catchy Melodies Have Sold.

In the year 1885 I was yachting in Long Island sound with a young friend of mine named Smith. We were lying off New Haven then, and although I did not know it then, I have since realized that this period was a turning point in my career. The doctors had told me that if I did not stop dancing I would become a cripple. I was something at a loss what to turn my attention to, as at that time I knew of nothing except dancing. Smith at that time was a clerk in the music publishing house of Oliver Ditson & Co., in Boston.

I said to Smith: "I believe I can write the songs to make a concern rich. Let us form a company and start publishing music." We managed to scrape together a small sum of money and started in business. At the end of the first two years we were nearly bankrupt. The cause of this failure I found to be that we had been selling other publications and not our own. All the money I could raise was realized out of the remainder of my capital, which consisted of an old schooner, which I sold, realizing $900.

The first hit we made was with the old well known melody, "Shoo Fly." I did not write this, but it was an original composition, and we sold 90,000 copies of the song and 125,000 of the galop. My first real strike as a song writer was made with "Put Me in My Little Bed." This was suggested to me by seeing a picture of the prophet Samuel in the window of a Boston shop as I was going home one evening. Samuel was kneeling by a bedside with his hands clasped in prayer. I turned to my son and said, "That will be a popular song."

I wrote the melody and the first verse in fifteen minutes. The popularity of this song was immense. The second of my successes was "Come, Birdie." The idea of this song came to me while I was lying in a hammock under a tree. A beautiful woodpecker was tapping at the bark of the tree, and lifting my hand playfully toward the bird I said: "Come, Birdie, Come." This was a success from the start, its sales numbering that of "Put Me in My Little Bed" by many thousands.

The next of my successes was entitled "Moonlight on the Lake." This was a quartet. Over 600,000 copies of it were sold. You probably know that as soon as a song becomes popular musical pirates begin to write something similar to mislead the public. In order to counteract this I wrote two more songs, "When 'Tis Moonlight" and "When 'Tis Starlight." These were all waltz songs, and although the two latter songs did not sell as well as the other, still they helped to defeat the ends of those who wished to profit from the results of my humble efforts.

It would be impossible for me to enumerate all the songs I have written. They run up in the thousands. I have written over 100 quartets. In fact, I think I can, without egotism, say that I have been the only writer of popular music in this country or any other during the fifteen years. The success of "Marguerite" is well known, over 1,000,000 copies of it having been printed.—C. A. White in Music Trades.

A Confederate Yet on Parole.

Captain J. B. Williams, of Alabama, served during the civil war in the Tenth Tennessee cavalry in the Confederate army. He was captured, but released on parole in May, 1865. "Now, I have never been released from that parole," he said, as he stood in the Burned lobby, "and as long as I obey the laws and do not take up arms against the United States government it is in force. I carry it with me all the time, but until I am discharged I am simply a United States prisoner on parole. I have never taken the oath of allegiance to that account."

"But there need be no fear of my taking up arms against the government. The politicians may go ahead and do or say what they please. I'll do no fighting against this country's government. But if any one of those foreign people get into a fight with us then's when I'll come out, get my discharge and go into the service." The parole is yellow with age and almost worn out at the folds. It is dated at Meridian, and is signed by Colonel W. B. Miles for the Confederate states and by Colonel Henry Bertram, of the Twentieth Wisconsin, for the Federal government.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

Better Known by His Nickname.

In Mr. Lower's treatise on "English Surnames" a story is told of an attorney's clerk who was employed to serve a process on one of the oddly named persons, whose real name was entered in the instrument with legal accuracy. After much vain inquiry the clerk was on the point of abandoning his search when a young woman kindly volunteered to assist him.

"Oy say, Bullied," she cried to the first person they met, "does she know a man named Adam Green?"

The bull head was shaken in token of ignorance. Layabed, Stumpy, Cowskin, Spindleshanks, Cookeye and Pigtail were severally invoked, but without success, and the querist fell into a brown study. Suddenly her eyes brightened, and slapping one of her companions on the shoulder she exclaimed triumphantly:

"Dash my wig! why, he means my father!" and then turning to the lawyer's clerk she added, "You shouldn't ax'd for Ode Blackbird!"
